Senators Use Lobby Quiz to Intimidate, Gannett Says

Committeemen Desire to Smear Reorganization Foes, He Charges.

Wadsworth, Minton Debate Bill on Air

Abolish Unit, Apologize, Prosecute Members, Publisher Urges.

Frank Gannett, chairman of the national committee to uphold constitutional government, charged yesterday that the renewed activity of the Senate Committee investigating lobbying "is prompted by a desire to smear and intimidate not only our committee, but all who are opposed to the indefensible executive department reorganization bill."

Gannett, a newspaper publisher of Rochester, N. Y., asserted the "Senate should proceed at once to abolish the Black Committee and publicly apologize for its viciously illegal activities." He said the Senate should then "refer the matter to the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia with instructions to prosecute under the Criminal Code of the United States.

The chairman of the committee, whose secretary, Dr. Edward A. Rumely, faces a Senate contempt citation for refusing last Friday to surrender the organization's private records to the committee, explained his reference to the United States criminal code. Gannett said the code provides "that any public official who conspires to violate the constitutional rights of a citizen of this country is subject to fine and imprisonment, and as a further punishment, that such official shall be stripped of his right to hold public office."

Debate Bill on Air.

Soon after the issuance of Gannett's statement, Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, who succeeded Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black as chairman of the lobby investigators, debated the reorganization bill with Representative James Wadsworth (Republican), of New York, in a radio speech. Minton said of Gannett:

"If you are quite gullible, you might be persuaded by the flood of misleading propaganda being sent out by Frank Gannett's Committee to uphold the Constitution, in its attack upon the proposed reorganization bill.

"According to this propaganda, the bill is the last word in a diabolical scheme to wreck our form of government. Don't be misled by Mr. Gannett, as he directs his propa-

Two Sisters Found Beaten Insensible, Throat of One Cut

Montgomery, Ala., March 20.—Two trained nurses—sisters—were found beaten insensible on the outskirts of Montgomery today.

They lay injured throughout the night in a driving rain and thunder storm.

They are Miss Eunice Ward, 48, Montgomery County public health nurse since 1921, and her sister, Miss Lillian Ward, 52.

Sheriff Haygood Paterson said a colored man was sought.

Investigators said the women had been beaten with rocks, and Lillian's throat was cut, but not deeply. A physician said ravishment had been attempted.

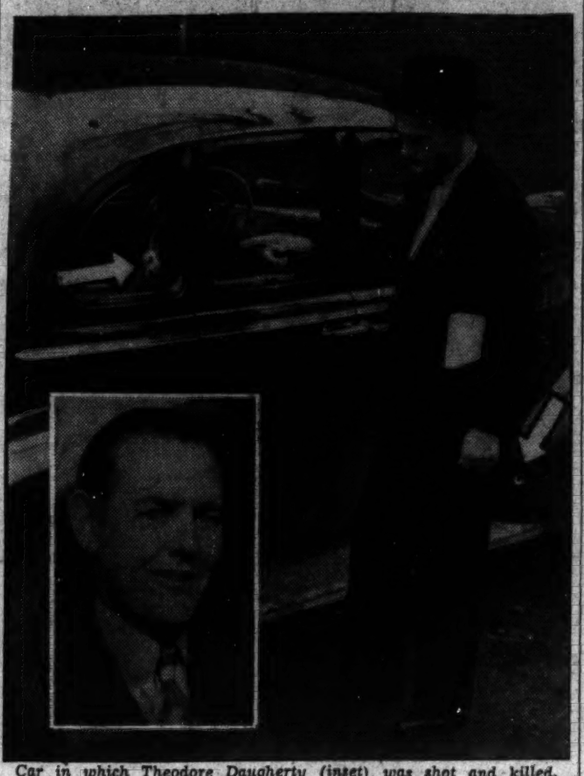
2 Va. Policemen Slay D. C. Musician in Auto



Car in which Theodore Daugherty (inset) was shot and killed. Arrows point to bullet holes.

He Tried to Run Them Down, Patrolmen Say, but Man Tells of Woman Witness Who Gives Different Version of Killing.

Halted on the Lee highway after a reported 4-mile chase through Fairfax and Arlington counties, Theodore B. Daugherty, 31, Washington musician was fatally shot early yesterday when he allegedly attempted to run down two Falls Church, Va., policemen who stopped him.

Daugherty died in Georgetown Hospital two hours after the shooting from a bullet wound in the brain. He lived at 1737 Kenyon street northwest.

The officers, Herbert C. Knox and Edwin Scheid, gave themselves up to Arlington County authorities and were later released in custody today of Mayor L. P. Daniel, of Falls Church.

Daniel stated yesterday that Knox and Scheid were in a patrol car at West Falls Church when Daugherty's machine, traveling toward Washington at a high rate of speed, flashed by. Daniel said that Daugherty's car, racing during part of the chase at 70 miles per hour, led the pursuing officers down the Lee highway, zig zagged through side streets and returned to the highway at Cherrydale, where the policemen

1 Dies, 6 Missing As Log Raft Hits Piling of Bridge

Thousands Aid Rescue of 48 Others Riding for Sport.

By the Associated Press.

Williamsport, Pa., March 20.—A giant log raft crunched against a bridge pier and broke up in the swift currents of the Susquehanna River today, with a probable death toll of seven. One body was recovered and identified.

Six others still were missing tonight when a checkup was completed of the 48 passengers and crew who boarded the 112-foot log bundle this morning for a revival of the thrills of central Pennsylvania's lumber industry of 50 years ago.

The raft was torn apart by the collision with the Reading Railroad Bridge at Muncy, 13 miles down river shortly after noon. Most of the passengers and seven crewmen were thrown into the chill waters of the swollen river.

Occupants of several boats and canoes which had been following the raft began frantic rescue efforts.

Muncy Valley Hospital authorities identified the dead man as W. C. Van Scoyce, Pennsylvania Railroad accountant from Philadelphia.

Thomas Proffitt, of Chester, a Universal Newsreel cameramen, apparently was drowned. A survivor said he "went down cranking his camera."

Vaccination Foe Fells Girl, Flees From Gallinger

Psychopathic Fugitive Refused to Let Children Be Immunized.

Police last night were searching for Harvey Entz, 38, of 510 Ridge road southeast, who escaped from the psychopathic ward of Gallinger Hospital after attacking and slightly injuring a nurse.

Patients in the ward told police Entz made arrangements for his escape by calling from a window to someone in an automobile parked near the hospital and fled in the car after leaving the building. Police were told Entz attacked Miss Thelma Mann, 25, when she entered the ward on duty, inflicting bruises which required medical attention.

He then opened two locked doors with a bit of wire from a bedspring.

Entz was once involved in a controversy here when he refused to have his three children vaccinated. The children were barred from District public schools.

The wanted man was committed to Gallinger for mental observation March 11 on a warrant obtained by his wife, Mrs. Margaret Entz, charging assault.

40,000 at Zoo, 1,500 on Links Greet Early Arrival of Spring

Spring couldn't wait yesterday.

It broke into Washington several hours ahead of its scheduled appearance, sending thousands of rain-weary persons out on the highways, to tennis courts, golf courses, and especially to the Zoo. Twenty-four persons were injured in traffic accidents in and near the city.

Police at the Zoo estimated attendance figures at more than 40,000 persons, the biggest day since the giraffes arrived.

Attendants at East and West Potomac golf courses reported the heaviest attendance of the year, with more than 1,500 persons playing the two courses. There were players on the West course shortly after 6 a. m. and others kept coming 12 hours later.

Officially it was still winter, and the end was not due until 1:43 a. m. today, according to the Weather Bureau. They said the change of seasons would bring little immediate change in weather conditions.

The forecast for today promised fair weather with mild temperatures and gentle winds from the south and southwest. Officials said the estimated low temperature last night would be 54, the same as yesterday's low recorded at 6 a. m. High temperature yesterday was 74 at 4:30 p. m., and the average for the day was about 14 degrees above normal for this time of year.

Officials at the bureau said there was strong possibility that Washington has seen its last days of freezing temperature, but "we can't be sure."

British Firm Balks Senate Rail Inquiry

Wheeler Fails in Hunt for Stock Owners in Holding Company.

Bahamian Corporation's Trail Lost as Dummy Board Is Listed.

The story of how attempts to determine the exact ownership of a block of stock in the Alleghany Corporation, top holding company of the Van Sweringen railroad interests, were halted by the blank wall of a British Bahama Island paper corporation with a "dummy" board of directors, was made public yesterday by Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

Wheeler's report has just been made part of the record of the committee in its railroad investigation. It reveals that Walter W. Foskett, a West Palm Beach lawyer, acting as agent for the Seaboard Co., Ltd., a Bahama corporation, paid $225,000 cash for the Alleghany securities.

These securities were part of the block acquired in May, 1937 by a syndicate headed by Robert R. Young. The other members of the organization were Young's New York Stock Exchange partner, Frank P. Kolbe, and Allan P. Kirby, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., son of one of the founders of the Woolworth chain. The sale to Foskett was arranged by personal conferences between the attorney and Young.

Ran Against Blank Wall.

But when the committee investigator sought further information he ran against a blank wall. Foskett stated he did not know the names of the officers, directors and stockholders of the Seaboard Co., Ltd., for which he had acted as agent in the transaction.

The attorney further stated, according to the report, that his sole contact with the company was through its Bahamian attorney. He added that the latter had informed him all persons beneficially interested in the company were British subjects, not residing in the United States. Foskett also said the company had authorized him to hold and to manage the securities for it.

Legislator Involved.

Further inquiry disclosed that the Bahamian attorney and organizer of the Seaboard Co., Ltd., was the Hon. Aubrey Kenneth Solomon. He is a member of the House of Assembly, the elective branch of the Bahamian Legislature, leader for the Colonial government in that House, and a member of the executive council of the island colony.

Solomon, the report declared, has been the principal organizer of Bahamian companies in recent years. More than one-fourth of the Bahamian companies formed in

D. C. Prisons Inadequate, Survey Finds

Mixing of All Criminals Held Dangerous in 40,000-Word Report.

Women's Branch Called Firetrap; Workhouse Is 'Too Small.'

District prison facilities which confine in "dangerously overcrowded" buildings a constantly shifting population of inmates whose offenses range from panhandling to murder, are decidedly inferior to those of progressive States and municipalities, according to the most thorough investigation of the District prison system ever unlertaken.

Released today by the Prison Industries Reorganization Administration, the 40,000 word report describes the District Jail as totally inadequate for handling its yearly flow of 17,000 to 20,000 cases.

The report represents a year's research by a five-man commission of penologists and economists, appointed by the Prison Industries Reorganization Administration at the request of the District Commissioners and Board of Public Welfare.

Called Fire Trap.

"The old ramshackle frame buildings" of the Women's Division "would burn like kindling if a fire started," according to the survey, while their proximity to the men's quarters at the Workhouse is objectionable.

The Workhouse is no longer large enough to give the minimum accommodation to prisoners in peak months, the report states, and the reformatory, facing a sharp rise in population ever since 1925, does not possess adequate housing facilities outside the walled unit.

The section of the report made public today points out that, contrary to popular belief, only a small percentage of men and women are transients or recent arrivals in the District.

Calling attention to the extremely high percentage of repeaters among prisoners, the survey states that "a certain group of offenders lives at the jail and the workhouse almost continuously, with only brief intervals of freedom long enough to permit a new offense."

Few First Offenders.

With less than 10 per cent of workhouse commitments first offenders, a number of prisoners have served as many as 50 previous terms, while individuals with records of 100 sentences are not unknown.

Intoxication is responsible for more jail and workhouse sentences than any other offense, and the most persistent repeaters are often alcoholics.

At the Workhouse 39 per cent of the prisoners said they had been unemployed from 7 to 18 months

Two Kidnapers Baptized on Eve Of Hanging Day

Moundsville, W. Va., March 20 (AP).—Two of three doomed kidnapers were baptized today in the fountain at the State Penitentiary while fellow-prisoners peered curiously from barred windows into the brick-paved courtyard.

Arnett A. Booth, 46, and John Travis, 25, were immersed for sacrament by the Rev. F. W. Sigler, Protestant prison chaplain.

Booth, Travis and Orville Adkins, 25, all of Huntington, will be hanged tomorrow night for the fatal abduction last November of Dr. James I. Seder, 79-year-old retired Huntington dry leader and former missionary.

Gov. Holt denied clemency to Travis and Adkins yesterday. Booth made no appeal.

Warden C. M. Stone said all three told him they were "prepared to go."

TVA's Chairman May Get Request To Resign Today

By the United Press.

President Roosevelt was believed ready last night to demand resignation of Charmain Arthur E. Morgan of the Tennessee Valley Authority today if the chairman continues his refusal to submit proof of his charges of malfeasance and bad faith against his two codirectors.

Angered by Morgan's defiance of his personal fact-finding inquiry, the Chief Executive has given the silver-haired chairman until 1:30 p. m. today to answer "yes" or "no" whether he will offer to prove his statements against David E. Lilienthal and Harcourt A. Morgan.

There was no indication last night that Morgan will change his stand. He insists that only a Congressional inquiry can get to the real facts and that the White House conferences do not constitute an investigation.

Belief that Mr. Roosevelt will act quickly to end the feud is heightened by the fact that he leaves tomorrow for a ten-day vacation at Warm Springs, Ga.

Soviet Holding Russian Aides Of U. S. Embassy

Girl Secretary to N. Y. Times Writer Newest Victim; Spy on Americans.

Moscow, March 20.—Miss Valentina Snigirevskaya, secretary to the Moscow correspondent of the New York Times, today was apparently the newest victim of a roundup of Soviet citizens having contact with foreigners.

Plainclothesmen of the secret police, in addition to uniformed policemen, have been patrolling in front of the United States Embassy recently. They questioned all Russians leaving the building.

Miss Snigirevskaya, seized during the recent trial of 21 Soviet leaders, was one of two translators permitted to serve American and English newspapermen.

The 27-year-old daughter of a mechanic, she was without political connections as far as her close acquaintances knew.

Three employes of American concerns have vanished in recent months.

They included:

Roman Biske, legal expert, and several other Russian employes of the United States Embassy. Biske's arrest was reported February 18.

Mme. Tatiana Sofiano, secretary of the Russian-American Chamber of Commerce, who has been under arrest since November 21.

Madeja Radunskaya, translator in the office of International News Service, under arrest since February 14.

Extent of the political purge could be judged by an editorial in the Communist Party newspaper, Pravda, which declared 132,000 clerks in Soviet stores had been arrested and tried on charges of embezzlement and other offenses due to denunciations by overzealous informers.

The government newspaper, Izvestia, urged the victims be "unpurged" and the overzealous informers become purge victims themselves.

Head of Suicide League Dies (In Bed); 2 Members End Lives

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, March 20.—Chuji Egawa, organizer and president of Japan's Suicide Club, died today—of tuberculosis—but even his natural death troubled Tokyo police.

A beautiful young girl and a man immediately committed suicide and three other members of the bizarre "Let's Die League" were missing.

Miss Chise Emai fled from Egawa's bedside as he breathed his last, and slashed her wrists and throat with a tin-can top. She was taken to a hospital by relatives, but died.

Police found Masuo Aoki, in the white ceremonial robe of hara-kiri, tumbled on his face in a nearby warehouse. He had disemboweled himself in the traditional Samural "honor death" of hara-kiri.

The league was organized to "reform" the Nichiren Buddhist sect by acts of violence and self-sacrifice.

Members of it were arrested in July, 1933, when police accused them of planning to kill Japanese leaders and all the priests of the head temple of Nichirenism, but were released for lack of evidence.

Five of Egawa's followers caused a sensation February 17, 1937, when they attempted to commit hara-kiri in front of public buildings because of alleged grievances against the government.

In the demonstration, league members marched through the streets carrying banners which said: "Let's die. We have deserted parents, parted from brothers and sisters, abandoned our wives and children, left homes and sacrificed everything dear to life. Now, let's fight! Now, let's die!"

Surrender Arouses Baltic Peasants; Polish Nationalists See Trouble, Call for Annexation.

BRITAIN, FRANCE BEG FRANCO TO STOP BOMBING CIVILIANS

Thousands in London Shout for Arms for Loyalists; England to Refuse Aid for Czechs.

THE EUROPEAN SITUATION.

Polish troops paraded at the Lithuanian border in celebration of Lithuania's capitulation to Polish demands. Riotous demonstrators continued to demand annexation of Lithuania.

The Lithuanian government was reported ready to resign as result of the nation's surrender to Poland.

Britain and France protested to Insurgent Spain against bombing of civilians. Sixty-one Protestant Bishops appealed to the Catholic hierarchy in the United States to use their influence with Francisco Franco to end the bombings. Dr. Joseph B. Code, of the faculty of the Catholic University of America, declared Americans who support the Loyalist cause in Spain "are dangerous to American ideals," (Page 4). Irwin Laughlin, former United States Ambassador to Spain, decried Godless elements in the Spanish government. The Spanish government claimed its army had stopped the Insurgent offensive, (Page 4).

A spy scare swept France as Premier Blum and his defense and foreign ministers studied the troubled European scene, (Page 3).

Appeal to Franco.

By the Associated Press.

London, March 20.—Great Britain today joined France in protesting to Spanish Insurgent authorities against the concentrated Insurgent air raids on Barcelona.

Informed sources said the British protest to Insurgent authorities at Salamanca pointed out the attacks were contrary to the principles of international law.

While Britain was formally expressing her "horror" at the raids, thousands of demonstrators marched through London's twisting streets in an organized protest against the Barcelona attacks.

The marchers also voiced protest against Britain's attitude in denying arms to Government Spain.

"Chamberlain must go," they chanted in unison.

The paraders moved from a mass meeting at Trafalgar Square to Beremondsey, where they held another meeting in support of dock workers who last week refused to load goods allegedly consigned to Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces.

Meanwhile, official circles in Prague, Czechoslovakia's capital, awaited a declaration expected to be made in the British House of Commons, possibly Wednesday or Thursday, by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain regarding the British attitude toward any act of aggresesion against Czechoslovakia.

Bishops Appeal to Catholics.

New York, March 20 (AP).—Sixty-one bishops of the Methodist and Protestant Episcopal churches in 36 States appealed today to the Catholic heirarchy of the United States to "Bring the might of your influence to bear on Gen. Francisco Franco" to halt bombing of civilians in Spain.

Their document, described as unique in American ecclesiastical history, was made public in the form of an open letter addressed to "the Catholic clergy of the United States."

Warsaw Curbs Riots.

By the Associated Press.

Warsaw, March 20.—Polish troops today paraded peacefully and jubilantly at Wilno, where yesterday they were concentrated for what looked like war with Lithuania.

Tumultuous cheers were accorded the troops who swung through the streets in celebration of Lithuania's capitulation to Polish demands for settlement of their 18-year-old differences.

[The London News-Chronicle was quoted by the United Press as saying in a dispatch from Kovno, Lithuania, that the Lithuanian government was expected to resign today.

[The paper said Lithuania was truculent, the population was downcast, troops were sullen and peasants were furiously demonstrating over the capitulation to Poland.

[It said three German planes flew over Lithuania a few hours before Lithuania accepted Poland's ultimatum Saturday.

Polish-German Drive Seen.

[The German garrison at Tilsit was reinforced, confirming suspicions of Lithuanian government officials that a concerted Polish-German drive was planned in case Lithuania refused the ultimatum, the News-Chronicle added.

[It said it was expected Polish Foreign Minister Josef Beck now would demand that Lithuania collaborate with Estonia, Latvia and Finland in a Baltic bloc instead of looking toward Russia as an ally.—Editor's note.]

In Warsaw more Jews fell under the fists of extreme nationalists who vented their disappointment over what they called too lenient treatment of Lithuania by Poland.

The rioting, however, failed to reach the proportions of yesterday when two persons were killed and more than 100 injured.

Police, strengthened by reinforcements from provincial cities, acted quickly and vigorously to curb the rioters.

Strong detachments of police stationed in side streets and courtyards nipped most attempts by students and others to start trouble.

Fewer than a dozen Jewish shop windows were broken compared to

Slump, Politics Called Bars to World's Peace

Economic Parley's Report Urges Public Education Against Isolation.

There are two mountainous obstructions to world economic cooperation for prosperity and peace, it was stated in a report made public yesterday by the committee of experts of the Conference on World Economic Co-operation, which opens a four-day meeting Wednesday at the Hotel Washington.

The committee of experts, headed by Dr. James T. Shotwell of Columbia University, who also is director of the division of economics and history of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, listed the two chief obstacles as:

It is admitted on all sides that the economic system is working badly, resulting in depression, unemployment and economic injustice, and this leads to pressure for national measures of control that often block international trade and further intensify economic troubles.

The existing state of political insecurity results in constant fears of war, jittery nerves, frantic arming and pressure for national economic preparedness, which in turn prevents economic co-operation and heightens the fear of war.

Ignorance Is Cited.

These two obstacles, it was emphasized, were in addition to the usual obstacles to social progress, namely, ignorance, misunderstanding, inertia, vested interests. Among the recommendations for overcoming them were:

Public opinion in the United States must come to recognize the incompatibility between the economic interdependence of the modern world and political isolationism.

As evidenced by the proposals for a huge naval building program, the United States cannot expect to escape the costly effects of economic and political insecurity in the world. Co-operation to build up and support lawful processes of settling disputes, of bringing about needed changes and of resisting aggression is essential if we are to avoid a choice between military alliances on the one hand and a terrific burden of military and economic armament on the other.

Neutrality Law Criticized.

Any revision of the neutrality law should be extended to cover raw materials with a distinction to be made in crear cases between victims of agression and aggressors.

The United States should announce as its general policy, backed by an appropriate act of Congress, that in the future it will not aid in the consolidation of military conquest by permitting capital to be supplied from this country for the development of territories taken by force in violation of the Kellogg-Briand pact. It should also seek the co-operation of other countries with important capital markets in the application of this policy.

League Proposal Made.

The committee also proposed the establishment of an autonomous organization to take charge of the present economic work of the League of Nations. The new body would be open to membership of nations like the United States, now unwilling to assume the political obligations of the League. The purpose of the organization would be chiefly to promote mutually beneficial trade relations between nations.

John Nevin Sayre, president of the National Peace Conference, will speak at the opening session. Delegates from 41 of the leading peace organizations of the country are expected to attend the conference. The delegates on Friday will call on members of Congress and Government officials to state the views of the united peace forces on behalf of world peace. The conference banquet will be held Thursday night and the closing session Saturday afternoon.

U. S. Lawyer Hurt In Fall From Roof

James Donlan, 37, a Department of Justice attorney, was injured seriously yesterday when he toppled from the roof of his home at 1105 Jefferson street northwest. At Georgetown Hospital Donlan was treated for a fractured right shoulder, a possible fractured skull and internal injuries.

Anderson Is Special Pleader For Business Men's Decisions

J. NELSON ANDERSON.

Federation's General Counsel Holds Fiscal Relations With U. S. and Ballot for D. C. Citizens Capital's Greatest Problems.

By Christine Sadler

When the Federation of Business Men's Associations gets ready to make itself heard on moot questions, J. Nelson Anderson, general counsel, is sent to express its opinions. On Washington's Birthday he was the only Washingtonian who showed up at a Congressional committee hearing, although a number of others were scheduled to appear.

This same consistency is found in the arguments he presents to Congressional committees. He has been telling them for a long time, and often, that the law which establishes a 60-40 ratio in the sharing of District expenses is still on the books and that the amount Congress gives the District falls far short of the 40 per cent set by law.

After a recent hearing in which he repeated this point, the chairman of the Congressional committee asked that steps be taken to repeal the law. "That's a good idea, if they have no intention of living up to it," Anderson declares.

Fights for Suffrage.

Anderson has been general counsel of the federation since it was founded. He was the first general counsel of the Central Business Men's Association, of which he still is a member.

A native of Roanoke, Va., Anderson has lived in Washington most of his life. He is a graduate of George Washington University and has been in private law practice here since 1925. He specializes in income tax practice, which takes him on many quick trips to other cities.

At present he is much interested in the suffrage situation, and at the mass meeting Friday night was placed on the resolutions committee of the District of Columbia Suffrage League to draft a practical plan of giving the ballot to Washington.

Fiscal Problems Biggest.

"It is unconscionable and fundamentally unsound that any American anywhere should be deprived of or prevented from having a voice in affairs of his government," he declares.

The biggest problem the District has to solve, in his opinion, is found in its fiscal relationship with the Federal Government. He sees suffrage as the solution and believes there is a growing sentiment in Congress in favor of giving Washingtonians the vote and letting them see what they can do with their own affairs.

Anderson loves to sing and to make speeches. He has been director of the Y. M. C. A. Glee Club for six years and at one time directed a local church choir. When he had more time for rehearsals he made a strong fourth in quartets. Most of his singing today, however, is of the solo variety. He sang "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" at the Thursday night meeting of the D. C. Democratic League. He was one of the organizers of the league and is its general counsel.

Snapshots His Hobby.

His speech-making varies from a few brief remarks before Rotarians to long addresses before sedate bar associations.

He is secretary of the board of trustees of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church South, where he at one time directed the choir.

Mrs. Anderson is the former Miss Hope Ross, of New Bern, N. C. They live at 2920 Twenty-eighth street northwest and one of their favorite hobbies is making snapshots. Anderson particularly likes to photograph the old Nelson and Anderson "family spots." Since Virginia is liberally sprinkled with them, that is a good-sized assignment. He finds it hard to resist photographing livestock, however, and scattered through his picture collection one finds many horse and pig groups. His dog, too, is one of his most-used subjects.

He is fond of sports. As a spectator, he likes football best. As a participant, he prefers tennis.

Army, Navy to Study Arming Of 2,000,000 Men in 4 Months

By the Associated Press.

Army and Navy officers will study plans here next week, the War Department announced yesterday, to put more than 2,000,000 men under arms within four months of a declaration of war.

Fifty regular, National Guard and Reserve Officers—specialists in personnel procurement—will receive training from March 28 to April 9 for any future "M-Day."

M-Day, in military parlance, is mobilization day.

The session will be part of an enlistment program in preparation since the World War, and has no direct connection with current international tension, officials said.

In the event of war, the Army and National Guard expect to have approximately 375,000 men ready, the Navy a third as many. The Army estimates it would require 1,250,000 recruits in four months, and the Navy 500,000 in a like period.

The first 300,000, under existing plans, would be sought as volunteers in the first month, before selective draft machinery like that of 1917-18 was put into operation.

Already prepared for quick submission to Congress is a draft of a selective service law, officials have disclosed. Regulations have been drafted, and preparations made to print forms in a few days. Militray officers in all States have detailed local plans to co-operate on file here.

Recruiting 300,000 volunteers without delay is the task to which much official attention has been given recently. In April, 1917, only 86,000 volunteers were enrolled, but the Army hopes efforts of local patriotic organizations and other agencies would result in attainment of the larger objective.

The conference will be the third of a series of four scheduled for this fiscal year, and will include officers from 14 Eastern States, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia.

Lauds CCC Training.

Atlanta, March 20 (AP).—The Army figures a youth with six months Civilian Conservation Corps training could be turned into a pretty good soldier in a month in event of war and general mobilization.

Maj. E. O. Sandlin, CCC officer on the staff of Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley of the Fourth Corps Area, voicing the view today, said it would take men of no military experience three months to attain the standard a CCC-trained youth could reach in one.

Maj. Sandlin said that since the beginning of the CCC camps in April, 1933, about 2,500,000 youths have received training in the Nation. The training in the CCC is punctiliously nonmilitary.

Hearst Places His Business in Hands of Aides

Publisher to Retain Active Interest in Editorial End of 'Empire.'

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 20.—T. J. White, chairman of the executive committee of American Newspapers, Inc., announced tonight that William Randolph Hearst has placed "the burdens of business management and business policy" of his vast organization with an executive committee.

The 75-year-old publisher will continue "as active as ever in editorial matters and in advice on general policy," White said.

He described formation of the committee as part of Hearst's plan for perpetuation of his publishing enterprises because "he is conscious of the uncertainties of life."

White said the committee was directing its primary attention to the publication of newspapers and magazines and would follow "a policy of gradual liquidation as to some of the collateral and unrelated investments" in the organization.

He cited the announcement March 2 of pans to dispose of the bulk of Hearst's $15,000,00 art collection, and disclosed that an organization had also been set up to handle the publisher's extensive real estate holdings.

White's Statement.

White's statement follows:

"Mr. Hearst, who in his business career has created an institution now employing over 27,000 people and consisting of 23 newspapers, the American Weekly, and nine magazines in this country, together with three in England, has made provision designed for the perpetuation of this great publishing enterprise.

"Last summer Mr. Hearst decided to place on a more permanent basis a comprehensive plan of management for all of his varied enterprises—newspapers, magazines, art objects, mines, ranches, and real estate.

"Mr. Hearst is 75 years of age. While he is in splendid health and vigor and comes of a long-lived family, he is conscious of the uncertainties of life.

"He therefore decided to place the burdens of business management and business policy on the shoulders of a group of the principal executives who have been associated with him for many years while he will continue as active as ever in editorial matters and in advice on general policy.

"The directors of American Newspapers, Inc., the parent company, last October created an executive committee consisting of T. J. White; H. M. Bitner, general manager of all Hearst newspapers; R. E. Berlin, publisher of all Hearst magazines; J. V. Connolly, executive head of features and radio; Martin F. Huberth, in charge of real estate; F. E. Hagelberg, general auditor in charge of finances, and W. R. Hearst, jr., publisher of the New York Journal and American and representative of the Hearst family.

Retains His Interest.

"To effectuate these purposes, Mr. Hearst asked his friend of many years standing, the Hon. Clarence J. Shearn, a former justice of the appellate division of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to become the voting trustee of his stock in American Newspapers, Inc., the parent and controlling company, under a 10-year voting trust.

Mr. Hearst and his family continue to retain their beneficial interest in this stock. Judge Shearn has accepted this appointment.

"The board, as a matter of general policy, is directing its primary attention to publication of the newspapers and magazines as the most important activities of the entire enterprise. A policy of gradual liquidation as to some of the collateral and unrelated investments will be followed. Mr. Hearst is in full accord with this policy because it will facilitate the handling of his estate.

"A recent announcement was made of the plans to dispose of a portion of the art and antique collection. An organization has also been set up to handle the extensive real estate holdings."

Thomas Charges Hull Talk Shows U. S. Drift to War

By the Associated Press.

Norman Thomas, Socialist Party chairman, said yesterday that Secretary of State Hull's recent statement of foreign policy furnished "another indication of the Administration's drift toward war."

In an open letter to Hull, he set forth these questions:

"How can you explain in terms of justice or reason the rigorous enforcement of what you call neutrality against loyalist Spain, but no enforcement at all of neutrality against the dictators who have wantonly attacked her?

"Do you mean to tell the American people that it is essential to our dignity, our trade, or 'the fundamental principles which must be the foundation of international order' to keep our gunboats on the Yangtze where they never should have been, and to invite a repetition of Panay incidents?

"We do not understand the vehemence of your condemnation of the principle of a referendum before foreign war. Did not your party in 1924 at a convention at which you were an important delegate accept this principle?"

Relief Workers Find Aid Needs Outpace Funds

Standard Shockingly Low in Some Areas, Social Survey Shows.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 20.—A survey of the relief situation in 43 representative areas in 28 States, made public today by the American Association of Social Workers, reveals a marked increase in relief applications and, in general, inadequate means of providing relief.

In a summary of its study, the association found:

Widespread layoffs in industry and drastic pay roll cuts.

Evidence that the WPA program has not been able to absorb all employable needy on relief rolls.

WPA Pay Inadequate.

WPA wages inadequate for large families in some sections.

Periodic relief stoppages in many sections and direct relief allowances "shockingly low" in many areas.

Aliens denied WPA placement or direct relief in some sections.

Available State and local funds for direct relief exhausted in many sections.

Malnutrition commonly reported among relief families throughout the country.

Little or no care available in many sections for transients.

Eligibility rules for relief being made more rigid.

Children kept home from school because of lack of clothing or to forage for wood.

Monthly food allowances in some sections as low as $11.90 for a family of four, although the Department of Agriculture fixes the amount for a restricted emergency diet at $26.55.

Food Issues Sole Aid.

Low-paid jobs in private industry forcing full-time workers to seek supplemental aid.

Federal surplus commodities, intended as a supplement to relief, being issued in place of relief in sections of the South.

The survey was based on published reports of Federal, State and local relief and assistance administrations and reports from the association's correspondence.

Relief Costs Growing.

By the Associated Press.

Public relief costs for the Nation in January continued an upward trend which started three months earlier, the Social Security Board reported yesterday.

The January total for Federal, State, and local governments was $207,000,000, an increase of $15,500,000 over December. The total included the cost of work relief, old-age assistance, the CCC, relief grants by the Farm Security Administration and general relief grants.

'Educator' Seized For Mail Threats To the Roosevelts

New York, March 20 (AP).—Lester David O'Dell, 35, self-styled "educator," was held in $5,000 bail today on charges of sending annoying and threatening letters to President Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt and several Cabinet members.

Secret Service operatives arrested O'Dell following a series of letters to the White House accusing President Roosevelt of using Federal agents to "murder" him.

F. W. Morris, a Secret Service agent, said the letters made false charges against Cabinet members, including Postmaster General James A. Farley, and so annoyed the President he turned them over to the Secret Service for investigation.

The defendant, a spectacled, smooth-spoken individual, described by Magistrate Irving Ben Cooper as "cunning and vicious to the extreme," was said by Federal agents to have been arrested in 1929 in Washington, D. C., for masquerading as a clergyman.

Lester David O'Dell was arrested here in July, 1929, when he attempted to gain an audience with President Hoover. He was sent to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation at that time.

U. S. Ownership Of Rails Balked At by Roosevelt

Past Opinion Is Cited as Indication He Prefers Other Remedies.

By the Associated Press.

A capsule compounded for the railroad ills five and a half years ago, and laid aside, was looked upon yesterday with renewed interest in the Capital.

It was wrapped up in 23 words in mid-September of 1932 by Franklin D. Roosevelt in Salt Lake City, Utah. Mr. Roosevelt put it like this:

"Avoid financial excesses; adjust plant to traffic; protect the workers; co-ordinate all carrier service; above all, serve the public reasonably, swiftly and well."

Mr. Roosevelt had outlined seven specific remedies. They dealt with receiverships, motor carriers, competition, consolidations, holding companies, Federal financial aid, and wage maintenance.

Some of the things have been done since; others have been crowded back.

Two factors, however, have sharply whetted official interests in recent weeks; both car loadings and railroad employment figures have been sliding.

Rules Relaxed ForRockefeller Donations' Use

Recipients Given Wide Discretion to Spend for New Purposes.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 20.—The Rockefeller Foundation and the general education board today announced adoption of a liberalizing policy to permit recipients of gifts to endowment funds to have wide discretion in their uses.

At the same time the Foundation, created by the late John D. Rockefeller, disclosed its appropriations and authorizations in 1937 totaled roughtly $5,000,000.

"These liberalizing provisions," said a preliminary report, written by Raymond B. Fosdick, president of the Foundation, "represent an attempt to free the future from frozen funds and 'tired' endowments, in the belief that the wisdom of this generation cannot be substituted for the wisdom of the next in the solution of problems hidden from our eyes.

"The endowments affected by these provisions amount to $51,000,000 given to date by the Rockefeller Foundation, and $148,000,000 given by the general education board."

Under a resolution passed by both boards in 1937, notification has been sent to each recipient that:

"The notification contains the provisions outlined in general terms in the three succeeding paragraphs:

"(1) Ten years after the date of the gift, the income from it may be used in whole or in part for some purpose other than that for which the gift was made, such purpose to be as reasonably related to the original purpose as may be found practicable at the time, having regard to intervening changing conditions.

"(2) Beginning five years after the date of the gift, 5 per cent of the principal of the fund may be used each year for any purpose for which income may then be used.

"(3) After the expiration of 25 years, any part or the whole of the principal may be used for some other purpose, the new purpose—as in point one—to be as reasonably related to the original purpose as may be found practicable at the time, having regard to intervening changing conditions."

Washington Air Traffic.

American Airlines, Inc., in Washington handled 107.8 per cent more passengers during February, compared to the same month of last year, according to Herbert D. Ford, district sales manager.

France Arrests 5 Men, Beauty In 'Spy Fever'

Sale of Military Secrets Charged; Blum Sees Defense Minister.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, March 20.—Spy fever struck France today while Premier Leon Blum held an extraordinary Sunday conference with his ministers of defense and foreign affairs.

Four men and a woman known as "beautiful Tatiana" were arrested on charges of trying to deliver French fortification and mobilization plans for the Italian frontier to a "foreign power."

A German was arrested at La Rochelle and charged with photographing naval works at that port, apparently not in connection with the "beautiful Tatiana" case.

Blum conferred with Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour and Defense Minister Edouard Daladier regarding the general European situation.

At Blois, former Premier Camille Chautemps called on France to form a national union government in face of "the imperious necessity of reorganizing the nation's finances" to prepare for "triumph" over international difficulties.

The new outbreak of spy fever resulted from what police said was the confession of Jean Battide, a 23-year-old French soldier, Battide, they said, admitted offering for sale mobilization plans for the French-Italian border.

This led to the arrest of Marcel Outtry, 25, a member of Battide's regiment who, investigators declared, confessed making copies of the plans while working as secretary for general staff officers.

Piecing together the testimony of the two, police said they were led to arrest a 23-year-old Frenchwoman, Yvonne Talbot, also known as Tatiana Vassilief—"Beautiful Tatiana."

The authorities said she implicated a 30-year-old Persian named Amirian. They declared she had confessed recruiting agents for Amirian whom they described as in the employ of a "foreign power."

The fourth man arrested as a member of the ring, Jean Lombressot, 30, was accused of delivering fortification plans to agents of the "foreign" power at Irun, in insurgent Spain.

the hundreds smashed yesterday.

The provinces also were reported comparatively quiet.

M. W. Blake, United States vice consul, was among the victims of Saturday's riots.

He was bombarded with eggs and bottles while standing on the consulate balcony opposite the Postal Savings Bank, but was uninjured.

The missiles were not aimed at Blake, but at the floor above, which houses the Jewish joint distribution committee, members of which were standing on their balcony.

Editorial comments in Polish newspapers on the peaceful turn of events showed sentiment divided.

Progovernment organs expressed satisfaction at the settlement, but newspapers of the nationalist opposition voiced disappointment.

Poland, in the opinion of the latter, will find the settlement looks all right on paper, but won't work in practice.

They predicted Lithuania would fulfill the letter but not the spirit of the Polish ultimatum terms.

Besides reopening the border, these terms included the restoration of diplomatic relations.

Rioters Ask War.

Warsaw, March 20 (U.P.).—Riotous demonstrators today clamored for "annexation of Lithuania!" and protested against Saturday's peaceful settlement of Poland's 48-hour ultimatum to Kovno.

Police arrested 435 persons. Most of them were radical nationalists.

Polish nationalists contend the agreement of Saturday was "wholly unsatisfactory" because Wilno—seized by Poland in 1920—was not formally recognized as a Polish city.

The rightist newspaper Dziennil Narodoky complained bitterly today that Poland obtained virtually nothing by Lithuania's capitulation and that the Warsaw government should have proceeded to force a Polish-Lithuanian union.

This demand was echoed by the extremists who rioted in the streets tonight, demanding military mobilization and a march on Kovno. The settlement of the 18-year-old dispute, the demonstrators shouted, was humiliating to Poland rather than to Lithuania.

Czechs Can Slow Up Foe, Survey Finds

By the Associated Press.

Czechoslovakia can offer "stanch resistance" if Germany attempts invasion, the Foreign Policy Association said yesterday.

A report issued by the private research organization added:

"Czechoslovakia's minature Maginot line of fortifications and devices blocking every main road leading to Germany, coupled with its efficient armament plants—Skoda, Vitkovice and Brno—and trained fighting forces make the republic the leading military power of the Little Entente."

On the other hand, the association said the shape and geographical location of Czechoslovakia made difficult the task of defense.

"The capital, Prague, is less than two hours' distance by plane from the frontier," the report said. "With dissatisfied German, Hungarian and Polish minorities ready to help invading armies, Czechoslovakia is in a vulnerable position since it could be pinched in two at its weakest and narrowest points in Moravia and Slovakia."

Liner Berengaria, Plagued by Fires, To Leave Service

London, March 20 (AP).—The 52,000-ton British passenger liner Berengaria, which suffered three mysterious fires in the last five weeks, was withdrawn from the transatlantic service today by the Cunard-White Star Line.

The first fire broke out February 14 when the ship was in port at Southampton. The second fire swept her first-class lounge when the liner was docked in New York. A third fire was discovered last Wednesday when she was in her Southampton berth. She had just arrived from New York, without passengers because of the fire in New York.

The Berengaria was built at Hamburg in 1912 for the Hamburg-American Line and was originally named the Imperator. After the World War she was handed over to Britain as part of Germany's reparations.

Bulgaria's War Premier Dies As Crowd Cheers His Speech

Alexander Malinoff Stricken at Sofia at Close of Spirited Election Appeal; Signed Armistice for His Country in 1918.

By the Associated Press.

Sofia, Bulgaria, March 20.—Alexander Malinoff, former premier, died today while being applauded by crowds after a spirited election campaign address.

Malinoff, who was born in 1867, was premier from 1908 to 1911, again in 1918, and premier and foreign minister in a coalition government from June to October, 1931.

He was leader of the Democratic party from 1900 to 1932.

Malinoff served his second term as premier during the World War, taking office June 18, 1918. When the Bulgarian line was broken and the country invaded, he asked for an armistice which he signed September 26, 1918.

Bulgaria had entered the conflict by declaring war on Serbia and in turn drew declarations of war from France and Great Britain.

King Ferdinand abdicated October 3, 1918, in favor of his son, Boris, to whom Malinoff gave the crown.

By the treaty of Neuilly, Bulgaria was disarmed and ordered to pay a heavy indemnity. She lost the southern Dobruja to Rumania. Malinoff resigned to protest against Rumanian occupation.

In his last term in office, in 1931, Malinoff resigned because of ill health.

Revenge Taken Upon Socialists In New Austria

Vienna, March 20 (U.P.).—Austria's new Nazi rulers tonight opened a campaign of revenge against Socialists who played leading roles in the bloody Vienna civil war of February, 1934.

Maj. Alexander Eifler, Socialist chief of staff in the civil war, and Frau Marie Deutsch-Kramer, wife of Julius Deutsch, who was commander of the Socialists, were arrested. Deutsch escaped across the frontier after the Socialist general strike collapsed.

Meanwhile, Edward Heink, minister of commerce in the old Austrian government, was revealed to be under arrest. All non-Nazi members of the last cabinet of Kurt Schuschnigg now are under Nazi "protective" custody with exception of Guido Zernatto, Schuschnigg's deputy leader of the Fatherland Front, who escaped into Czechoslovakia.

Ambulance Right To Siren Studied

The District corporation counsel's office today will be asked to decide whether private ambulances may legally use their sirens to take right of way at stop lights and signs.

Motorcycle Patrolman Anthony Richett, of the Traffic Bureau, said he would present facts in a case involving an ambulance owned by the W. W. Chambers Co., which he stopped at Thomas Circle yesterday. He said the driver, John M. Jones, was responding to an emergency call at the Agriculture Department.

No charge was placed against Jones, pending review of the case by an assistant corporation counsel.

Girl Injured as Horse Falls at Park Hurdle

Nineteen-year-old Ernestine Williams, 1308 Columbia road northwest, was seriously injured yesterday when a horse stumbled at a hurdle in Potomac Park, throwing her to the ground. She was treated at Garfield Hospital for a fractured sacrum and admitted for further observation. Her condition was described as fair.

Daniels Finds Mexican Public For Oil Seizure

Unions Take Over All Foreign Firms as 'Trustees.'

By the Associated Press.

Mexico City, March 20.—United States Ambassador Josephus Daniels today asserted "my information is that the majority of Mexicans are with President Cardenas" backing expropriation of the $400,000,000 foreign-owned oil industry.

The United States envoy indicated American and other foreign companies would have to exhaust all legal appeal steps before they could expect diplomatic support in fighting expropriation.

Daniels discussed President Cardenas' Friday decree while oil workers took over the industry as "trustees" for the government.

He disclosed that oil men had expected "the appointment of intervenors or receivers" instead of the drastic expropriation step which he said had caused "a bad effect on American business here generally."

Although formal notification of President Lazaro Cardenas' decree of expropriation yet had to be made, union leaders lost no time in ousting officials of the 17 American, British and other companies and taking their places.

"Provisional councils of administration" were formed by 31 locals of the oil workers syndicate to keep the industry moving.

A threatened general strike of the country's 70,000 miners apparently had been averted by the government's appeal to labor to avoid conflict with employers.

The strike threat came as an outgrowth of the American Smelting and Refining Company's difficulties with its 19,000 men.

The difficulties had led to speculation whether Cardenas' next move might be to expropriate the foreign-operated mining industry.

Reports reaching the capital said the oil industry change-over generally was effected peacefully.

Company officials, denied access to their offices, after syndicate men took charge yesterday, were expected to launch an attack on the constitutionality of expropriation.

Reich Calm, Hitler Oils His Machine For Austrian Vote

Berlin, March 20 (AP).—Calm settled today over greater Germany after a feverish week which saw Austria become a Nazi province.

German officials were occupied in oiling the machinery for the April 10 plebiscite on Austrian-German union and in aligning Austrian interests with those of the fatherland.

It was announced Reichfuehrer Adolf Hitler had appointed Wilhelm Keppler, economic adviser and his go-between with the Austrian government in the critical hours before its capitulation, as state secretary for special assignment in the foreign office.

As his first task he will act as special commissioner in Austria.

Japanese Push Nearer Suchow In 7-Day Drive

Troops Capture Hanchwang 27 Miles North of Vital Goal.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Monday), March 21.—A sanguinary hand-to-hand struggle, in which Japanese troops were reported to have captured Hanchwang, today carried the southbound invasion along the Tientsin-Pukow Railway to the southern limits of Shantung Province, 27 miles north of Suchow.

This fierce offensive, going into its seventh day, was directed at Suchow, vital rail center of the central front, conquest of which might turn the Chinese flank and link conquered North China with Japanese-dominated territory in the Yangtze Valley.

Chinese and Japanese casualty reports indicated 30,000 soldiers had been killed on both sides during the one-week drive.

The Japanese asserted their foe had abandoned 7,000 bodies in last week's retreat from Linching, north of Hanchwang.

The Chinese at the same time reported two heavy flanking attacks against the invaders—one directed at the Tientsin-Pukow line in the Tsining area and the other in the Chuhsien and Lini sectors, both along the railway in Shantung Province.

In the latter sector the Chinese said heavy casualties were inflicted on two divisions with "Japanese corpses piled up in heaps" after the assault. The Chinese said the divisions were forced into retreat northward.

Suchow was bombed twice by Japanese planes to prepare for land assaults.

Conference Is Called By Scandian Ministers

Oslo, Norway, March 20 (AP).—Scandinavian foreign ministers will meet in Oslo April 5 and 6 to review Europe's troubled relations as they affect the northern nations.

Observers discounted any possibility of an attempt to form a Scandinavian military alliance since previous Swedish suggestions along that line were turned down definitely by Premier Thovald Stauning of Denmark.

Britain, France Protest Raids On Barcelona

London

Episcopal Church, headed the list of signers.

In issuing the statement, the Rev. Robert L. Paddock, chairman of the American Friends of Spanish Democracy, said the American Catholic heirarchy indorsed the pastoral letter of the Spanish bishop's espousing Franco's cause in the Iberian conflict and that spokesmen of the Catholic Church in this country have openly defended the cause of the insurgent general.

"We realize that the Catholic hierarchy in this country has, for reasons which seem good to it, chosen to defend the Franco cause," the statement said. "It is for this very reason, knowing that word from you would carry weight and force, that we call upon you to act . . . to persuade him and his Nazi and Fascist allies to cease the hideous bombing of cities that, like Barcelona, are by every rule of war civilian and noncombatant."

"We are sure that you, as men of God and followers of our most compassionate Saviour, do not share the expressed view of a man who, claiming to be your spokesman, says with a callousness incredible in one of his calling, that 'the day of the noncombatant has vanished.'

"We are equally certain that you do not agree with the public statement of a once-loved editor that cities "will not in any war be respected.' There is no reason nor logic, whether military or humane, why you should. American Army strategists announced a month ago that in the event of war American military airplanes will not bomb civilian populations. Not, they add, for humanitarian reasons, but because the game 'is not worth the candle.'"

(Executives of the American Friends for Spanish Democracy said the "spokesman" referred to was Prof. Joseph F. Thorning, of Mount St. Mary's College, at Emmitsburg, Md., a frequent radio speaker on the Spanish situation, and the editor was Ellery Sedgwick, of the Atlantic Monthly, who toured insurgent Spain at the invitation of Gen. Franco.)

Loyalists Check Franco.

By the Associated Press.

Madrid, March 20.—Government military authorities today reported their reinforced army finally had halted the insurgent war machine southeast of Alcaniz, on the Aragon front of eastern Spain.

The point is about 45 miles from the Mediterranean, the insurgents' objective, and is the tip of a wide angle wedge Gen. Franco's troops have driven in an effort to sever military Spain.

A military communique said heavy day-long fighting engaged the opposing forces, but that the insurgents failed to take the village of Torreveilla, their immediate objective.

"The attack was launched at daybreak from Codonera, which the insurgents took yesterday, but the enemy met an extremely stubborn foe in the trenches along the mountains which they were unable to dislodge, despite the lavish use of aviation," the government dispatch said.

Barcelona dispatches said the two days and a half of battle between insurgent forces and the ill-fated defenders of Caspe last week had enabled Barcelona troops to complete a new defensive line based on Gandesa, Valderrobres and Morella.

Planes Move with Army.

Thus the defenders were strung out along a 50-mile front paralleling the coastline at their backs, subject to aerial attacks from both front and rear.

Fighting planes based on temporary fields near Montalban and Hijar moved with Franco's land forces, strafing government positions and watching for concentrations on the flanks of the relentless offensive.

Insurgent strategists were in constant radio communication with Mallorca, the Balearic Island air base out in the Mediterranean.

Large bombing planes left there on systematic raids against rearguard government bases along the coast in Tarragona and Castellon provinces.

Barcelona, March 20 (AP).—The known dead from the Insurgent's wholesale air raids on Barcelona reached 815 today as alert Government patrol planes headed off resumption of the merciless attacks.

Ruins of bombed buildings yielded 145 bodies. Previously, 670 dead had been counted from the raids which started Wednesday and kept up for two days and nights.

Rescue workers continued digging day and night for additional bodies. Some estimates placed the dead as high as 1,300. The wounded numbered more than 2,000.

Though Barcelona was spared, insurgent planes bombed the seaboard towns of Tarragona and Reus, about 35 miles down the coast from Barcelona, killing eight persons and wounding 35.

Britain to Refuse Aid.

London, March 20 (U.P.).—Great Britain's conservative government will announce publicly this week that it cannot guarantee Czechoslovakia against aggression and will refuse to make any other Central European commitments, it was understood tonight.

It was understood the cabinet decided in principle not to commit Britain to Czech defense because it felt the Franco-Russian guarantee is already adequate, that British dominions would resent such a pledge, Britain has no vital interests involved and war should be avoided at this time.

7 Hurt as Sight-seeing Plane Falls Taking Off

Dublin, Ga., March 20 (AP).—A large passenger plane crashed into a field near the Dublin Airport today, injuring its seven occupants. Pilot Frank Rogers, of Augusta, was taken to a hospital. The other six received cuts and bruises.

The crash occurred as the plane rose from the airport, brushed the tops of several trees and plunged into a nearby field. Rogers had started a sight-seeing trip around the city.

Catholic Apathy on Spanish War Assailed at Mount St. Mary's

By the Associated Press.

Emmitsburg, Md., March 20.—Greater interest among Catholics in international affairs was urged today by Dr. Joseph B. Code, of the faculty of the Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C., in an address at Mount St. Mary's College.

"It is disturbing, to say the least," he said, "to see so little active interest among American Catholics in what is going on in Spain. It is even more disturbing to find them so little informed when it is their duty as intelligent men and women to be aware of what has been going on in Spain in the last 19 months, and it is positively shocking to see some of them allowing their apathy and ignorance to carry them into absurdities of speech when the subject is being discussed."

He declared that the fight in Spain "is not between communism and fascism, nor between fascism and democracy, but between atheism and Christianity," and asserted that "those in America who are supporting the loyalist cause are dangerous to American ideas and ideals of democracy since they are in favor of a regime that has denied religious liberty to thousands of Spanish citizens for over 19 months.

"We should not be content with defensive tactics for the cause of American democracy as well as religious liberty is at stake. We should expose the American propaganda agencies of the Madrid government for so subtle and effective have been their methods of propaganda that the average American thinks unless he is against Gen. Franco he is a Fascist or that he no longer values the principles of liberty upon which the Nation rests."

190 D. C. Blind Get $7,600 Federal Aid

One hundred ninety local blind persons will receive Federal aid in the next three months under a grant approved by the Social Security Board, it was announced yesterday. The District of Columbia was alloted $7,592.55 for assistance of sightless residents.

A total of more than $6,000,000 has been granted for aid to the blind, dependent children and aged persons for next quarter in eight States and the District. The probable number of recipients in each State is based on reports of previous months.

Conference Held At Miner College

A regional conference on problems of the vocational and secondary schools was held Saturday at the Miner Teachers College, guidance needs of the adolescent furnishing the basis for discussion by 15 panels, and an address by Dr. Goodwin Watson, professor of education at Columbia University, on "Guiding Youth in Relation to Social Change."

Dr. G. C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent in charge of colored schools, presided at the morning session of the conference, where greetings were extended by Dr. F. W. Ballou, superintendent.

24 Are Injured By Traffic in Area of Capital

Woman Has Concussion; 10 Hurt in One Collision in Virginia.

Twenty-four persons were injured yesterday and last night in traffic accidents in Washington and in nearby Virginia and Maryland.

Mrs. Marian Eubank, of 3027 Dent place northwest, suffered a brain cnocussion and possible rib fractures when the automobile driven by her son, Giles Eubank, jr., 22, collided with another at Thirtieth and O streets northwest last night. Giles Eubank, sr., her husband, was shaken up. At Georgetown Hospital Mrs. Eubank's condition was undetermined.

William Cradle, 28, colored, of 2708 Olive avenue northwest, was injured seriously when the automobile he was driving crashed into a light pole on River road near the B. & O. crossing at Bethesda, Md. He was treated at Georgetown Hospital for concussion of the brain and cuts and bruises.

Collision between an automobile and a truck on the Southern Maryland Pike near Leonardtown, Md., early last night put Miss Ruby Smith, 18, of Greenock, Md., in Emergency Hospital at Annapolis, with severe lacerations. John W. Burroughs, 25, of Upper Marlboro, Md., and Wendell Cox, 26, driver of the truck escaped serious injury. State police charged both with reckless driving.

Ten persons were injured, three of them seriously, in a head-on collision on the Lee-Jackson highway at Accotink Run between Annandale and Fairfax, Va., Both cars were demolished. Most seriously injured were W. A. Wright, 45, driver of one car, Miss Rosalie Howard, 17, and Frank Horton, 19, two of six passengers in Wright's car. All are residents of Alexandria and were taken to the hospital there.

Seven-year-old William L. Phillips, of 3850 Macomb street northwest, suffered a leg fracture when he was struck by a car which leaped the curb and ran into the lawn of Billy's home.

Miss Hallie N. J. Hoffman, 23, 3200 Sixteenth street northwest, a student driver, was charged with operating with no District permit and reckless driving. Witnesses said the woman swerved her machine to avoid striking a dog.

Billy was taken to Emergency Hospital for treatment. His condition was not serious.

Four young people were brought to Georgetown Hospital after a collision on the Lee Highway near Falls Church.

Dorothy Weatherholtz, 15, of Manassas, was treated for fractured ribs; Edith Curdle, 19, also of Manassas, suffered a pelvis fracture and cuts; Irvin Wheeler, 24, of McLean, Va., larcerations, and Hilton Wilkerson, 18, East Falls Church, cuts on his head and face. Doctors said none of the injuries appeared serious.

Adam J. Iler, 27, a private attached to the Marine Barracks, Eighth and I streets southeast, received a possible skull fracture and concussion, when he was knocked down at Eleventh and G streets southeast. Police said the automobile was operated by Melville I. Quirk, 27, 431 Eleventh street northeast.

Samuel Riley, 1320 Emerson street northwest, was charged with driving while drunk yesterday after an accident at Georgia avenue and Gresham place northwest. Police reports said Riley's car struck a pedestrian who was boarding a bus.

Robert Praylor, 50, of 517 Harvard street northwest, the pedestrian, was treated at Freedman's Hospital for brush burns and bruises.

Injured in the collision at Accotink, beside Wright, Horton and Miss Howard, were Hazel P. Ohler, Alexandria, R. S. Buckner and his wife, of Bailey's Crossroads, and Mrs. W. A. Wright, wife of the driver of the car. They suffered cuts.

Horace Sell, Annandale, driver of the other car, William Adkins, also of Annandale, and James House, Alexandria, also suffered cuts.

'Ghost' Who Jerked Bed Covers Routed by Farmer's Flour Trap

Mysterious Visitor Apparently Leaves House of Illinois Man as Powder Lure Is Found Undisturbed; All Is Peace Once More in Home.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 20.—The mysterious visitor John Huber says has been filching garments and disturbing the covers of his bed has apparently departed from Huber's home near suburban Blue Island.

At any rate he reported today that flour he sprinkled around his bed last night in an attempt to get a line on the mystery remained undisturbed, and all was peace in the Huber home.

Huber used the flour at the suggestion of Deputy Sheriffs John Carey and Bernard Smuczyski, assigned by the county highway police as a "ghost detail" to help him find out why it was that every time his bed was made up, someone or something would disarrange the covers as soon as the room was left vacant. After a couple of days of that sort of thing his daughters, Dorothy, 19, and Loretta, 27, packed up and left.

There was mention of ghosts, and Huber recalled that when workmen dug his basement ten years ago they uncovered the skeletons of five Indians. He gave them away and thought no more of the skeletons until the blankets began to act so queerly.

Mrs. Huber's father, 85-year-old Golbert Rutz, wasn't satisfied with the Indian story. Only one ghost, he said, could have been interested in his fur cap, which was found yesterday in the hen coop after being missing for three days.

"Maybe," he said, "it was Daniel Boone."

Samuel Millhouser Dies; Was Retired Parks Patrolman

Samuel Millhouser, 57, retired member of the park police force, died Saturday at Mount Alto Hospital.

Mr. Millhouser served in the park police for 19 years. He retired in June last year for disability incurred in line of duty, and was awarded a badge of honor. Born in Fredericksburg, Va., Mr. Millhouser served in the Marine Corps for 11 years until 1914.

He was a member of Columbia Lodge of Masons and Elm Camp, Woodmen of the World. He lived at 2311 Wisconsin avenue northwest.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Anna D. Millhouser, of Washington; and a brother, David Millhouser, of Baltimore, Md.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in Sergeon's funeral home, 1011 Seventh street northwest. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

2 D. C. Detectives Make Double Play On 3 Auto Thieves

A 19-year-old automobile thief in a stolen car made the mistake of passing two detectives yesterday. And the incident marked up a doubleplay for the policemen.

Detective Sergt. Joseph Sincovitz and Detective John Curtis were returning from Alexandria, Va., with two 16-year-old boys who were stopped in the Virginia city on suspicion. Alexandria police learned the boys had run away from their homes here and were going to St. Louis in a stolen car.

They were being returned here by the detectives when at Sixth and F streets northwest, a car bearing the license of one reported stolen passed the police machine.

A short chase brought the car to a stop and the youth was taken into custody with the others. All were held for investigation until police determine whether any other cars can be chalked up to the credit of any of the trio.

2 Companeis Plan Atlantic Airlines For This Summer

Plans for establishment of a trans-Atlantic airplane service this summer or fall by two companies were reported last night in aviation circles here to be nearing completion. The companies are Pan American Airways and a subsidiary of the American Export Ssteamship Company.

It has not yet been determined though, it was said, whether the companies can complete arrangements to use British, Portuguese or Spanish landing fields. Pan American, it is understood will use the great circle route from New Foundland to Southampton. American Export is said to be willing to try the longer trans-Atlantic southern route.

Dr. Thomas Crisp Dies Unexpectedly

Dr. Thomas Benton Crisp, 45, of 800 E street northeast, died of a cerebral hemorrhage at Walter Reed Hospital last night, a few hours after collapsing on the golf course of Columbia Country Club.

Born in Washington, January 13, 1893, he was the son of Thomas Benton and Elizabeth Crisp. He was educated in the public schools of the District and was graduated in pharmacy at George Washington University before entering upon the study of medicine. He was graduated in medicine at George Washington in 1919 and has practiced here since.

Dr. Crisp was a member of Columbia Country Club, the District of Columbia Medical Society and Parker Lodge of Masons.

Surviving are his mother, his wife, three sons, Donald, Robert and Thomas B. Crisp, jr.; two daughters, Joyce and Gail Crisp; a brother, Dr. Edwin S. Crisp, and two sisters, Mrs. Edmund Mallet and Mrs. Dorothy Hanson.

Rites Will Honor Slavko Grouitch

The first anniversary of the death of Slavko Grouitch, one-time Serbian Minister to the United States, will be observed at a public prayer and thanksgiving service to be held in the Chapel of St. Joseph of Arimathea, in the crypt of Washington Cathedral, at noon Wednesday.

Mme. Grouitch and other members of the family, as well as representatives of the Diplomatic Corps, will attend the services, at which the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will officiate. The Cathedral Choristers will sing.

Mr. Grouitch, who died in London while serving as Yugoslav Minister to the Court of St. James, represented his country in the United States from 1919 to 1922. He was the first Minister to Washington from the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes.

Chest Stiffening Blamed in Failure Of Aging Athletes

Dr. Walter B. Cannon, of the Harvard Medical School, said last night that athletes slow down not because their legs give out but because their chests lose flexibility.

Dr. Cannon, at a meeting of the District Chapter of the Pan-American Medical Association, explained that stiffening of the chest prevents the athlete from taking in the amount of oxygen needed for peak performance.

He said studies through a period of years showed that more people are living past the age of 60 than ever before.

Dr. Lee Hurd, trustee of the association, gave an illustrated lecture on modern methods of treating sinus ailment and demonstrated several instruments. Dr. Joseph J. Eller, director general of the association, reported on a recent medical congress in Cuba.

The meeting was held at Glenview Farm, Rickville, Md., home of Dr. James A. Lyon, trustee of the association. Senor F. Castillo Najera, Ambassador from Mexico and president of the Washington chapter, presided.

Va. Police Kill D. C. Man After 4-Mile Chase

Falls Church Pair Fires as Driver Tries to 'Run Them Down.'

Shoot

overtook the car and forced it to a halt.

Daniel quoted the officers as saying that when they walked back to Daugherty's car to question him, he suddenly threw his vehicle into gear and headed directly toward them. Jumping out of the way, the officers fired six shots at the car as it passed. One of the four bullets which hit the machine crashed through the right rear window and struck Daugherty, who was alone. The car plunged into a hedge, careened across the property of Samuel Hull, 4350 Lee highway, and finally hit a stump 100 yards from the thoroughfare.

Fired at Tires.

Police said the officers fired at the tires, but missed their footing as they jumped into the hedge. Daniel declared that "my investigation indicates the two men fired in self-defense." He said that Scheid had shot five times and Knox once.

The officers called the Clarendon rescue squad, which took Daugherty to Georgetown Hospital. They then handed themselves over to A. D. Langley, of the Arlington County police. Bond of $1,000 each was set for the two men. It was said last night that the hearing would probably be held "not before Wednesday." Coroner W. C. Welburn performed the autopsy yesterday.

Daugherty is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lillian Daugherty, who will be represented at the hearing by former Commonwealth Attorney William C. Gloth, of Arlington County.

"I blame the town authorities more than the two young policemen," Gloth asserted. "It's an outrage that these boys in their twenties should be turned loose with such authority. They lost their heads, and the result has been a taking of human life."

Gloth added that "Daugherty's name ought to be cleared."

Commonwealth Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas declared yesterday that "if there's sufficient evidence at the hearing, I'll prosecute this case to the limit." According to Sheriff Howard B. Fields, of Arlington County, "Police officers have no legal right to shoot at a car, even if they think it's stolen." Police said yesterday that the officers had intended to charge Daugherty with speeding and reckless driving.

A relative of the victim, Mrs. Thomas Wallis, of Arlington, stated that Daugherty was "a little deaf."

Police said they had reports that two boys had witnessed the shooting, but they had been unable to locate them. It was also stated that "a blonde woman" had driven by the scene at the time. Her whereabouts also were unknown.

Find Woman Witness.

John Hager, of Cherrydale, told The Post last night he rushed to the scene of the shooting and there talked to a woman whom he described as "blonde about 45 years old, and wearing glasses."

Hager stated the woman, whose name he did not know, told him she was driving on the Lee Highway toward Washington "at a moderate rate of speed," behind Daugherty's car, which was, she said, "traveling at the same speed."

On reaching a curve a few hundred feet from the scene of the shooting, the woman said, according to Hager, that "a car passed me without lights and without sounding siren or horn. It crowded me off the road, passed Daugherty's car and stopped." Hager said the woman told him two men got out, and as Daugherty's car came abreast of it, she heard shots ring out.

Daugherty, who was a well-known Washington accordionist, served at one time in the United States Navy. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at C. J. Ives funeral chapel, Clarendon. The Rev. Charles D. Sparks, rector of Epiphany Episcopal Church, Cherrydale, will officiate. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery. Lodge No. 1315, Loyal Order of Moose, of which Daugherty was a member, will conduct services at the grave.

Daugherty also belonged to Baltimore Lodge, No. 10, Loyal Order of Moose.

"Junior" was Cliff Thompson, of Waupaca, Wis., 406 pounds in weight and 8 feet 7 inches tall. He ate a dozen he-man portions of baked beans, mulligan stew, potatoes, raisin pie and tea for an entree, and then called for the main meal.

Baby Bonds to Stay, Says Morgenthau

By the United Press.

Government "baby bonds" probably will become as permanent a fixture as the Treasury which issues them, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., indicated yesterday.

In a letter to Ramsey S. Black, third assistant postmaster general, Morgenthau denied reports the savings bonds would be discontinued either on April 1 or on the close of the fiscal year. He said more than 1,250,000 citizens hold these bonds as "treasured possessions" and explained they are not designed to meet the Government's current needs for funds, but to furnish a type of Government security to investors.

Bellefonte, Pa., (Monday), March 21 (AP).—Martin Sullivan, 74, confessed slayer of five persons in a tour of "revenge" at Duquesne, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburgh, died early today in Pennsylvania's electric chair in Rockview Penitentiary. He was a former policeman.

Sobbing, he was assisted to the chair by two prison guards.

R. J. Cullinane, Police Aide at Terminal, Dies

Funeral Slated Tomorrow for Former Owner of Boathouse Saloon.

Roger J. Cullinane, sr., 63, died yesterday at his home, 906 Twelfth street northeast, after a brief illness. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

Born in County Kerry, Ireland, Cullinane came to this country as a boy and was a resident of Washington a half-century. Soon after making his home here he opened Cullinane's Boathouse Saloon in Georgetown and later established a bar in southwest Washington. During the last 20 years, he was a member of the Washington Terminal Police Force.

Funeral services will be held at his home tomorrow at 8:30 a. m. and at Holy Name Church, where solemn high mass will be sung at 9 a. m. The Rev. John W. Dowling, pastor, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Paul J. Daugherty and the Rev. James Caulfield. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. Cullinane is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Theresa Whelan Cullinane; two sons, Private Jerry J. Cullinane of the Ninth Precinct, and Roger J. Cullinane, jr.; three daughters, Mrs. Kathleen Elizabeth O'Sullivan, Mrs. Nora Marie McLane, and Miss Mary Agnes Cullinane; two brothers, Lieut. Dennis J. Cullinane of Metropolitan Police, and James J. Cullinane of County Kerry; a sister, Mrs. Mary O'Keefe, and four grandchildren.

Municipal Parking Lots.

The inadequacy of parking space in Washington has long been a travesty on city planning. Provision for off-street storage of automobiles that are daily driven into the downtown section should have been made years ago. It is no tribute to the foresight of the District Commissioners that they have at last appointed a committee to study the establishment of municipal parking lots. But if the city heads are ready to grapple realistically with the problem, it is not yet too late to afford substantial relief.

Use of the streets for storage of cars is an immediate cause of traffic tie-ups and probably an indirect cause of many accidents. In view of that fact the city can not reasonably take an attitude of nonconcern over parking facilities. So long as storage space in the congested area is hopelessly inadequate, parked automobiles will probably continue to clutter the streets. In many instances the city has widened its streets to relieve this condition. It would be far more sensible and economical to provide space for parking off the streets.

Representative Dirksen suggests that existing parking areas should be taken over and operated by the District. Commissioner Allen is said to have given his support to plans for all-day parking on such areas at 10 cents per car. But the most urgent problem is not to reduce fees now charged. Rather it is to extend the available parking space at rates that will permit the average motorist to keep his car off the street when not in use. Certainly the first effort, if municipal parking lots are to be established, should be to increase the total parking area available.

A number of sites cleared by the Alley Dwelling Authority have been devoted to parking lots. No doubt others could be so used to advantage. Two serious defects in past development of the city would thus be corrected in one operation.

In no circumstances, however, should the objective be provision of parking space for a limited number of cars at less than actual costs. Rather it should be an ample supply of auto terminal facilities at prices that will entail no expense to taxpayers.

Troubling Oil.

Contrary to outward appearances, the Mexican government's expropriation of American and British oil properties worth some $450,000,000 is not a mark of strength but of weakness. The events leading up to this action give ample evidence that the "national necessity" mentioned by President Cardenas in justifying it is the need to distract attention from the ineffectiveness of his fundamental agrarian reforms. By baiting foreign interests he woos the support of the masses.

If Cardenas had been sincerely interested in turning Mexico's rich oil deposits to broader social profit, he would naturally have begun by developing the large untapped fields already possessed by the government.

Also, if anything but sheer persecution had been his motive, he would have accepted the surprisingly generous compromise proposed by the oil companies in the face of the $40,000,000 pay and compensation increases recently ordered by the Mexican Labor Board. They offered to assume this staggering load if the government would drop its demand for control over their operations.

Whether effective pressure from Washington and London can or will be applied remains to be seen. It seems certain, however, that if no compromise is reached, Mexican oil production will sink to even lower levels than it has hit in the past few years. The country lacks the technicians and organizing genius demanded for this complicated business; moreover, the unhappy condition of its nationalized railroads indicates the inefficiency to be expected from public administration of business affairs in Mexico.

One other prospect seems also certain. Proper indemnities can scarcely be expected by the oil interests, to judge from the present condition of Mexican finances as well as the experiences of landowners whose properties were earlier taken over by the government. This can only revive economic and, perhaps ultimately, political antagonisms between Mexico and the United States.

Gone will be the friendly co-operation between the two countries which Dwight Morrow initiated and which the present Administration has continued with its "good neighbor" and over-generous silver purchase policies. Since much of Cardenas' political security can be attributed to this co-operation, his actions against the oil companies can be fairly described as those of a man hacking at the limb on which he sits.

Peace And A Free Press.

Today, as at all times, democratic countries are prepared to observe a live-and-let-live attitude toward nations with political systems and philosophies completely at variance with their own. All they ask of such states, be they Fascist or Communist, feudal, oligarchic or what not, is that these nations pursue a similar hands-off course.

The democracies are now discovering, however, that their own tolerant attitude is by no means universal. On March 7 of this year, for instance, Dr. Otto Dietrich, the Nazi press chief, proposed that all governments negotiate treaties with Germany providing for official control of the printed and spoken words of their citizens. In so doing he was amplifying Chancellor Hitler's Reichstag address of February 20 in which the Fuehrer poured the vials of his wrath on foreign journalists who had had the temerity to suggest that all was not well in Germany. These press nonaggression pacts, Dr. Dietrich went on to say, were essential to world peace.

The phrase "nonaggression pacts" has a seeming innocence and appeal which is completely destroyed by an examination of what it really means. In essence Dr. Dietrich is demanding that, as the price of peace, the democratic countries permit Nazi censorship within their borders. As Carl Ackerman, dean of the graduate school of journalism, Columbia University, pointed out in an address in Buffalo, yesterday, it would mean in our case that:

> Every member of Congress of the United States, or every State Legislature, all mayors and members of city or town councils, all leaders of religious, educational, labor and business groups, all public speakers and writers would have to submit any proposed public reference to Germany, or to German officials or to the German people, to an official censor in Washington before it could be spoken or printed.

In other words, what the Third Reich is asking, through its press chief, is that the United States amend the Bill of Rights in order to win the friendship of the Hitler regime. And in the meantime, while newspapers and the radio in this country continually publicize official pronouncements and statements from Germany, there is no similar action on Germany's part.

Having suppressed all manifestations of freedom in their own country, the Nazis realize that this policy must always be incomplete so long as there remain any areas where news and opinions regarding Germany and world developments may be freely written. For that unsuppressed truth publicized abroad has a way of surmounting even the most formidable barriers that may be erected to keep it out.

Not long ago Dean Ackerman published a chart showing that a large part of the world was already a victim of the black plague of censorship and suppression. With entire justice he now points out that:

> If Dr. Dietrich's press peace pacts were ever forced upon, or accepted by the few remaining countries where there are individual or institutional liberties, the map of the world would be as black as it was before the birth of Christianity. To protect ourselves, our country and the Western Hemisphere from that fate it is our paramount obligation to society to cherish, to protect and to defend every institution of freedom extending from Canada to the Argentine.

The Conference Method.

Instead of calling upon the rail unions to accept a reduction in wages, as had been expected, the railway executives who have been meeting in Chicago have asked union leaders to discuss with them "the economic situation of the industry and to consider what can be done about it."

The phrasing of this resolution is significant. It takes for granted that the problems of the industry are a matter of vital concern to its employes. It assumes that the employes' interests are not confined to questions relating to wage, hours and working conditions. In short, labor is taken into partnership with management and asked to accept a joint responsibility for devising rescue methods for the hard pressed roads.

In a recent address Otto S. Beyer, chairman of the National Mediation Board, said that in his opinion "the most pressing problem at the moment is to create an enlightened appreciation of the predicament in which the railroads find themselves. "I can think," he continued, "of no large group in our Nation better equipped for this purpose than our million and one-quarter railroad employes."

Through a conference of the sort in contemplation, opportunities will be afforded to discuss railway problems objectively, from various aspects, instead of simply debating the case for and against wage reductions. Once labor fully understands that stable employment at good wages is not possible unless the railways themselves are self-sustaining and reasonably prosperous, a basis will have been laid for effective co-operation with management in the achievement of economies.

Such economies do not always imply wage cuts or less favorable conditions of employment. There are, as Chairman Beyer has pointed out, numerous ways in which rail labor can assist managements to cut operating costs, through more careful utilization of supplies, better handling of equipment and increased application to work. Extensive waste and slipshod performance is encouraged by a failure of labor to realize that it too is injured by practices which impair the earning power of the employing industry.

The projected Washington conference will achieve a great deal of good, therefore, if it does no more than force home the conviction that the welfare of railway labor is bound up with the fortunes of the employing carriers, and that labor's co-operation is needed in the present financial crisis.

Delayed Judicial Reform.

Judicial reform measures have made little progress since last year's historic fight over enlargement of the Supreme Court. Because of the antagonism aroused by that controversy it was essential to have a cooling-off period before attempting to effect desirable changes. But the time is now ripe, as pointed out by the committee on Federal legislation of the New York City Bar Association, for calm consideration of several important problems affecting the courts.

The committee believes that compulsory retirement for Federal judges is desirable. It insists, however, that "the only way" in which that issue can be "satisfactorily settled" is through a constitutional amendment. The age for the departure of justices from the Supreme Bench would be fixed at "not less than 75" and that provision would not apply to incumbents. Voluntary retirement at an earlier age would be permissible.

This recommendation appears to represent the consensus of opinion among many advocates of judicial reform who are eager to preserve the independence of the Court. It would not be a complete safeguard against senility on the bench. Probably it would serve to weed out some future justices too old to keep up with the arduous duties of the Supreme Bench. But its chief significance is that it would preclude any future Congressional attempt to change the membership of the Court by placing age restrictions upon the justices.

Still more to the point is the New York bar committee's request for a constitutional amendment limiting membership on the Court to nine justices. When the organic law was adopted it was not known how many members the Supreme Court would need. So long as justices rode the circuit it was necessary to leave their number flexible. But now all need for such flexibility seems to have disappeared. And it has been definitely established that a larger number of justices would impair the Court's efficiency.

Some may argue that such an amendment is not necessary—that the emphatic defeat of the Court-packing plan of 1937 will be sufficient to forestall any similar attack in the future. That may prove to be the case. Unfortunately, however, the present public support for an independent tribunal does not mean that the Court will always be free from pressure. To make certain that no future executive will be able to impose his will upon the Court by open or covert threats, the number of justices may well be fixed by constitutional amendment.

As to the third point in the New York bar committee's recommendations, there should be little question. The suggestion to set up an administrative agency for the Federal judiciary, responsible only to the courts themselves, has been heartily indorsed by Attorney General Cummings. It is intended to remove any influence of the Department of Justice upon the Court's budget, and to increase the efficiency of the judicial system by giving it a business manager. When a somewhat similar proposal was made in the 1937 judiciary bill it was discredited as part of the scheme to weaken the independence of the courts. As now modified to permit the courts to expedite their own work it seems to be entirely commendable.

Thoughtful consideration of these proposals by Congress and the country will be an appropriate sequel to the Supreme Court fight.

Industrial Alcohol.

From the Dallas Morning News.

Possible use of millions of undeveloped acres in east Texas for growing crops to be converted into industrial or other commercial products is suggested by a report of the American Chemical Society, which will hold its annual meeting in Dallas in April. This land could produce great quantities of sweet potatoes and other carbohydrate products convertible into alcohol, starches, sugars, plastics, paper products and food for men and animals.

There is a rapidly increasing demand for alcohol for industrial use, and this demand will become much greater if and when the country's petroleum supply begins to diminish. Texas should not wait for its oil fields to play out to begin taking advantage of the opportunity to grow industrial crops. Advances in chemical science are making it possible to put field crops to new and profitable industrial uses, and those farmers who first hook up with these new developments are likely to make the most profit.

The present importance of petroleum should not blind anyone to the possible supremacy that alcohol may attain for fuel and for other industrial uses in the future. It is none too early for east Texas to extend its diversification of products against the day of diminishing returns from oil.

Errand Of Mercy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post of March 15 has a front-page Associated Press dispatch entitled "D. C. Pastor's Fine Remitted," which has certain inaccuracies.

Last November, Dr. Raphael H. Miller, pastor of the National City Christian Church of this city, was driving to Gettysburg, Pa., in response to an urgent appeal from a dying woman. Near Frederick, Md., he was arrested for speeding. Dr. Miller explained the urgent nature of his errand and his desire as quickly as possible to reach the bedside of his friend.

He was fined $100 and costs and his driver's license was revoked. He made no protest; he never wrote to State officials "asking for the return of his money," as the justice who fined him is quoted as asserting. His friends did take this action on their own initiative, and the fine was remitted, those in authority having enough intelligence to discriminate between joy-riding and a mission of mercy. In spite of the delay he reached the death bed in time to be of service.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been a subscriber of The Post for several years and have always admired your sense of fairness in correcting any erroneously reported facts. But I must say I believe the Associated Press dispatch printed on March 15, with reference to the remitting of a traffic fine imposed on the Rev. R. H. Miller, does not state the true facts. I suggest you do the right thing and publish all the facts and true facts, not just the J. P.'s side.

Railroads Vs. Rivers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At the hearings here, relative to the railroads, I have noticed that regardless of a general attitude of friendliness, there is all too prevalent on the one hand, a spirit of criticism, and, on the part of the railroads, submissive acceptance of such criticism.

I think the railroads' position should not be one of embarrassed mendicancy, but that it should be forcibly emphasized that after developing this country, as no other agency ever did, they are at present victims of the most unfair competition any business ever had to endure, and of the generally prevailing business depression.

Congress annually appropriates for rivers and harbors, tremendous sums. Assuming that they are wise, even if these great expenditures resulted in satisfactory navigability, the shipping public would prefer the parallel and competing railroads for the transportation of most products. This is illustrated on the Hudson River between New York and Albany.

Further, with a small fraction of the amount of these appropriations, the railroads could be rehabilitated and render not only more efficient and satisfactory service but also continue to provide a service that is uniquely and absolutely indispensable to the business of the country, which it is clear can be supplied by no other agency.

Appropriations for rivers and harbors are made each year, without much debate or opposition. Why should not the railroads receive such aid, when it become necessary? The welfare of the country as well as that of the railroads requires it.

Adam Smith, New Dealer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As early as the last quarter of the eighteenth century, Adam Smith was a New Dealer. To be sure, the new deal which he thought appropriate to that time was laissez-faire, or hands off. But since hands were quite decidedly on, the policies enunciated in his "Wealth of Nations" involved interference with business as it then existed. The point is, he saw what needed to be done, and was quite influential in getting it done. Today, he would probably give his blessing to Britain's empire preference scheme, and condemn Hull's trade policy as unrealistic.

Certain digressions from the main current of his theory, here and there, show how keenly alive to actualities he was.

Near the conclusion of a chapter entitled "Of the Rent of Land" he says: "The plans and projects of the employers of stock regulate and direct all the most important operations of labor, and profit is the end proposed by all those plans and projects." And a few paragraphs farther on, he is most explicit in counseling statesmen and legislators who make themselves suckers for a knockout blow by leading with the chin in soliciting with the view of following the advice of profit-seekers in matters of public policy.

He could hardly have been more explicit or less convinced of the propriety of making business the counselor of government. He says: "The proposal of any new law or regulation of commerce which comes from this order ought always to be listened to with great precaution, and ought never to be adopted till after having been long and carefully examined, not only with the most scrupulous, but with the most suspicious attention. It comes from an order of men whose interest is never exactly the same with that of the public, who generally have an interest to deceive and even oppress the public, and who accordingly have upon many occasions, both deceived and oppressed it."

It is just possible that the proposal for repeal of the tax on undistributed profits is an excellent instance of one of the occasions on which businessmen are seeking to further their own interests, as they see them, at the expense of the public.

America's Responsibility.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The world leadership the United States had under Woodrow Wilson is completely gone. It was a leadership for the good of all and therefore for our own good which is tied up with the good of all.

Because of our attitude toward the Japanese, England gave up her alliance with Japan. At the invitation of our Government she took part in the Washington Naval Conference of 1922, scuttled part of her fleet and abstained from building as a result of the conference. She then based her policy and placed her reliance on the collective security supposed to reside in the League of Nations with the founding of which Woodrow Wilson, to his credit, had more to do than any other single individual and which was fatally weakened by our failure to join it.

Japan is now an ally of England's potential enemies, Germany and Italy; and the English fleet is still too weak for England's needs. Are we displaying now a manly and proper sense of responsibility for that situation?

Dogs And Gardens.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am writing these few lines in regard to the poisoning of dogs.

Most people who own dogs have the idea that they can run anywhere—on any one's garden and the like. I have two dogs of my own, but I do not let them off my place. I love animals but I can readily see why some people who do not like them would poison dogs for disturbing a nice-looking yard or garden.

The Holmes House On I Street

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At the time of the passing of Oliver Wendell Holmes, the second of that illustrious name, the newspapers of Massachusetts reported at some length the patriotic bequest of his entire estate to the Nation. Although, being a modest man, the will did not so specify, it was taken for granted by the innumerable friends and admirers of the great jurist as well as of the great poet, his father, author of "Old Ironsides," "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," and other American classics, that the Washington home of Justice Holmes was to be preserved as a shrine to the memories of both father and son, since not alone the house but an adequate fund for its maintenance were bestowed as a gift to the public.

This house in which he lived for more than 30 years and in which he died is a stately and dignified old brick dwelling at 1720 I street.

Returning yesterday to Washington as a visitor after many years' absence from a city that we once knew well, we were dismayed to learn that to date nothing has been done to assure the preservation of the Oliver Wendell Holmes house and that on the contrary some recent Congressional action which it is hard to follow indicated the alarming possibility that it may even be torn down.

We were shocked to find how many handsome and historic old mansions, once familiar landmarks, had disappeared, their former sites now occupied for the most part by unsightly parking lots or cheap, make-shift construction that spoiled the appearance of entire squares.

Making a sentimental pilgrimage to 1720 I street, we recognized with homesickness the fine old residence whose very walls record so much of Washington's cultural and social as well as political history. Happily both house and garden are still intact, but it is an intolerable thought that their future is uncertain.

Upon inquiry, we learned that a measure has been introduced by Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts and is now pending before the Library Committee of the Senate, of which Senator Alben W. Barkley is chairman, authorizing the acceptance of the house as a gift to the Government and its preservation as a shrine. Various suggestions have been offered, perhaps that it be used as a much-needed downtown branch of the Public Library, perhaps as a library of poetry, to become a center for the poets of the Nation, as the Folger is for Shakespearean and the many art galleries for artists. Either one would be a suitable use and a great many of his constituents will applaud Senator Walsh's concern for books as well as for battleships.

The changes in the Washington that we remembered, though in some respects impressive, have not added to its charm for visitors. Formerly, it had many places of intimate interest and appeal—small parks and flower beds and gardens, nearby and within walking distance, inviting to a leisurely visit. Now it has become more like other large cities that are rushed through by motor or skirted past in the search for more inviting scenes.

Many communities today are showing a marked revival of interest in the preservation or restoration of fine old houses and gardens and an increasing realization of their value to the city as a whole. It would seem even more important to preserve an attractior within the very heart of the city itself, easily accessible to visitors and tourists without transportation problems, within a stone's throw of Farragut Square which has now become the club center of Washington and within walking distance of many of the leading hotels.

We feel that we express the overwhelming sentiment not only of the people of Massachusetts, his birth State, but of literate and patriotic Americans all across the country in saying that to allow the former home of Oliver Wendell Holmes to be destroyed would be a deplorable and irremediable mistake.

The Post Impressionist

"I Should Worry."

THERE he was again in an old tattered overcoat and a rain-worn hat, carrying as usual, an impressive looking portfolio under his arm.

Even before I turned around to behold him hustling toward me through the crowd, I knew by the grating sound of his voice calling my name that it was he.

I tried to appear pleasantly surprised, inwardly aware that if I were nice to him, it would mean a siege of his repulsive conversation.

"Hello, old man," he said, enthusiastically offering his hand. "Where have you been keeping yourself?"

He always started off that way and I had to explain with forced flippancy that I had been around.

As usual he needed a shave. His face was dirty and pimply.

* * * *

"What d'ye know," he asked, "anything new?"

He had been removing his gloves and now he reached into a pocket of the overcoat and drew out a crumbly package of cigarettes.

"Have one?"

I shook my head.

He took one and his hands were dirty and the dirt was caked under his fingernails. He had bitten most of the skin away from around his nails, too. As he lit the cigarette his hands shook, and he laughed, nudging me.

"Drunk as a coot last night. Can hardly light my cigarette." He held his hands out. "Look at the damned things shake."

"I thought you were in South Carolina," I returned.

He guffawed and snickered. "Oh, that," he said. "That damned thing fell through. We had a swell little paper there until the daily got on us."

Now I was in for it. He had me over by the buildings now. Every time I edged away he followed me with his blotchy face.

"Let's drop in for a coke," he said.

* * * *

When we were seated at the drugstore counter he laid the portfolio in front of him with care.

"What have you got there?" I asked.

"Oh, here?" He laughed. "A little something I'm working on," he said.

If he thought I was going to ask him any more about it he was mistaken. I sipped the coke—planning escape.

"Yes," he said, "I think I've got something here," he said.

"Where?"

"Right here," patting the portfolio.

I refused to take interest.

"Look"—he zipped it open and pulled out a small newspaper and unfolded it before me on the counter. "It's a weekly and I'm working on it with another fellow. Of course, the stuff is lousy, but the ads, you know—big possibilities. He's got 6,000 circulation and he's only been with it four years. Pretty soon, when we get it up to 15,000 or 30,000, we can start hitting those downtown people. It looks good to me."

He babbled on about the circulation and this other fellow and I kept nodding and sipping—not listening to a word and wishing I could get the hell out of there. Finally he got back to the South Carolina thing.

"That was really good experience, though," he said. "Got a big full page Sears ad"—he nudged me again. "We got everyone on the daily mad at us and they started cutting rates, so we got out."

* * * *

I couldn't turn my eyes away from his dirty shirt collar and the red tie with the grease spots all over it.

"I've tried all the papers and it's the same answer—nothing doing now, drop back and see us a little later. I know I impressed them, though, because I showed them all copies of the South Carolina thing. But I'm not worrying—I should worry," he said, lifting up the portfolio and putting the paper back into it.

"Why," I asked.

"Oh"—zipping the portfolio shut—"there's this other thing down in Florida I can always take if this doesn't work out. You see, there's a little weekly down there that this friend of my uncle's runs and the next opening he's going to shoot along to me. I should worry. It would be great experience down there. I wouldn't give anything for that South Carolina experience."

He was off again, leaning close to me and smiling as he talked with those damned pimples and now his fetid breath in my face.

Could I, I wonder, why not do it now and end all this—

"Damn your dirty hide," I said.

I left him sitting there with his portfolio under his arm and his ugly mouth hanging open.

T. DRAKE DURRANCE

The National Anthem.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am a high school student, a freshman. In the school I attend, I was partly in charge of getting up a program having to do with the sesquicentennial our country is celebrating. I suggested that the freshman class sing the "Star-Spangled Banner," and the rest promptly said no. Some made comments such as this: "I heard it once, doesn't it go something like this?" "Nobody knows it," etc. So the idea was dropped.

If we are Americans, why not learn the song of our country? If we don't know our national anthem can't we be respectful enough to stand when it is played or sung? The Girl Scouts were the only ones who seemed to know the national anthem in our community.

It is regrettable that patriotism is so little understood and taught in our country schools.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler.

Tom Mooney's Case.

San Francisco.

TOM MOONEY is a loyal admirer of Josef Stalin. He defends the slaughter of the heretics in Moscow on the ground that they were plotting against the safety of the government, and indorses a government which readily imprisons men for their political beliefs. Therefore, if Mr. Mooney had been treated according to the Golden Rule in California he would have been a dead man many years ago. Therefore, also, he would seem to be in honor bound to stay in San Quentin prison as long as he can, a prisoner for his principles, refusing pardon and resisting expulsion by force.

PEGLER.

Instead, however, Mr. Mooney constantly demands a pardon and, with the backing of Communist organizations and of that element of simple-minded liberals who seduce easily, denounces the State of California for descending to the level of his beloved Moscow. It is confusing, because if Mr. Mooney were consistent he would perceive in his own persecution the first glimmering of his cherished beliefs.

It is unlikely that a political prisoner in Moscow would enjoy the guest status that Mr. Mooney occupies in San Quentin prison. He is a special case. He may receive journalists in the visiting room and spend an hour or more arguing the absoluteness of the existing form of government and predicting the early rise of a new system.

• • • •

AS HE talked on and on in a quiet voice the only guard in sight was an elderly man who stood off out of earshot, apparently unconcerned with Mr. Mooney's remarks—doubtless an old monotonous story to the staff by now. There was no screen or any vigilant peering lest he receive saws, weapons or other contraband.

He is a celebrity, and although he calls himself a pure idealist, he expressed no pity for any of the 5,000 murderers, thieves and miscellaneous offenders, guilty or innocent, whose suffering and denial are as painful as his, and in most cases worse. Eugene Debs, with whom Mooney once campaigned, was sorry for all men locked away in cages, but Mooney is self-centered and concerned only with the case of Mooney the martyr.

Not once in more than an hour did he, on his own initiative, mention the name of his forgotten and neglected co-defendant in the Preparedness Day bombing case of 1916—Warren K. Billings, who has been in prison as long as he has. If Mooney is innocent so is Billings, but Mooney always received top billing on the marquee, and now the name of his old partner has been dropped from the publicity entirely.

The only sympathy he could spare from himself was expressed for dynamiters involved in the Los Angeles Times case. He thinks himself a greater martyr than Capt. Dreyfus, forgetting, perhaps, that Dreyfus spent his prison years in a foul and distant island settlement under close guard, with no means of appealing to public opinion.

Mooney has spent his time in San Francisco, has been allowed to see Mrs. Mooney on the regular visiting days and has been able to conduct political propaganda from the prison.

• • • •

I MENTIONED a demonstration in his behalf at the Olympic Stadium in Los Angeles on the closing day of the Olympic program in 1932, and Mooney brightened with pride as he boasted that he had organized and directed that from the prison. He was mildly disappointed when I insisted that the demonstrators had mistimed their act and thus had failed to mar the solemnity of the final moments for the 105,000 Americans who were deeply moved, some of them to tears, by the beauty of the ceremony.

Whether Mooney is a member of the Communist Party or not, he is an outspoken revolutionary. He upholds Stalin and denounces Trotsky, whom he holds guilty, without trial, of betraying the revolution.

As far as California is concerned, there should be no question. He may not be innocent, but there is certainly great doubt that he is guilty. The same goes for the forgotten man, Billings. As long as they remain in prison California is rolling in the gutter of Mr Mooney's spiritual home—Moscow, U. S. S. R.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Just A Dog.

Peppy—devoted and knowing what devotion is—is mystified and melancholy now. There is a puzzled, pathetically baffled expression in her brown eyes. She spends the days curled up like a brindle ball in the big armchair—and lifts her head alertly, keenly and hopefully at the fall of a footstep, the pitch of a certain auto horn or a distant voice with a certain firm, eager, loving quality.

• • • •

It is heartbreaking to see her ears go up and a light come to her face at certain sounds in the stretches of the long days and barren nights. In the morning, as soon as the first rays of a tropical sun trickle through the venetian blinds, she comes out of a sort of trance, blinks her eyes and senses that the warm arms that used to enfold her body are not there. Then she leaps to the floor and goes on a mad, vain search of the house.

• • • •

She sniffs the beds, the chairs, the rug; she explores every empty chamber as if to say: "She's back around here some place now. It's all another game."

• • • •

She pauses before certain chairs and stares up at them, not believing in their chilling emptiness. Then she runs into the garden, circles the goldfish pool and the hibiscus bushes in a futile exploration for a presence that is missing.

• • • •

She peers into the pool and behind the big poinsettia bush; she jumps into the yellow garden chairs, nosing every inch of them. She looks up at the windows, cocks her head at the creak of a door and scampers to the garden gate at a sound nobody hears.

• • • •

She catches eagerly far-off notes of which others are not aware . . . a ripple of laughter . . . a certain strident footfall on brick paths . . . a door closed . . . a window open . . . that old honk-honk.

• • • •

Always Peppy's expression is of deep bewilderment, and a little sad—as if she knew. She knows there is something wrong. There isn't the concern about her puppy biscuits, her saucer of water, her rubber toys . . .

• • • •

She doesn't like her walks around the block now . . She keeps looking behind her. We may have to take her to the dog doctor. She hates dog doctors and all men in white coats.

• • • •

But the dog doctor can't do anything for Peppy. It's not her diet, her little fat stomach or a burr in her front paw. It's more complicated and deeper.

• • • •

You can't pat a dog on the shoulder and explain things . . . You can't tell it time heals everything. It doesn't—not with a dog that remembers the day loving hands lifted it out of a crate of puppies with an "I like this one. It's got such a funny face." Not with an animal that cuddled deep in those arms all the way home in the car and just didn't have much use for any other arms since.

• • • •

Peppy can't forget . . . she remembers everything. She may waste away and die of heartbreak. Dogs are like that.

Vienna Preview

Poet's Description Of A City's Fall Written Year Ago Conforms Strikingly With Picture Of Austrian Capitulation.

The triumphal entry of Hitler into Vienna last week makes a prophecy of Archibald MacLeish's "The Fall of the City," a radio play published by Farrar and Rinehart last year. Following are its concluding lines, reproduced here by special permission.

The Voice of the General (shouting):
You! Are you free? Will you fight?
There are still inches for fighting!
There is still a niche in the streets!
You can stand on the stairs and meet him!
You can hold in the dark of a hall!
You can die!
—or your children will crawl for it!

The Voice of the Announcer (over the tumult)
They won't listen. They're shouting and screaming and circling.
The square is full of deserters with more coming.
Every street from the bridge is full of deserters.
They're rolling in with the smoke blowing behind them.
The plaza's choked with the smoke and the struggling of stragglers.
They're climbing the platform: driving the ministers; shouting—
One speaks and another:

The Voice of the Citizens:
The City is doomed!
There's no holding it!
Let the conqueror have it! It's his!
The age is his! It's his century!
Our institutions are obsolete.
He marches a mile while we sit in a meeting.
Opinions and talk!
Deliberative walks beneath the ivy and the creepers!
The age demands a made-up mind.
The conqueror's mind is decided on everything.
His doubt comes after the deed or never.
He knows what he wants for he wants what he knows.
He's gone before they say he's going.
He's come before you've barred your house.
He's one man: we are but thousands:
Who can defend us from one man?
Bury your arms! Break your standards!
Give him the town while the town stands!

The Voice of the Announcer:
They're throwing their arms away: their bows are in bonfires.
The plaza is littered with torn plumes: spear-handles . . .

The Voice of Citizens:
Masterless men! . . .
Masterless men must take a master! . . .
Order must master us! . . .
Freedom's for fools:
Force is the certainty!
Freedom has eaten our strength and corrupted our virtues!
Men must be ruled!
Fools must be mastered!
Rigor and fast
Will restore us our dignity!
Chains will be liberty!

The Voice of the Announcer:
The last defenders are coming: they whirl from the streets like
Wild leaves on a wind: the square scatters them.
Now they are fewer—ten together or five:
They come with their heads turned: their eyes back.

Now there are none. The street's empty—in shadow.
The crowd is retreating—watching the empty street:
The shouts die.
The voices are silent.
They're watching . . .
They stand in the slant of the sunlight silent and watching.
The silence after the drums echoes the drum beat.

Now there's a sound. They see him. They must see him!
They're shading their eyes from the sun: there's a rustle of whispering:
We can't see for the glare of it . . .
Yes! . . . Yes! . . .
He's there in the end of the street in the shadow. We see him!
He looks huge—a head taller than anyone:
Broad as a brass door; a hard hero:
Heavy of heel on the brick: clanking with metal:
The helm closed on his head: the eyeholes hollow.
He's coming! . . .
He's clear of the shadow! . . .
The sun takes him.

They cover their faces with fingers. They cower before him.
They fall: they sprawl on the stone. He's alone where he's walking.
He marches with rattle of metal. He tramples his shadow.
He mounts by the pyramid—stamps on the stairway—turns—
His arm rises—his visor is opening . . .

(There is an instant's breathless silence; then the voice of the Announcer low—almost a whisper.)
There's no one! . . .
There's no one at all! . . .
No one! . . .
The helmet is hollow!
The metal is empty! The armor is empty! I tell you
There's no one at all there; there's only the metal:
The barrel of metal: the bundle of armor. It's empty!
The push of a stiff pole at the nipple would topple it.

They don't see! They lie on the paving, they lie in the Burnt spears: the ashes of arrows.
They lie there . . .
They don't see or they won't see.
They are silent . . .

The people invent their oppressors: they wish to believe in them.
They wish to be free of their freedom: released from their liberty—
The long labor of liberty ended!
They lie there!

(There is a whisper of sound. The Announcer's voice is louder.)
Look! It's his arm! It is rising! His arm's rising!
They're watching his arm as it rises.
They stir. They cry.

Dancing Big Apple Barefoot Is Advised To Avoid Flat Feet

Chicago, March 20 (AP).—It might not look quite as graceful, chiropodists agree, but it's much healthier for women to dance the big apple barefooted.

"Do this and you'll avoid flat feet, weak and enlarged ankles and crooked toes," said Dr. William J. Stickel, of Chicago, at the seventh annual convention of the Midwest Association of Chiropodists yesterday.

"Modern dancing," he said, "is causing young persons to flock to foot doctors." He explained:

The susy-q affects 19 muscles in the angle and in women causes an enlargement of the ankle.

Truckin' produces splay-foot, a widening of the meta-tarsal region (across the ball of the foot).

"If women danced barefooted or in golf shoes there would be no trouble," the doctor asserted.

Maritime Unions Warn Senate Quiz

The Senate committee named to investigate maritime unions was warned against attempts to convert the inquiry into "a witch hunt or Red hunt" by the New York Maritime Council, an affiliated organization of nine marine and harbor unions. The council warned also against attempts to make the investigation "another forum for anti-union, employer propaganda or to provide another weapon for the ship owners in their fight on the seamen."

Members of the committee are Senators Copeland (Democrat), New York; Vandenburg (Republican), Michigan; Donahey (Democrat), Ohio; Russell (Democrat), Georgia, and Thomas (Democrat), Utah. The warning was in the form of a 3,500-page letter signed by Thomas Ray, secretary of the council.

"If the investigation turns out to be nothing more nor less than an attack on our organization," the council threatened "to meet it with every resource at our command."

Social Worker to Talk To Monday Evening Club

The Monday Evening Club will hold its annual banquet tonight at Barker Hall, Seventeenth and K streets northwest. Karl De Schweinitz, director of the Pennsylvania Emergency Relief Administration, will speak on "Why Public Welfare?"

William A. Roberts, president of the club, will introduce the speaker. Maurice V. Brooks is chairman of the arrangements committee.

The Pacifists

By T. A. B. Barefoot

Their "Determined Futility."

PACIFISM IN THE DEMOCRACIES bids fair to usher in a new "dark ages" of despotism and conquest. Its advocates are the great allies of the Fascist dictators in their ambitions to conquer the world. Starting with the assumption that war is the maximum evil, they arrive at the conclusion that the way to avoid war is for each of the democracies separately to run away from it. They refuse to follow to the point where the democracies can run no farther and are singly overwhelmed by the Fascist states.

Pacifists make one wonder whether any democracy can endure unless its writers are all compelled to take the most gruelling and critical courses in "current history," such as are not usually given even in our institutions of higher learning. How can policy be determined by people who let words fool them?

• • • •

THESE REFLECTIONS are inspired by reading "The Final Choice" by Stephen and Joan Raushenbush. I took up the book with great hopes, and was not wholly disappointed. It makes an honest effort to think things out, weighing both sides. It makes some contributions to the subject—especially the devastating summary on the profiteering of American big business during the World War. This was, of course, to be expected from the Secretary of Senator Nye's Munitions Committee.

But the closely critical work is practically all against one side of the question and the argument is vitiated by false assumptions and interpretations in favor the other side. Thus the discussion of collective security has as a background a dream about an Uncle Sam who in 1931, 1935 and 1937 was in the van leading the League of Nations on to restrain the aggressors—while the powers in the League balked, notably imperialistic Britain, intent on preserving her trade with Japan. The truth, of course, is that in the Far East the United States has led only in writing notes. In two crises of 1931-'32 when the League would have acted or might have acted, the United States refused co-operation—it would not even follow. It would not apply sanctions even against the minor disturbance in the Chaco in 1933, where no breath of danger could be imagined.

Of all our meaningless words, none excels the word "action" as used by Secretary Stimson in his book on The Far Eastern Crisis. Pacifists are not alone in being fooled by it. Apparently Mr. Stimson fooled himself. His "action" in the crisis consisted in quashing the investigation proposed in September, 1931, in putting the damper on American public opinion lest there be any boycott or other anti-Japanese agitation, in refusing any pledge of co-operation with League sanctions, and in assenting to the appointment of the Lytton Commission, proposed by Japan and used by her to postpone further consideration of the subject until she had conquered the whole of Manchuria and had organized it into a puppet state.

Stimson's oft-cited passage about the British refusing to support his "action" relates only to refusal to join in writing another futile note. Secretary Stimson preached the efficacy of a formal juridical condemnation of Japan, but he was not interested in "using" the Nine-Power Treaty in 1931—the Raushenbushes are fooled by the word.

IN 1935 PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT did try by moral suasion to stop shipment of oil to Italy, but our authors admit that it was largely ineffective. They also say that the President was ready to ask Congress to pass a bill limiting shipment of oil to the prewar normal. But why should the League gamble on the action of Congress which has shown itself beyond Presidential control in regard to the World Court and neutrality legislation?

The truth is that the recent policy of the Congress and of the State Department toward foreign wars has been dominated by pacifists. The result is that it could scarcely have been more ineffectual in aiding the world's peace, it could scarcely have been more humiliating, if the Government had announced in 1931 to all would-be aggressors: "We are very sorry, gentlemen, that our people will expect us to use words expressive of disapprobation of your actions; but pray do not allow our phrases to ruffle your diplomatic calm, for we are pacifists and are determined that what we call our peace policy shall remain completely futile. Whatever may be our official utterances, our action will give you economic support in your conquests. You can count on us to continue to buy your goods and to supply you with raw materials. You can count on us to block any threat of collective economic pressure to penalize your aggression."

Our authors can turn on a cynical and exaggerated realism against ideas they do not like, but they accept uncritically some of the current pacifisms for example, that the lid cannot be clamped down, that the dissatisfied nations will fight (say against sanctions) regardless of the combination of powers against them! The casual acceptance of this folly is the more surprising as the authors do not allege any economic compulsion behind the wars of the aggressors; they admit that the "Have-Not" theory has little substance.

Some of the language used is incomprehensible, e. g., that the American policy has aimed to halt Japan rather than to help China. What could possibly help China more than halting Japan? It is alleged that defeat of Japan would accomplish nothing more permanent than did the defeat of Germany; whereas assuredly if China had ten years breathing space, Japan could not dream of renewing the attack. And are we so sure Germany's defeat had no permanent effects? Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Alsace-Lorraine are not yet subject to Hitler! Japan, they say, is no menace to the United States; yet elsewhere, Japan, Germany, and Italy are nearer to world dominion than Germany was in 1914.

• • • •

THE DISCUSSION of Far Eastern imperialism follows N. Peffer at his worst—caricatures of American and British imperialism in China, with an apparently serious discussion of the possibility that American troops would be found policing China after a Far Eastern war, so that Americans could control its industries! Extravagant as this seems, (and the similar picture of America's armies holding down France and Italy to keep them democracies!) only once or twice does the discussion seem insincere. After deriding the League of Nations through 210 pages, the argument is made that certain proposed legislation squinting in the direction of international co-operation might, if later ignored, really weaken the League.

In defending compulsory neutrality legislation—the legislation for which Mussolini publicly gave thanks and which was intended to cripple and has crippled every possibility of effective action in the direction of collective pressure to head off incipient wars—the patently insincere argument is advanced that the believers in collective security have no cause for complaint, as the law still leaves the field of discussion open and they can still urge American participation in a foreign war after it has started.

The "Final Choice" is between a superstate to enforce world peace and a drastic American neutrality policy (e. g. holding trade in time of war down to normal). The authors feel no confidence that any legislation will keep the United States out of major wars for more than two years. Fixing their eyes on the World War, and ignoring the opposing facts of the Far Eastern situation, they think trade if allowed to grow will drag us into any war, and that if trade profits become very attractive American farmers and businessmen will enforce participation in the trade.

• • • •

THEREFORE, IF WAR is to be avoided The Final Choice presents the alternative of a superstate with armed forces to check the aggressors. This is presented in the last chapter as the only form of international action which has any chance of eliminating war. Boycotts and sanctions are summarily rejected and do not even appear in the index. But the authors carefully refrain from advocating the superstate; it appears to be a final bogey to scare the public from international co-operation on a realistic plane.

Thus the net effect of the book strikes me as wholehog isolationist pacifism, Ludlow amendment and all. Isolationist Senators praise it highly. Hitler and Mussolini will like it. It is one more indication that the American democracy is intent on building up the Fascist empires, as we are now doing supplying Japan with war materials.

the two-year period from February 21, 1936, to February 14, 1938, were formed by him. His chambers are also the resident offices of a large proportion of Bahamian companies.

All companies formed in the Bahamas, it was said, are required by colony law to keep their names printed or affixed on the outside of every office in which their business is carried on. More than 100 companies have their names affixed on the outer walls of Solomon's chambers at Nassau, Island of New Providence, the Bahamas, his chambers thus serving as their registered office.

Expresses Surprise.

The Seaboard Co., Ltd., it was found, functioned through Solomon's office clerks and under his immediate supervision. The five stockholders were Solomon himself, two of his stenographers, a former law clerk of his and a local sponge broker. Each held one share of stock and one share apiece also was issued to John Glen Sample and Helen E. Sample, of Chicago, who later transferred their shares to Solomon.

Solomon, according to Senator Wheeler, expressed surprise that an agency of the United States Government should desire to know anything about the activities or affairs of a Bahamian corporation. The lawyer stated that neither of the Samples had anything to do with the company's affairs, when, with two of Solomon's stenographers acting as directors, the Seaboard Co., Ltd., became the ostensible purchaser of the Alleghaney Corporation stock. The company paid $225,000 in cash, although its outstanding capital stock was only seven shares of $100 value each, a total of $700.

Solomon's attention was called, in the report's language, to the facts that the Seaboard Co., Ltd., had interested itself in and acquired a voice in the affairs of one of the prinicpal railroad holding company systems in the United States, involving thousands of miles of railroads, and now engaged in seeking the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission for acquisition of control over additional thousands of miles through one railroad company, and that the holding company is now proposing that the United States lend an additional $5,000,000 to the system.

Nevertheless the report declares, "the attorney for the Seaboard Co., Limited, stated that he was under a professional obligation to refrain from discussing anything about the affairs of the company. He said that he was obliged to refuse to disclose the names of the company's officers."

Will Continue Search.

This information never has been obtained, although Senator Wheeler asserted that "Needless to say, the Senate committee is going to continue the search until the hidden purchasers are discovered."

The committee chairman continued: "In some respects resort to the device of fugitive corporations for escape from Government regulation is even worse than flight by criminals to lands from which they could not be extradited. American citizens are now able, by forming a corporation in some foreign land, to remain themselves in the United States and yet circumvent the existing statutes of the United States."

"The whole transaction indicates the ease with which control of a system of railroads might be transferred into a superholding company organized in the Bahamas."

ganda machine from his villa in sunny Florida. He hasn't any more idea of saving you and your Constitution than the Liberty League had."

The Indiana Senator also told his listeners "that it is chiefly by means of the radio that the point of view of the Administration in Washington on anything it is doing or proposes to do, is brought to you, since 98 per cent of all the metropolitan newspapers are opposed to the Administration and do not hesitate to misrepresent it. You found that out in the last election. If you want to know the truth about things going on in Washington you won't find it in the metropolitan newspapers."

Calls Answer Simple.

Minton said the chief question asked about the bill was, "How can the President do it (the regrouping and reorganizing of the 134 commissions and bureaus) if Congress can't?" He asserted the answer was simple.

"The President and his executive staff are not a debating society while Congress is a debating society, and sometimes resolves itself into a 'talkathon,'" he concluded.

Representative Wadsworth said he believed "the outstandingly dangerous provision still remaining in the reorganization bill is that which abolishes the General Accounting Office and the office of the Comptroller General as now maintained. There are other provisions which I regard as objectionable, but this particular provision is the one which stands out above the others as a dangerous thing."

Wadsworth asserted that, "The President and his followers now demand that that office be utterly abolished and that hereafter the expenditures of the Government, running into $8,000,000,000 a year and more, shall be audited after they have been made. In other words they will lock the stable door after the horse is stolen."

He concluded by saying, "The passage of this reorganization bill as now presented will just about finish the journey. Surely it is time that this march be halted. If we let it go on, what we have known as liberty will eventually perish."

The Senate is expected to vote today on an amendment offered by Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, which declares the objective of the reorganization bill is a 10 per cent reduction in Government costs.

Postlude

Rudolph Ganz Wins Applause For Versatility

Alternates as Conductor, Pianist at the National Symphony Concert.

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Rudolph Ganz conducts the National Symphony Orchestra and appears as piano soloist, Sunday afternoon in Constitution Hall. Program: Overture to "Abu Hassan" (Weber), "Animal Pictures" (Ganz), Pianoforte Concerto No. 5 in F major (Saint-Saens), Symphony No. 5 in E minor (Chaikovski).

Functioning alternately as conductor and pianist, versatile Rudolph Ganz took charge of the National Symphony Orchestra yesterday afternoon in a manner which elicited a hearty response from the sizable audience assembled in Constitution Hall. There were commendatory plaudits for his interpretative direction of compositions by Weber and Chaikovski, and a larger measure of approval for his exposition of his own amusing suite of "Animal Pictures," while the peak of enthusiastic praise was reached following his brilliant performance as soloist in Saint-Saens' fifth concerto.

Thanks to his choice for the first part of the program of works not frequently on display, one's appetite for unfamiliar music was pleasantly satisfied. The charming overture to "Abu Hassan" with its bubbling humor and irresistible elan afforded a glimpse of Weber as he is seldom seen in our concert halls. We are usually allowed to view him only in his full romantic panoply, and we are apt to forget that he wrote operas before "Der Freischuetz," and before the exhaustion of his incessant labors had taken a certain sparkle from his style.

Weber was only 25 when he composed the one-act singspiel, "Abu Hassan," which was the first of his stage works to win public attention. In it there is a liveliness of wit that one misses from his more grave and consciously theatrical music, and its high spirits are those of a youth zestful and enamored of life.

The prototype of Mr. Ganz's "Animal Pictures" is, of course, "Le Carnaval des Animaux," by Saint-Saens, but the differences between the two zoological entertainments are more obvious than the parallels. Occupying independent orbits, they make contact at but one point, where "Listening to the Cuckoo" evokes somewhat the same mood as "The Swan" through the use of melodic poesy. Elsewhere the descriptive methods and the orchestral technique are markedly divergent.

For one thing, Saint-Saens was satirical in his jesting, while Mr. Ganz exercises a keen sense of humor without any implications of parody. Nearly all of his 20 descriptive pieces are animated cartoons in which the point is characterization of comic traits. In each case the essential lines are skillfully exaggerated with a deft command of instrumental resources. The harmonic texture is pungently modernistic with just enough use of dissonance to spice the fun.

Resigning the baton to Francis Garzia, who came from his place among the violins to wield it quietly and efficiently, Mr. Ganz applied his virtuosic hands to the F major pianoforte concerto of Saint-Saens, a work so seldom brought forward that it has been two decades since I last heard it. Constructed with an eye to scintillance, the concerto has a rather thin musical substance and its attractiveness is mainly a matter of adroit display. Its technical difficulties are many, and there is not a trick of dexterity that is overlooked. Mr. Ganz handled them all with ease, and in his reading emphasized the colorful and the poetic elements to be found in the music.

The last half of the program was devoted to Chaikovski's E minor symphony which Mr. Ganz conducted with the most serious intent. But here the rapport between conductor and players was not fully established, and the performance lacked that precise vitalization which carries conviction.

Gayety

"WHIRL OF GIRLS." The Independent Burlesque Association presents the musical production in two acts and 24 scenes, featuring Charmaine and Mike Sachs, supported by Alice Kennedy, Sid Gold, Joyce Breazelle, Ina Thomas, Lou Petel, Lou Devine and John Quigg. Dance numbers devised by Eleanor Cook; staged by James J. Lake. Reviewed Sunday matinee by Art John. B. C. A. A.

Blonde and beautiful Charmaine and the inimitable Mike Sachs are handling the revue at the Gayety Theater this week, and are supported by a cast of steller artists who make it one of the worthwhile shows of the season.

Charmaine, whom we didn't treat so kindly through this column the last time she appeared here, is forcing us to retract some of the not so complimentary phrases coined in connection with her initial bow in our Capital City. We said the girl was pretty, shapely and wore her clothes well, but that as for her dancing—well, that was something else. Now Charmaine is looking prettier than ever, is as shapely as when we last saw her and has several musical routines that are, indeed, a vast improvement over what she has previously presented here.

Mike Sachs and his female partner, Alice Kennedy, come through with some new and amusing comedy sketches while offering several of the Sachs "bits" which always remain funny, no matter how often we see them. Lou Devine, assisted by Lou Petel, one of the better straight men of the Wheel, are effective in their comedy offerings, although it is Sachs who garners the most guffaws.

John Quigg and his accordion are paying a return visit here after too long an absence. This popular blackface personality, as usual, makes a big hit with the fans.

Incidentally, the show also boasts the singing and character talents of Sid Gold, whom we are told by Col. Lake, gave the rising movie star, Mickey Rooney, some of his first stage pointers when the popular cinema player was only 6 years old.

The settings and lighting effects are much above par, while the chorus is unusually pretty and talented.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

"Jezebel" Is a Picture Unto Itself; No Relation to "Gone With Wind"

Bette Davis Vehicle Was Broadway Stage Play Four Years Ago; Ethel Barrymore Director of New Summer Theater; January Box Office Champions; Libby Holman Arrives Late With New Song; Notes.

BELL.

BECAUSE in "Jezebel" Bette Davis assumes the role of a high-strung, spirited and utterly unconventional young woman of the South, many columnists and radio commentators have leaped to the conclusion that this Warner Brothers production was inspired by, and largely aimed at, Margaret Mitchell's best-selling novel of "Gone With the Wind," concerning the picturization of which—and particularly the casting of the stellar role of Scarlett O'Hara—there has been such long and such wide discussion.

This would seem to be a little in the nature of "shooting at the moon." There is no tangible relationship whatever between "Jezebel" and "Gone With the Wind." To begin with, "Jezebel" was written long before "Gone With the Wind," having been produced on Broadway some four years or so ago. Furthermore, the Warner opus has nothing to do with the War Between the States; its locale is the Deep South of the 1850s.

Julie, the character portrayed by Miss Davis, is reputedly nothing like Miss Mitchell's Scarlett, the only thing scarlet about Julie being the gown she defiantly wears to the Mardi Gras Ball, at which convention demanded that all young women dress in white. This is the incident that so shocks serious-minded Henry Fonda as to cause him to leave the arrogant and self-centered Julie and marry, instead, a shyer, sweeter and more conventional person, played by Margaret Lindsay.

There are said to be many exciting sequences in "Jezebel"—including duels and one thing and another—culminating in the dread yellow fever plague that breaks over New Orleans.

"Jezebel" was written by Owen Davis, sr., who considerably antedates Miss Mitchell on the literary and dramatic scene—not that it especially matters, but just to keep the record straight.

* * * *

Incidentally, Donald Crisp, distinguished film actor and former motion picture director, also is on the board of directors of the Bank of America in Hollywood. He has been a bank director for 15 years and has been the man who, more than any other, has passed judgment on the soundness and advisibility of all film loans applied for at the financial institution with which he is associated. He put his O. K. on the loan to Walt Disney that made the production of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" possible, convincing the bankers that they couldn't lose—a bit of foresight that proved well founded in his knowledge of the business with which he so long has been identified. He also passes on what is good collateral and what isn't. Thus Mr. Crisp, who plays an important character part in "Jezebel," frequently finds himself in the anomalous position of an actor who, as a banker, may only that day have turned down a loan for which his employer may have applied. Nice work, if you can get it!

The new Olney Theater Corporation, the official name of the new summer theater project being fostered by Harold C. Smith, prominent attorney and police court judge of Rockville, Md.; Leonard B. McLaughlin, veteran Baltimore theater manager, and Stephen E. Cochran, for more than 30 years identified with the management of the National Theater in this city, gives every preliminary indication of a successful fulfillment of its plans.

The company's prospectus, just released, is a conservative and clearly defined exposition of the purposes of the undertaking and the probability of its complete success.

It is violating no secret, I think, to disclose that last Saturday night, Ethel Barrymore, starring in "Whiteoaks" at the National, pledged herself to Mr. Cochran to serve as an associate director in the conduct of the new enterprise, which has as its aim the establishment of a summer theater colony on the Woodlawn Lodge estate, on the Columbia pike, near Olney, Md., midway between Washington and Baltimore, where a summer dramatic school also will enter into the scheme of things.

Not only will Miss Barrymore serve as an advisory director of the new corporation, but she also will be seen in one or more plays of her own choosing when the first season opens in Montgomery County in June.

When, as and if this project is successfully consummated, Washington will take its place among the foremost centers of summertime theatrical activity in the United States, conceding nothing to Denver's famous Elitch Gardens, the Skowhegan, Me., colony, Raymond Moore's Cape Playhouse, at Dennis, Mass., the Mohawk Summer Festival, at Syracuse, N. Y., or any of the others that have been functioning through the years. More power to you is what I always say.

When the "You Never Know" company, opening in the new Cole Porter musical play at the National tonight, arrived at Union Station yesterday evening at 6:35, Libby Holman, one of the three stars in the cast—Clifton Webb and Lupe Velez are the other two—was not with them. Instead of coming directly to Washington from the last stand, Miss Holman hied her to the Waldorf-Astoria in New York to rehearse a new song especially written for her by Cole Porter, composer of the score for the Shubert production, still convalescing in his apartment from a broken leg or two. Miss Holman will arrive in town today and that new song will be heard for the first time on any stage in the National tonight. So now you know.

The "Box Office Champions for January," as reported in the March 19 issue of the Motion Picture Herald, foremost of the industry's trade journals, took a decided jump. There were eight of them. This is a considerable increase over the recent number of picture releases that have attained championship rating on a basis of bona fide box office statements from the leading theaters in the principal key cities of the country.

The January listing of the winners includes "Wells Fargo," "Rosalie," "The Hurricane," "True Confession," "Love and Hisses," "You're a Sweetheart," "Tovarich," and "Nothing Sacred." All of these have been seen and approved by Washington audiences, which only goes to prove once again that the National Capital is not permitted to lag behind the rest of the country in its early squints at the best pictures the current market affords.

Broken down into producing companies, the January ratings give two champions each to Paramount and United Artists (one Goldwyn and one Selznick) and one each to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Twentieth Century-Fox, Universal and Warner Brothers.

Nice going in the matter of blanket coverage.

The punctilious gentlemen presiding over the destinies of the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, always so effusively welcomed to Washington, never forget. A greeting comes to the desk from them, making known that this famous Savoyard troupe is booked solidly in London and the Provinces through the week of October 8, 1938, with a six week vacation period scheduled for the last of July and early August. It would be nice if we had something like that in this country—but Gilbert and Sullivan inexplicably preferred to be born in England!

Meteorological Note.

And another warning. Yesterday probably was just a teaser for a snow storm!

RKO-Keith's

Taking its place at the head of the considerable procession of films that have made box-office history on Fifteenth street, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" Friday entered its sixth consecutive week as major feature of the bill at RKO-Keith's Theater.

This Walt Disney Technicolor production sets an entirely new style in screen entertainment. Executed in the cartoon form, it embodies so much of humor, tunefulness, fantasy and charm that it finds itself in a position of isolated eminence as the one picture that has no counterpart with which it may be compared.

There is so much of every element of popular entertainment in "Snow White" that it deserves to be seen not once, but many times in order that its full value may be appreciated. Based on the classic fairy tale of the same name, it relates a story that is whimsical, humorous and tragic by turns. The tragedy, of course, relates only to those drawn figures in the play who deserve its stern retributions most.

As a companion attraction on the current bill, Keith's is showing "Quintupland," a short-reel subject made by Pathe, devoted to the famous Dionne quintuplets at the ripe old age of 3½ years. The youngsters are shown in both outdoor and indoor pursuits in this subject, skiing being among one of their more recent accomplishments.

Luminaries of Screen and Stage

CURRENT AND COMING ATTRACTIONS.

Left—Charlie Chaplin, in his famous creation of the vagrant, revived on the screen at the Little Theater this week in "Modern Times," his most recent contribution to the cinema, in which the principal feminine role is played by Paulette Goddard. Right (above)—Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald, as they will appear in the costellar roles of "The Girl of the Golden West," following the "Goldwyn Follies," at Loew's Palace. Inset—Count Berni Vici, who brings his "Spices of 1938" to the stage at Loew's Capitol Theater for the week beginning next Friday.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, March 20.

THEATER DEPT.: Orson Welles called George Bernard Shaw by transatlantic phone last week with regard to producing Shaw's "Heartbreak House" . . . Welles announced the purpose of his call. "You're a darn fool," Shaw stated, "and it's absolutely indecent" . . . "You mean it's indecent for me to produce your play, Mr. Shaw?" Welles asked . . . "No," the playwright returned. "I mean it's indecent for you to transact business by transatlantic telephone."

* * * *

DRAMA DEPT.: Mrs. Murray Crane, the socialite, invited Marc Blitzstein to perform parts of his American opera, "The Cradle Will Rock," at a party tendered at her Fifth avenue apartment. Mrs. Crane had heard that this was a stirring play, and indicated that she might become interested in the production . . . Blitzstein seated himself at the piano—just as he does in the play—and shocked the blue-bloods with songs of indictment against economic royalists who oppress labor. Mrs. Crane took him aside later and suggested: "Couldn't you have a violinist play it, instead of a pianist?" . . . "But why?" the composer asked. "Why a violinist?" . . . So that," Mrs. Crane explained, "you wouldn't have to use any lyrics."

* * * *

PERSONALS: Leif Erikson and his wife, Frances Farmer—the screen star now appearing in Clifford Odets' "Golden Boy"—have adopted a 7-year-old boy who was orphaned by the revolution in Spain . . . The youngster still is in Spain, and his foster parents never have seen him. Photographs of the boy were sent here first, and now the Eriksons pay for his support. The adoption, however, is complete. Temporarily, the boy has been named Juan.

* * * *

EMPLOYMENT DEPT.: When Sam Goldwyn purged his production staff recently, he summoned a young producer who had been working for him a long time. "I never liked you," Goldwyn told him. "I never liked your work. I never could stand the sight of you. You don't know the first thing about this movie business, and I just can't stand you. So I don't think you're happy here."

* * * *

MOVIES: Bob Benchley went to the movies to see his short, "How to Make Out Your Income Tax Return." At the Stork Club last night Joan Powers told him: "Oh, I saw you in the movies, Mr. Benchley" . . . "I know," Benchley replied to the startled lady, "I saw you in the audience."

* * * *

BEAUTY DEPT.: The rotund Jack Oakie met the stouter Andy Devine in the office of the Hollywood Reporter. "Hello, Blimp," Oakie greeted . . . "This," Devine answered, "is a case of the pot calling the pot 'pot.'"

* * * *

BOOK DEPT.: Hunt Stromberg, the M-G-M producer who is visiting here, was greeted by a friend carrying a book under his arm. "What book is that?" Stromberg asked . . . "The Citadel," was the reply. "Y'know—Dr. Cronin's book; a best-seller. Have you read it?" . . . "No. Why should I?" Stromberg returned. "It's already been bought for pictures."

* * * *

BUSINESS DEPT.: Last week a famous U. S. Senator made a public announcement in opposition to the current boycott on Japanese silk. His speech was reported by all the press associations, in papers throughout the country . . . As a matter of fact, the speech was ghosted by the Sutton News Agency—press agents for the Japanese Chamber of Commerce.

* * * *

ART DEPT.: Some of the sponsors of the Federal art bill are seeking to raise money by holding a dance. Application was made yesterday for permission to hold the dance, for some unexplained reason, in the New York Aquarium!

* * * *

BUSINESS DEPT.: The U. S. Navy is in somewhat of a quandary. One of its experts has invented a new lightweight rapid-firing machine gun for airplanes—a gun which discharges bullets more rapidly than any machine gun ever invented . . . "A great invention," the expert was told, "but now we need another invention—because there isn't a plane big enough to carry all the ammunition this gun can discharge in 5 minutes."

Little

That man is here again!

The funny little fellow with the weather-beaten derby, the splay feet and the grandiose, bamboo walking-stick once more is cavorting upon a local screen—which is to say that Charlie Chaplin's "Modern Times" is revived this week at the Little Theater as chief feature of a bill that should pack the house.

"Modern Times," in case it had slipped your mind, is the only release that has found its way to the screens from the Chaplin studio in some five or six years. A signal hit of February, 1936, it marked the first Chaplin productional effort in something like three years. It is, perhaps, the most cleverly devised and most provocative of all the Chaplin major features—hilariously funny, not without a faint tinge of social significance and the medium of the introduction to the screen of a new Chaplin leading woman in the naive and quaint person of Paulette Goddard.

At the time of its original release, "Modern Times" was popularly supposed to have been a little in the nature of economic propaganda. It was no such thing.

The story concerns the adventures of a tramp and a waif, who encounter many vicissitudes in eking out a living in a mechanized age that makes it just a trifle tough for unskilled labor. The tramp undergoes many unique experiences as a factory hand on the "production line." He lands in jail, through no fault of his own; has an unhappy time as a singing waiter in a rough-and-ready waterfront cafe; sings a song in a pseudo-French patois in which all the languages of the globe may be identified by the acute listener, and finally gives the whole thing up as a bad job.

Chaplin is at his best here and Paulette Goddard proves a completely effective foil for both his comic and romantic inclinations. Among the supporting cast are many who have been identified with Chaplin films in earlier years—Chester Conklin, like the star, a veteran of the Mack Sennett lot; Henry Bergman, Hank Mann, Louis Natheux and Allen Garcia.

Chaplain films are timeless and imperishable. "Modern Times" is no exception. It is supplemented by the usual array of shorter subjects at the Little this week, but that is of no matter. "Modern Times" is the thing.

Trans-Lux

The news events displayed this week at the Trans-Lux Theater go to make up one of the most exciting and interesting bills since this theater was born a little over a year ago. Thrilling and absorbing are the pictures of Secretary Hull as he gives his already famous foreign policy address at the National Press Club. And then in rapid sequence the audience sees Great Britain rushing her planes for defense from air attacks, former President Hoover conferring with the president of Czechoslovakia and Anthony Eden departing for a much needed vacation. We also have our new Ambassador to Great Britain, Joseph Kennedy, tripping it to Buckingham Palace to present his papers to the king.

Always colorful are shots of the fleet leaving the West Coast for battle practice while for contrast Lew Lehr brings some screamingly funny sleeping and snoring beauties to the screen.

The "March of Time" also gives some most interesting shots concerning the missing persons bureau of the New York Police Department.

Hollywood With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., March 20.—Everybody says Hollywood is a crazy place. They're right. I went over to Columbia to visit Katharine Hepburn on the "Holiday" set. The first person I ran into was Dwight Taylor, who lives just around the corner from me. Haven't seen him since we were in London two years ago. There I ran into him every day. He's doing "This Thing Called Love." Wouldn't we all like to have a hand in that!

HEDDA HOPPER.

Then along came Donald Ogden Stewart, who looks a little wan from his automobile accident. He's done the script on "Holiday." When the play was first introduced, he acted in its original New York production.

I arrived on the set in time for tea, which Katie poured from an old Spode pot—just as she does in her own home.

"How come I'm allowed here?" I inquired. "I thought your sets were always closed." "We welcome you," Katie said "as an actress, not a columnist. You know," she went on, "I'm fascinated with all the things people write about me; it gives me something to do between scenes trying to live up to them."

After tea, Katie took me on a personal inspection tour of the set. The beauty of a double stairway got me. A whole house furnished in antiques, rare tapestries, signed needlepoint chairs (some of them belonging to the director) objects d'art, famous screens, one owned by Omar Kiam. Music boxes loaned by Katie. Real flowers all over.

Wouldn't the Fifth avenue mansions it impersonates, be flattered to look like that set! I've only been in two of them. That of Mrs. William Haywood, mother of playboy Phil Plant, former husband of Connie Bennett. And Bernard M. Baruch's. That was when Mr. and Mrs. Baruch called for me at the stage door closing night of "Divided By Three," a play I did in New York a couple of years ago, and took me back to their house for a hot supper.

But, back to Katie. She said, "You know, I got my contract through "Holiday." I just looked at her. "Yes, the test that got me "Bill of Divorcement" was a scene from "Holiday." Playing opposite was Alan Campbell, who is the husband of Dorothy Parker and now writes.

There is quite a lot of history behind "Holiday." It was Ann Harding's greatest success. After two weeks "shooting," she wanted to switch places with Mary Astor, who was playing the unsympathetic sister. Ann thought it was the better part. It took an argument from everybody in the studio to prevent her doing it. Katie told me that Doris Nolan, who's playing that part, is giving a marvelous performance.

Artist Displays Portrait Of Justice Louis Brandeis

Comins' Forced to Get Glimpses of Subject on Bench as Jurist Refused to Pose; Exhibition of Work to Open Today at Corcoran.

Five years in the painting, Eben F. Comins' portrait of Justice Louis D. Brandeis was shown for the first time yesterday at a tea at the artist's apartment, 1611 Connecticut avenue.

The justice, one of those rare persons without any vanity, was unwilling to sit and available photographs of him were inadequate for the kind of picture Mr. Comins wanted to paint. So the artist evolved his interesting work by making frequent trips to the Supreme Court to watch his subject in action.

The finished picture, which is full length, was commissioned by the Harvard Law School. Today it will be placed on exhibition at the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

Chief Justice

Among Those Present

Distinction was lent to the tea yesterday by the presence of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, who are rarely seen at social functions in the Capital. Mrs. Hughes wore over her frock a beige coat trimmed with fox and a matching hat. Mr. Justice Hughes appeared in the best of health and had a merry twinkle in his eye.

Pouring tea for the host were Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone and Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, wives of other Supreme Court Justices. Mrs. ZeBarney Phillips, Mrs. William Barrett Ridgely, Mrs. Dean Acheson, Mrs. Charles Warren and Mrs. Daniel Knowlton.

Distinguished People

Among Those Present

Among other guests were Mrs. Charles McNary, wearing a heavy fur cape and a smart new spring sailor hat; agreeable Mrs. Sol Bloom and Miss Vera Bloom; Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, in a lavender outfit; Miss Meta Evans, Miss Margaret Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Owsley, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Cuniberti, the latter in a black tailored suit with a matching hat, Mrs. George Oakley Totten and Mr. and Mrs. William Phelps Eno. Mrs. Eno is herself a talented painter.

Prior to visiting Guatemala several months ago, Mr. Comins spent some time in Mexico, devoting much of it to the painting of Indian types. These paintings were shown last year at a studio tea at which there was also exhibited a portrait of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, for which she sat just before leaving for Oslo to be American Minister to Norway.

In the course of the last several years Mr. Comins has made portraits of many persons well-known in Washington, among them Mrs. George Barnett, Mrs. William Rumer Yaw, daughter of the late Senator James Couzens, and her children, the late Senator Guy D. Goff and Ruth St. Denis, in a green dancing costume.

Mauve Decade Party March 28

Yachtsmen from all along the astern seaboard will come to Washington for the third annual edition of the Gold Cup Gay Nineties Ball to be held on Monday evening, March 28, at the Willard Hotel. This event has been arranged for the benefit of the 1938 regatta fund by the sponsors committee of the President's Cup Regatta Association.

Guests will wear picturesque costumes of the Mauve Decade, and there will be songs and dances in keeping with the period.

The grand march will be reviewed by Charles S. Bittinger, John Clagett Proctor and Hope Ridings Miller, who will award prizes for the most beautiful, the most unusual and the most amusing outfits worn.

Members of the company will compete in the schottische and the polka prize dances.

Reservations for boxes have been made by Mr. and Mrs. L. Gordon Leech, Robert J. Cottrell, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin D. Hildreth, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Whitman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Knowles Stott, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Schanks, Miss Mattie Wyatt Porter, Maurice G. Long, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Eric R. Forum Conducted On Decatur House

Club and U. S. Officials Talk at Arts Club.

Historic Decatur House was the center of a round table discussion at the Arts Club last evening. It was discussed from the standpoint of its architectural and historic importance by Dr. Francis S. Ronalds, chief of historic sites, Survey Division, National Parks Service; Capt. Dudley W. Knox, secretary of the Naval Historical Foundation; Mr. Arthur L. Blakeslee, chief architect, Procurement Division of the Treasury Department; Miss Myrta Ethel Cawood, president of the Professional Writers Club, which has launched the campaign to preserve Decatur House, and Frank B. Steele, secretary-general, Sons of the American Revolution.

At a chafing dish supper preceding the discussion, the civic committee of the club served as hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Lenox Uhler will be hosts at dinner at the Arts Club tomorrow. Following dinner, the Committee of Industrial Arts will present Miss Genevive Hendricks, well-known Washington interior decorator, who will give a short talk on the subject, "Expressing Personality in the Home."

Miss Camille Allensworth and Mrs. Katherine Morrison will be dinner hosts at the club Thursday evening, preceding a violin recital by Helen Belt, assisted by Alexander Clayton at the piano.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

SIGNS OF SPRING (besides the crocuses and forsythia): Mrs. C. Mathews Dick's smart new hat made of three petals of the pale traille silk, close fitting and going up into a pouf at the top . . . Mrs. Robert Joyce's new chapeau, which, incidentally, only someone as young and pretty as she could wear a black straw, with a vivid green veil coming down over the face and tied in a bow at the back . . . Incidentally, Mr. and Mrs. Joyce had a few friends teaing with them yesterday at their home in Georgetown . . . For smart simplicity: Mrs. Harold Tittman's sailor of black and natural-colored straw, with a small upturning brim and short streamers of silk.

DUDLEY HARMON.

By the way, did you know that your new spring chapeau may be all mixed up with social significance? Concern over spring style trends calling for the display of artificial flowers on hats and lapels, and over the conditions under which they are made by home workers has motivated plans for a luncheon discussion today in New York. The executive secretary of the Consumers League of New York has called the meeting. Fancy! Posies on hats always before seemed one thing in the world completely innocuous and innocent. Who would have thought there could be anything sinister behind them?

* * * *

ATTRACTIVE Dorothy Mondell Gregg is off today for five days in New York, her first trip this winter . . . The "Hughdie" Auchinclosses are due back on Thursday from a trip to the Chilean Lakes. Reports have it that they thoroughly enjoyed themselves, having been armed before departure with a number of letters of introduction to all the "best people" in South America . . . Si Whitney, who has one of the better senses of humor, came down from New York to spend the past week-end with Sherlock Davis, who has Miss Janet Fish's charming little house in Georgetown. Si was once a New Dealer but now works for some capitalistic interests. He shares a house in Manhattan with Frank Currie, another erstwhile New Dealer and another clever conversationalist, and John Davenport, writer and nephew of Marcia Davenport, author and music commentator.

IT LOOKS AS THOUGH the Metropolitan Opera would open in Baltimore tonight without the presence of two Washingtonians who have made regular pilgrimages there in other years: Mrs. Tracy Dows and Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, leading music patrons who this time are unable to attend . . . Why is it that Baltimore, not Washington, gets all the good things like ice-skating carnivals and the Met? . . . Mr. and Mrs. John Hanes have returned from a trip to Chicago, Minneapolis, and St. Paul, during the course of which Mr. Hanes' speeches created quite a controversy in the financial pages of the newspapers. He is the most recently appointed SEC Commissioner, and both he and his wife have scored a big hit in Washington. Mr. Hanes was a classmate at college of Dean Acheson and Wayne Chatfield-Taylor.

MAKING MERRY at the Heigh-Ho of a Saturday evening were Belle Johnson, in a becoming black chiffon frock appliqued with flowers; Dolly Corbin, Steve Spingarn, Bud Watson, Rebecca Davidson, Junia Culbertson, Frank Walker and the aforementioned Si Whitney . . . John Stonborough whipped up to New York over the week-end to welcome his charming mother, who is here from Austria for her annual visit.

Henry Gregors Return From Florida Today

Close Villa in Miami to Come Back to Capital for Some Weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gregor are closing their villa in Miami, "Sweet Way," and returning to Washington today. They will be in the Capital for some weeks as Mr. Gregor is to present two series of music talks at the Phillips Memorial Gallery, lasting until about the middle of May. The first of the two series is sponsored by the gallery and opens tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock. The second series, an afternoon schedule, will be given Mondays at 3:30 p. m., beginning April 4, and under auspices of the Junior League of Washington.

Mr. Gregor's topic tomorrow night will be "Music Yesterday and Today." This also is the general topic of the entire series. His other sub-titles for the remaining seven talks in the Tuesday evening series will include: "Early Masters of Musical Art," "The History of Piano and Piano Literature," "The History of the Orchestra and Orchestral Music," "Dance and Its Place in Music," "The American Idiom," "Modern Music and How to Listen to It," and "The Music of Tomorrow."

Mr. Gregor recently was made a member of the faculty of Miami University. Both his Washington series will be given for the benefit of an important musical organization in the National Capital.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Having 'Talked Back' to Fussy Old Lady Who Employed Her, Nurse Wonders If She Was Justified.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young woman 18 years old, making my living nursing and working very hard to meet expenses. I have to cater to old persons, suffering persons, spoiled children and to rich, spoiled characters. Not long ago I took care of an elderly lady who was not ill but who wanted someone to read to her. She was a spoiled old person and no one suited her.

* * * *

"You do not read well," she told me. "You read too slowly. You just don't read easily." Every now and then she attempted to recite poetry but usually ruined the lines by sing-songing them. I said to her: "You don't mind if I tell you something, do you? I am sure you won't, because you never hesitate to criticise me. You can't recite poetry. You ruin every line you speak.

* * * *

"I shall never be able to hear those lovely lines by Byron or Wordsworth after this," I told her, "without being nauseated, for I shall remember your old voice cracking, your drawn-up, ugly old face squirming round and round getting the wrong pronunciation, your sing-song rhyming and your silly, egotistical way of thinking you are doing the thing beautifully." After she had put me off the case (I was leaving, anyway) I wondered if I had done an uncharitable thing. Let me know about this, please.

CONSTANT READER.

* * * *

What to Believe.

DEAR CONSTANT READER: Have you, indeed, already said this? Or are you merely contemplating it, and wondering whether or not you would be justified in so doing. If you haven't said it, don't do it, for two reasons. For one thing, the hallmark of the aristocrat is the ability to meet rudeness with calm courtesy and serene detachment. For another thing, as nurse-companion to a fussy old lady, you have a professoinal obligation to heal, if you can—and certainly not to hurt or to aggravate—that sickness of spirit which makes her so sharp-tongued and disagreeable.

* * * *

However, if you have already said it, stop re-hashing the incident in your mind. Such a statement made to an elderly woman was uncharitable, in the sense of being harsh and fault-finding. The thought or feeling which provoked—or would provoke—such a blast, is not too healthy or vigorous. Had you not been rather worn down physically or nervously, the old lady's pretensions to elocutionary ability would have amused and touched, rather than nauseated you. It may have been that she quarreled with your reading style only as a pretext for taking the platform herself, with you as her paid audience.

* * * *

The woman is, unquestionably, reverting to childishness, perhaps, indeed, she never grew out of the child stage of emotional and social development; but has been, as the result of substantial means, a spoiled darling all her life. Yet if you yourself were fully mature, you would have found it possible to handle her with that firm, impersonal kindliness an intelligent, self-possessed adult employs in handling a temperish junior. If you have stated exactly what was said by each person, I should say the lady, in spite of her pettiness, bored on the point of breeding. In objecting to your reading style, she confined herself to a criticism of style only. You, on the contrary, indulged in bitter personalities. To have held her "old voice, ugly old face, etc." up to ridicule was a sorry lapse from rudimentary good manners which, as most of us were instructed in childhood, invariably spring from a kindly heart.

* * * *

However, all of us live and learn, as much by our lapses as by our achievements, so if you have inadvertently done an unworthy thing in this instance, let it serve as a reminder to exercise more self-control and magnanimity in future. M. H.

Pleats, Prints Play Lead Role In Fashion Show

SPRING definitely came to town last Saturday at the Shoreham Hotel with the smart presentation of clothes for daytime and evening by Frances et Frances. Prints, costume suits, sheers, redingotes, shirtwaist dinner dresses, classic chiffons for formal wear; appeared in numerous clever versions.

Pleats were everywhere, and a word to the wise—if you haven't at least one pleated skirt in your wardrobe this spring, it will not be complete. All-around pleated skirts, dresses whose bodice and skirts are both pleated; pleated skirts fronts; stitched pleats and those which are softly pressed; are evidence of the variety and popularity of this effective dressmaker touch which is having such unprecedented popularity this spring.

Never have prints been so much in demand as they are this year and never have they been so attractive, both as to color combination and styling. Outstanding in this gala fashion show were several "changeable" prints; the material woven in such a manner that the gowns seemed to change color as the models paraded. Another interesting interpretation was a Persian print on a dull gold ground, dramatized with deep purple accessories.

Navy and beige were other colors exploited in the showing. Navy day-time sheers with white pique trimming and navy redingotes over gay printed or dotted dresses; one-piece dresses of beige crepe with full pleated skirts and beige bolero suits worn with dark or luggage tan accessories were highlights in this classification. One costume which received a lot of comment had a skirt of navy, bolero-back bodice of poudre blue and wide purple sash; the purple note was repeated in a bunch of violets on the bodice pocket.

Tricolor combinations were popular among the audience in the evening group display, with such color mergers as gold, brown and red; black, green and white. In contrast to the bouffant-skirted lace evening gowns were those of filmy chiffon draped in Grecian-like fashion of elusive soft colorings. The new flower-bodice presented in the recent Paris showings was also exploited—an American adaptation consisting of black skirt, multi-colored flower bodice and nude chiffon straps.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, March 20.

YOUR RAMBLING reporter is now suffering from an acute attack of the occupational disease which smites her ilk at this time each year. Its medical name is long and Latin, but to us in the business it it is known as "fasion eyes."

ALICE HUGHES

This frightful ailment is contracted, as you may well imagine, during the week when the spring imports from Paris are unveiled, not to mention the dozens of little numbers run up by the local houses themselves. The horrible style orgy begins to get us down after three or four days, and "fashion eyes" begin to afflict us at about the same time. My own 1938 attack arrived at the end of a day which had offered the two largest and fanciest shows on the avenue.

Late in the afternoon I watched over 100 costumes pass in review and in the evening, at the largest and handsomest show of all, no less than 300 were paraded by endless queenly mannequins with undulating hips and frozen smiles. Four hundred ensembles, however lovely, and guaranteed to produce "fashion eyes" of a virulent type, and I had mine. Not only eye-strain is involved, but nervous tension over a period of hours is a serious matter, and this optical ordeal is complicated by the fact that the showrooms are filled with as many as 300 ladies and gents of the press and the store, nearly all smoking furiously.

The evening show, at one of the Avenue's most famous houses, is really a magnificent affair, displaying the pick of Paris as well as the creations of its own staff of a dozen designers. In fact, it is such a wondrous event that my helpmate actually insists on going—fantastic in a fashion-girl's husband! He not only enjoys seeing the lovely girls, but the clothes as well, and even has a favorite Paris designer—Vionnet. Her clothes this spring are admirable.

And now I am fighting "fashion eyes," which is almost as horrible as blindness itself. Anyone with a tin cup and little dog to spare—please wire.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Murray Hill is perking up, now that this is the first day of spring (according to the calendar, anyway) and Neighbor J. P. Morgan has come back to his old manse at Thirty-seventh street and Madison avenue. This means that at present two, instead of one, heavy-set gentlemen in iron hats and broad-toed shoes are looking nonchalant about the premises. They are the first line of defense of his person and his priceless art and manuscript collection.

* * * *

Two other Murray Hillbillies, Mel and Harriet Rivard, are happy youngsters these days. They are about to set off on their first trip to Europe, lasting five or six weeks. Since they've only been married a year, this will be a grand honeymoon for these pals of mine, even though Mel will also be doing some business for the avenue store which hires him.

Katherine Dayton's new play, "Save Me The Waltz," had a tragically short life on Broadway, though it boasted a remarkable cast, including Laura Hope Crews, Jane Wyatt, Molly Pearson, Mady Christians, Martha Sleeper, Leo C. Carroll and John Emery. A rialto rumor hath it that the play was rushed in while still unripe, owing to a report that Dorothy Thompson was also hurrying along a play about a dictator and his doings . . .

The nicknames for socialities freely used by our smart social chatterers always delight me. The Margaret Trimble who is to marry Count Revedin is really "Moppie" Trimble, and Robert Ogden Bacon, jr., is actually "Bunty." It's all so clubby and pulsy!

1938 Streamlined Subtlety Seen In Both Home, Clothes Styles

Feminine Frills Invade Interior Decoration, as New York Bride's House Shows, Stressing Mellow-Toned Simplicity in Colors.

By Ethel Ehlen.

As clothes go, so goes interior decorating! In this season of color in fashions, with femininity and romance lending charm to stylings, it is interesting to note that houses and apartments are adopting the same general theme. Clothes are borrowing ideas from the gay 90's and the Gibson girl returns to the style scene; rooms are going Victorian, that is, in a modernized manner.

Stripes, dots and flowered patterns are much in evidence both in the wardrobe and in smart house furnishings; colors are subtle rather than blatant. Eighteenth century furniture graces modern homes; evening clothes of eighteenth century influence are extremely popular for modern dancing.

As in the case of fashion, interior decorators combine old and the new in a smart manner to keep in tune with current designs for living. There is a touch of romance both in clothes and houses, but without melodrama—the underlying theme being a 1938 streamlined directness.

Houses like clothes, according to modern terms of practibility, are to be lived in; they must fit the needs of an age of animation, speed, and hospitality. Both stress simplicity as the essence of smartness—with suitable accents to dramatize, in a dignified manner.

These timely tips should be an aid to the bride who is planning her home as well as her trousseau. To help in a direct way, the 1938 Bride's House in New York opens today. Three separate house interpretations are included in the decorations, illustrating the eighteenth century English influence, Colonial American, French and modern Swedish; each is complete with bath, kitchen and terrace.

Among new trends, one of the most outstanding notes is use of muted tones, underwater colors and subtle blendings. Upholstering fabrics are fine and smooth, but instead of looking shiny new, they have mellow tones—as though they had been used and seen in the sun, an antique effect, which is smart with modern pieces.

Stripes are featured throughout all rooms, in wall paper, fabrics and hangings; some bold and clear; others intricate, shaded or subdued. Wallpapers feature strong colors and large flower clusters, as well as French designs, or copies of fine old papers. In the realm of carpets, instead of the conventional taupes and browns, they are woodsy green, rose, cedar, turquoise and sea green.

Lamps show interesting variety, with bases of fine crystal, pottery and wood; some are reproductions of classic forms. The majority of shades are plain. Glass is used profusely throughout all rooms—both architecturally and in mirrors. In the matter of furniture, light bleached woods are combined with walnut and mahogany.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

Introducing Mrs. De Goofey.

MRS. HENRIETTA DeGOOFEY, in an exclusive interview today in this column, annuonces the launching of the "Do Something About It" league, which she promises will "take drastic action against the petty annoyances of life."

"You may quote me as saying," said Mrs. DeGoofy, "— and don't forget there are two 't's' in Henrietta —that it is high time we women of America did something about all the little irritations that run up our blood pressure and spoil our looks. A hundred times a day, confronted with unnecessary situations and obnoxious persons, we fuss and fume and declare 'there ought to be a law!' But we do nothing about it. Now I intend to devote my league to doing something about it."

To Curb Dawdlers.

"Just what reforms have you in mind, Mrs. DeGoofey?"

"There are hundreds pressing for attention. One is the licensing of women shoppers. Our sidewalks and stores are cluttered with dilly-daddlers who don't know why they are there or where they are going. Why, I ask you, should we require licenses for women drivers of automobiles and then permit at large on foot women who are definitely of the type that should never leave home?"

"You think the motor car situation is well in hand, then?"

"I most certainly do not: Our league will do something harsh along that line, especially against traffic policemen who haven't yet discovered that the genus pedestrian exists and also against drivers who honk at you when you haven't any place to go except to ascend into the stratosphere. However, that's a story in itself."

"Will your campaign be directed against men or women pests, Mrs. DeGoofey?"

"Both. We shall do something about women in theaters who turn around and ask you if their hats are 'in the way.' We shall also take action against the man who occupies a seat and a half in street car and bus. Be assured, we plan early developments concerning the woman radio performer with the wide-eyed little girl voice, also the man announcer who puts sex appeal into his tones when he is discussing tooth paste."

Work for G-Men.

"Will you do much investigating, Mrs. DeGoofey?"

"We shall investigate everything and anything. We shall investigate why milliners invariaby sell homely women hats that make them look like some strange species of bird, why loud speakers are permitted in apartment houses, why lamb chops served at club luncheons run to bone and fat, why mirrors are gradually disappearing from elevators—by the way I suspect a Nazi coup there—why churlish, uncivil fellows are aways chosen to sell or collect tickets, why motor cars are so hard to open, why all doorkeepers are so self-important—oh the list of things to investigate is endless."

"Are the services of your league open to the public, Mrs. DeGoofey?"

"Absolutely. Anyone wanting anything cleared up has only to write me."

"By the way, Mrs. DeGoofey, why did you happen to take up the leadership of this movement?"

Emancipated Woman.

"Because I am probably the only free woman in the United States. In the first place, I am a widow with an annuity. I am thus not subject to either a husband or an employer. In the second place, I am a mother and can do almost anything I please without facing the charge of being a meddlesome old maid or a frustrated woman. In the third place I am a grandmother, which gives me authority and dignity and the privilige of being photographed with small children. Fourth, since Mr. DeGoofey was an orphan, I have no in-laws to complain of my activities. Fifth, I have passed the dangerous age, have definitely quit trying to be charming and no longer have to worry about what men will think of me."

"Do you think the men will resent your activities?"

"Not at all. In fact, I expect them to feel very kindly toward me because they will regard me as 'another crazy woman.'"

"By the way, Mrs. DeGoofey, are you—that is, have you any Presidential aspirations for 1940?"

"Absolutely no. You may quote me as saying—and don't forget that there is only one 'f' in DeGoofey—that I am most certainly, most emphatically and most finally not a candidate for the Presidential nomination—at this time."

'Pinchbeck' Combs.

Paris (U.P.).—At the Auteuil races the beautiful blonde Countess of Chabannes started a fashion trend with the bright red "pinchbeck" comb she wore fastened on the exposed side of her smart straw glengarry hat. These "pinchbeck" combs are just the thing to insure a smooth coiffure throughout exciting sports events.

YOUR FIGURE, SIR!

Blood Pressure Is Called Most Significant in Life Expectancy.

By Ida Jean Kain.

TEN YEARS ago life insurance companies paid little attention to blood pressure, but now they regard it as one of the most significant factors in life expectancy. With a blood pressure of 100 or more it is practically impossible to get insurance.

Excess weight, so often associated with high blood pressure, is also an increasingly important consideration in estimating life expectancy. It is not unusual for the excessively overweight man of 35 to be rated at 45. According to statistics on the relation of weight to mortality, the increase in mortality appears to be greater when weight exceeds the normal by more than 20 per cent.

Not only do high blood pressure and overweight seem to go together, but the most effective way of lowering the blood pressure is by a decrease in weight. In a medical survey of 1,000 cases of overweight, in every case of a person over 20 years of age, the blood pressure was above normal. Without exception, a weight loss was followed by a reduction in blood pressure. A small a weight loss as 10 pounds has been found to lower the blood pressure by 14 points.

Reduction of weight has brought high blood pressure of 200 down to 150 and a blood pressure of 150 down to 130 and even to 120. Such reduction of the blood pressure as effected in numerous cases which were the subject of dietary experiments. The success of these experiments would seem to indicate that, through weight reduction, both the diastolic atnd the systolic blood pressure can be reduced by 20 per cent of the amount by which they exceed the accepted normal.

A study of the cases shows a marked parallel between the rise in weight and the rise in blood pressure. In one case the blood pressure rose from 165 to 205 during a slight increase. With the loss of only seven pounds the blood pressure dropped to 175.

A period of overeating with a subsequent weight gain usually causes the blood pressure to shoot right back up again. It has been found very easy to maintain the lowered blood pressure, however, when the diet is such that no weight gain is made.

Except with kidney complications, the dietary for overweight and high blood pressure is a normal reducing diet. Seventy-five to 100 grams of protein daily is not excessive except in cases of nephritis. This amount of protein is furnished in one-half pound of lean meat, one to two eggs, one to two glasses of skim milk or buttermilk and three slices of bread. To assure adequate vitamins and proteins the diet must also include daily two or more cooked vegetables, raw vegetables and fresh fruits.

Aside from the fact that they are low in calories the "Man Size Reducing Menus" are adequate in every respect, and they will help you to reduce your weight to normal and, consequently, to lower your blood pressure. If you are 15 or more pounds above the weight that is normal for your structure, ask your doctor's advice about reducing.

Today's TALK HEALTH

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Action of Ductless Glands.

In speaking of the possible causes and treatment of arthritis a few weeks ago, I wrote that there may be a deficiency of vitamins and that concentrated vitamins might do some good; that there is seldom a case of arthritis that shows any defect of the ductless glands. Someone wrote in to ask how it is possible to know whether the ductless glands are involved or not.

In two of the ductless glands we have for a long time had methods of measurement of the activity of the glands which are quantitative. The progress we have been able to make in goiter and diabetes is due to these exact methods.

In the thyroid gland we can measure the exact amount of its activity —whether it is normal, and if subnormal the amount that it is subnormal, and if it is increased in function, the exact amount that it is increased, expressed in percentages. This can be done because the fundamental function of the thyroid gland, that of maintaining the general nutrition of the body at a certain rate of speed—the basal metabolism—can be measured in terms of the amount of oxygen used per second in relation to the body weight. Thus we can say that the thyroid is functioning 50 per cent more or 50 per cent less than normal, and so forth and so on.

The islet cells in the pancreas can also be measured exactly by reading the amount of the blood sugar. Inasmuch as these cells secrete a substance, insulin, which burns in the blood at any time that it is increased, and since we can measure by the most exact quantitative means the amount of sugar concentration in the blood, we have in the blood sugar an exact index of the activities of the internal glands of the pancreas.

It is probable that we are on the verge of having exact methods of determination for all of the ductless gland secretions. Work which has just been completed with an electrospectroscope can determine the amount of crystalline secretion from the pituitary and reproductive glands by measuring the amount of this secretion in the blood. Thus from an examination of the blood, it is possible to tell the exact stage in the cycle that any woman is in, and the maturation and movement of the ovum can be determined and predicted with great exactness.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

OFF THE RECORD.

I know only one way to discover what Washington officialdom thinks of the Hitler coup d'etat: to ask Washington officials . . . So I asked 20 of them. Each is so highly placed that he could not have spoken without assurance that his name would not be mentioned.

• • • •

ARMY OFFICER: Hitler is no maniac; he is the most brilliant statesman in Europe; smarter than Mussolini, Stalin, Chamberlain. German hegemony in Central Europe is inevitable and not undesirable. Hitler owns Mussolini . . . He knows exactly how far he can go at any given moment.

Kaiser Wilhelm . . . saintly?

• • • •

ONE OF TOP 10: The looting is so appalling that it cannot be disregarded by the democracies . . . Some vigorous method which they can understand must be found of blocking the aggressors . . . We must line up with the democracies —England, France, the Scandinavian countries and even Russia.

• • • •

SUB-CABINET OFFICIAL: It's a hell of a note . . . I was in Austria recently and I know, as Hitler knew, that Schuschnigg's plebiscite would have gone against Germany by 3 to 1 . . . NAVAL OFFICER: That monkey is a fool for luck; everyone else was handcuffed, so he moved in . . . He'll go too far and have to be smacked down . . . SENATOR: We are in as difficult a situation as in 1914. Everything accomplished in the World War is thrust aside. We must start all over. But we will do what we do on this side of the Atlantic not the other.

"—a fool for luck, or a genius?"

HIGH QUASI-JUDICIAL OFFICIAL: I hated to see it happen, but it seemed inevitable. Let's hope it goes no further . . . BUREAU CHIEF: We must use all our ingenuity to keep out of the European mess.

• • • •

STATE DEPT. OFFICIAL: We're as much involved as we were in 1915 . . . ARMY MAN: Woodrow Wilson should have let Foch march to Berlin in 1918 . . . DIPLOMAT: There are innumerable Frenchmen who would prefer German rule to the rule of the French Left.

• • • •

ONE OF THE TOP 20: Hitler's methods are abhorrent, but the Austrian coup was a perfectly natural development; it will relieve German tension. . . . TOPNOTCH NEW DEALER: There isn't room in the world for both Hitler and decent people. Compared with him the Kaiser was saintly.

• • • •

SENATOR: More than half of Americans are more than half ready to fight with England and France against the dictators . . . A little more of this and they'll be all ready . . . REPRESENTATIVE: Well, let's examine fascism—maybe it isn't so bad after all.

• • • •

CONSERVATIVE STATESMAN: When a man has succeeded as Hitler has, I take off my hat to him, no matter how he achieved it; I respect success . . . FOREIGN TRADE EXPERT (once stationed in Europe): The only way to pacify a pig is to kick it in the snout.

"—he respects Adolf's success."

MILITARY EXPERT: Hitler will have in at the least sign of substantial resistance . . . FOREIGN DIPLOMAT: When it comes time to dump Italy and Mussolini will be on the allies' side again; Hitler will run short of money.

• • • •

ARMY FLIER: England could put a stop to all this by sending 15 squadrons to airdromes in northern and eastern France . . . BUREAU CHIEF: It's no skin off our elbows; if we can stay out of the next war we'll win it.

• • • •

STATE DEPT. LIBERAL: We would gladly have let the German Republic have Austria, but grudge it to Hitler; I hope Europe has sense enough to give Danzig and the Corridor to Germany before he snatches it in triumph.

• • • •

REPRESENTATIVE: I used to think I'd rather fight on the German side in the next war, but I think we'll all be in there with the French and English less than 18 months after they begin to shoot . . .

These are the inner, confidential thoughts of men high in official Washington . . . They cannot be quoted now because delicate diplomacy forbids. But they are a significant augury of this republic's ultimate attitude.

Job Security Parley Urges Huge Outlay

U. S. Is Asked to Expend $3,500,000,000 for Relief in '39.

Committee Named to Present Program to the President.

An appropriation of $3,500,000,000 for work and relief for the year 1939; a $5,000,000,000 public housing project requiring six years to complete, and a minimum of 3,500,000 workers on Works Pfogress jobs, were some of the sweeping recommendations included in the program adopted at the closing session of the National Conference on Work and Security.

Concluding their meeting at the Lee House, delegates who represent a combined membership of nearly 5,000,000 persons elected a committee of eight to confer with President Roosevelt and present copies of the proposed program.

Matching Aid Asked.

The three-point program, dealing with social security, works programs and relief, will be presented to labor, church and civic organizations throughout the country by the delegates.

Some of the major points in the social security program included: Federal grants to States on a matching basis for old-age assistance and aid to dependent children and the blind; broadening of occupational groups receiving assistance to include agricultural workers, seamen, domestic employes, Government and nonprofit organization workers; Federal contributions to the old-age reserve fund to enable payments before 1943 and to increase benefits.

In addition to the $5,000,000,000 housing program suggested by the conference, a $250,000,000 fund was asked for a school, hospital, and community center building program, and $500,000,000 for flood control.

Plea for Single Persons.

The program called for discontinuance of present relief status requirements, to be replaced with regulations giving preference to single unemployed persons or unemployed in families where there is no income from private employment.

Concerning direct relief, the program would authorize the President to use 20 per cent of the proposed $3,500,000,000 work-relief fund for direct relief grants to States.

Those elected to the committee to confer with the President were: Morris Watson, vice president of the American Newspaper Guild; Francis J. Gorman, president of the United Textile Workers of America; Harold Hartley, secretary of Local No. 174, of the United Auto Workers of America; David Lasser, president of the Workers Alliance of America; William P. Shields, representing the Labor Unions Unemployment Council of California; Mortimer Riemer, secretary of the National Lawyers Guild; Lee Morgan, member of the executive council of the Workers Alliance, and Frank McCullough, secretary of the Council for Social Action, Congregational Church of America.

A "Chronic Ailment."

Declaring that more than 30,000 of Rhode Island's normal working force of 60,000 textile workers are completely idle, Senator Theodore Francis Green (Dem., R. I.), told the session that "unemployment should be viewed as a chronic ailment in our national economy." He recommended Federal aid as a solution to the number of workers unable to find jobs in private industry.

Drive Launched To Gain U. S. Jobs For Colored Race

Judge Armond W. Scott, of the Municipal Court, was the principal speaker yesterday at a special meeting of the United Government Employes, called by Edgar G. Brown, in the auditorium of the Garnet-Patterson School.

The meeting was for the purpose of launching a movement for erection of a tower, on Capitol Hill, to serve as headquarters for a "junta" in the interest of employment, protection and advancement of the colored race in Government service.

"The Government being centralized here," said Brown, "the colored laborer, farmer, home builder and citizen will be lost economically and politically if he does not organize, pool his money, and provide those interested in his protection and welfare with the sinews of war."

Mrs. Elizabeth McDuffie, White House attendant, the wife of the valet to the President, is treasurer of the organization, and funds collected in the proposed $1,000,000 tower drive, will be placed in her custody.

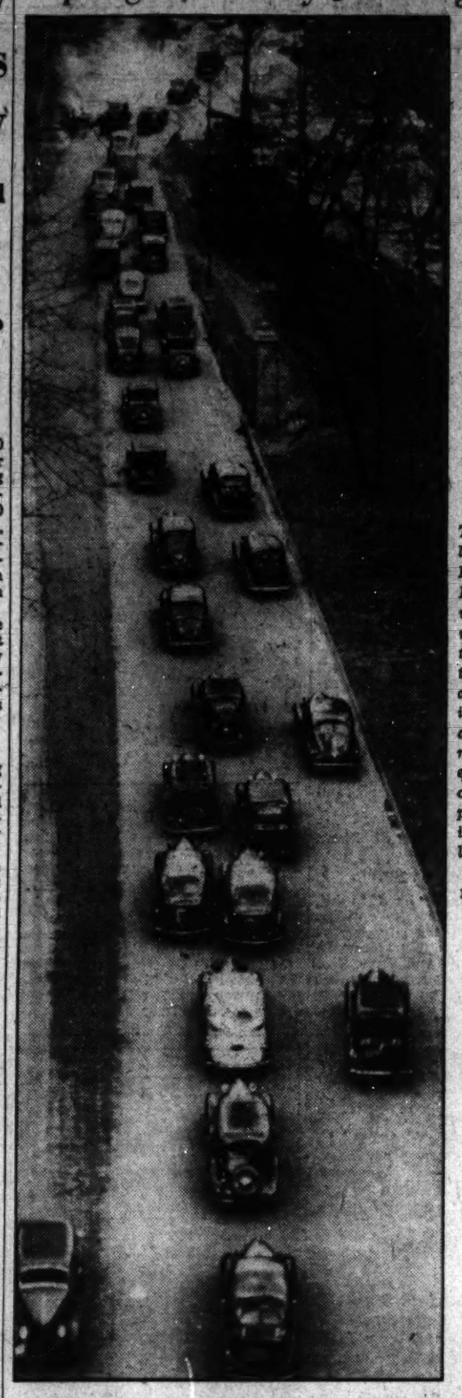
3 Pa. Gunmen Slip Capital Police Net

Twice reported sighted here, three men wanted in Butler, Pa., for highway robbery and shooting one policeman and beating another last night apparently had slipped through a cordon of squad cars which for three hours guarded every District outlet.

The general lookout brought Washington police at noon yesterday, based on information from Butler, said that the desperadoes were driving a large, black, convertible coupe with Florida tags, D-111-086.

Two of the hunted men were believed to be brothers, 25 and 21 years old. They were accompanied by a gray-haired, middle-aged man. The elder brother was described as five feet and ten inches tall, weighing 150 pounds, with light hair, while the younger is of the same build but with darker complexion.

Springlike Sunday Jams Highways



Traffic jams like this one in Rock Creek Park yesterday were common when spring took time by the forelock and gave Washington a fair and warm climax to its weekend. Many accidents were reported here and in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Attack on Religion Is Blamed For Spain's Nationalist Revolt

Laughlin, Ex-Ambassador, Addresses Open Parish at Covenant Church.

Citing Spain as an example of what can happen "when forces of religious feeling are brutally attacked by government," Irwin Laughlin, former American ambassador to Spain, addressed the Open Parish at the Chuhch of the Covenant last night on the relation between religion and civil government.

The peace of the world is dependent on the peace of mind of the human beings who compose it, Laughlin said. One way to insure that peace, he maintained, is to cultivate religious forces.

In Republican Spain, however, religion has been subjected to severe persecution, according to Laughlin. The Left Wing, which won the election of February, 1936, he said, has been "captured" by Communists and Anarchists.

Laughlin said that the "nationalist" movement has been joined by "all the respectable parties in the country."

Representative John S. McGroarty (Democrat), of California, spoke on religious influences in Government.

The speakers were introduced by Dr. William S. Culbertson, former American ambassador to Chile and minister to Rumania. Dr. Albert J. McCartney is pastor of the church and Dr. John Carruthers, visiting minister, is chaplain of the open parish.

At St. Augustine

The modern break-up of family life may result in "the demise of our present civilization," asserted the Rev. John J. O'Connor, S. J., at St. Aloysius Church.

The "evils of mixed marriage, divorce and birth control" constitute assaults upon the home, said Father O'Connor. "Now, after years of undermining society's bulwark and foundation, we are approaching the crisis—a dissolution which is the outcome of childless, godless, selfish broken homes."

Pastor Likes Bridge Unless Dinner Suffers

Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Methodist Episcopal Church, South, told his congregation yesterday that there's no harm in playing bridge so long as it doesn't mean canned soup for dinner.

Dr. Rustin announced that he played the game himself and "you don't have to hide out in the bushes to find out about it either."

"The moral issue comes," he said, "when a woman spends all afternoon playing bridge and then rushes home and feeds her husband on canned soup."

Fire on Avenue Draws Hundreds; Loss Slight

A two-alarm fire that poured a heavy cloud of smoke into the third and fourth floors of a building at 629 Pennsylvania avenue northwest attracted hundreds of spectators last night but did little property damage. The blaze believed to have been caused by overheated flues of a downstairs restaurant, was confined to vacant rooms in the upper part of the building.

Tax Evaders Aid Fascism, Coyle Warns

Economist Says Public Must Sacrifice to Save Democracy.

Tells Forum U. S. Position None Too Strong With Huge Idle Role.

David Cushman Coyle, consultant to the Senate Committee on Unemployment and Relief, warned yesterday that Fascist dictators "will rule the world" unless peoples of democratic nations are willing to sacrifice for their form of government.

Coyle, in a Modern Forum lecture at the Washington Hotel, said that if the citizens of the democracies remain "selfish and unwilling to build up the internal strength of their country, they may be bluffed out of the world's goods."

He explained that he was not pleading for a strong navy, because "what good is a navy outside if the country is rotting inside."

U. S. Position Not Strong.

The United States is not in a strong position with 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 unemployed, and with our economic system in the unholy mess it is now."

Coyle attributed the "unholy mess" to the fact that the "American people do not want to pay taxes."

"All we have to do is spend enough to keep our country prosperous. We're spending about half enough now."

"The American people are going to suffer terribly until they learn that it is by activity, not economizing, that machines are made to produce wealth."

Coyle emphasized that he did not want to see fascism come to America. "I don't see it happening here yet, but fascism is the kind of strong government you get if democracy fails."

Says Debt Misunderstood.

Coyle charged that much criticism of the Federal debt was based on misunderstanding of the budget, on the part of individuals and the Government itself. He said that the budget lists together four separate types of expenditures—outright spending for running expenses, social security payments, in which the Government is simply a channel for distributing money, intangible investments, and tangible investments.

"We should regard the budget as balanced, when we take in enough to cover running expenses of the Government and intengible investments." The latter type, he said, included such projects as soil and forest conservation, education and public health services, in which "the taxpayer's money is used for something that increases the taxpayer's wealth without increasing the property of the Government."

As for the debt, he said, about half is represented by assets, and the remaining unsecured half is about equal to what the United States spent on the World War. "Posterity will pay off the debt if it feels like it, and otherwise posterity will continue to owe the debt to itself," he declared, adding that bonds representing the Federal debt "are the only paper bankers have in their vaults that they feel sure about."

Public Must Pay.

Coyle fixed the minimum budget needed by the Federal Government at $7,000,000,000. "A Democracy can't run unless its people pay the bill. A democracy that is not willing to pay taxes is not fit to live. And it won't live."

He recommended that increased tax needs be met by increasing income and inheritance taxes.

Members of the discussion panel were Dr. George Strasser, professor of public finance at Georgetown University, and Representative Robert Crosser, of Ohio. More than 200 persons attended the meeting.

Georgians Here Warned To Pay Up Poll Taxes

Georgia voters residing in Washington yesterday were advised that any registered voter must pay the 1937 poll tax, and any previous unpaid poll taxes before May 7, to be eligible for voting in the primary election September 6.

May 7 was set as the last day for registration. Absentee ballots may be obtained from the Democratic National Committee, in the Georgia unit of the Democratic Absentee Voters' Bureau.

Pastor Holds 'Give and Take' Is First Rule of Married Life

Post Staff Photo.

Among married couples who heard the Rev. C. B. Austin preach yesterday on marriage at West Washington Baptist Church were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Sarrin, of 2201 Fortieth place northwest. Married by the Rev. Mr. Austin 11 months ago, theirs was the latest wedding at which he officiated.

Thirty of 85 Couples He Has Wed in 15 Years of Pastorate Hear Rev. Austin Read Marriage Service Again.

Couples married by the Rev. C. B. Austin in his 15 years as pastor of West Washington Baptist Church were special guests last night when the Rev. Mr. Austin read the marriage service as part of a sermon on marriage.

Learning "to give and take and to respect each other's viewpoints," he said was one of the important rules for success in married life. It is equally important, he said "to learn the value of co-operation by holding together, walking together and sharing together; to make the marriage vows a vital part of daily living; for the husband to love his wife even more than Jesus loved the Church; for the wife to be a worker with her husband and not a slave for him, and to hold the marriage ceremony as a sacred obligation, instituted by God."

It is "very easy," the Rev. Mr. Austin said, for married couples to go wrong today, especially when in dire financial straits. "However," he said, "it is not always the married people in dire straits who go wrong today, but those who have had every opportunity to live a decent life and who have no economic insecurity."

In his pastorate at the West Washington Church, the Rev. Mr. Austin has married 85 couples. Thirty of them were in last night's congregation.

Shot by Policeman, Man Is Near Death

John Butler, colored, 23, 700 block Lamont street northwest, who was shot four times Saturday night in a fracas with a policeman, was near death in Casualty Hospital last night. He was held under police guard.

The policeman, Edmund J. Fitzgerald, of the Fifth Precinct who was slashed on the face and both knees, remained in Casualty Hospital, but physicians said his condition is not serious.

Butler's brother, Ben L. Butler, 26, was also held as a suspect. He was booked for investigation at the Ninth Precinct station. A third man, Edward Stafford, colored, 23, driver of the car, was detained as a witness.

Ben Butler and Stafford both signed statements yesterday admitting their parts in the episode.

Dr. Bert Edward Smith, M. E. Educator, Dies

Minneapolis, March 20 (AP).—Dr. Bert Edward Smith, 57, from 1920 to 1934 superintendent of the adult department of education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, with headquarters in Chicago, died today.

Police Arrest Trio, Seize Liquor Cache

In two of the biggest raids on untaxed liquor in recent months, police yesterday seized 207 quarts of illegal whisky and arrested two men and a woman.

Led by Detective Roy Blick of No. 3 Precinct, the officers first visited 1515 P street northwest. Here they confiscated 200 quarts of whisky and arrested Sarah Robinson, 37, and Henry Loving, 20 both colored.

Seven quarts more were seized at 1830 Eighteenth street northwest, where the police arrested John Cooper, colored, 38.

The three were charged with possession and sale of untaxed liquor. The liquor was removed to the Third Precinct station, where it will be collected by Internal Revenue agents.

Town Hall Chides Attack On Germany

But British Author Denies English Are 'Self-Righteous.'

Guedalla Is Optimistic About Future of Democracy.

Members of the Town Hall panel last night took Philip Guedalla to task for what they seemed to consider too unreasoning a hymn of hate against Germany and the Germans.

Guedalla, British historian and biographer, had declared that residents of a country which makes a fetish of racial and religious intolerance must be morally inferior to British and Americans.

Chided by the Right Rev. John A. Ryan, Catholic University professor and by John Franklin Carter, political commentator, for indicting a whole people, the speaker explained that he was referring only to those in power in Germany and not to the masses.

Guedalla Optimistic.

Bitter about dictatorships in general and about Germany's annexation of Austria in particular, Guedalla nevertheless declared earlier in his speech that in the light of history things don't look so bad for democracy.

"If I were a believer in tyranny, I should be depressed," he said, asserting that it is clear that tyrannies are futile and exist only in "defiance of the process of history."

He pointed out that 100 years ago the situation looked worse for democratic governments than it does today. England and the United States were the only democracies at that time, he said, and both were weakling nations compared to their present stature.

Absolutism Limited.

He asserted that at the present time absolutism is confined to Central Europe, to Italy and to Russia, but that democracy has spread, especially with the growth of United States and Great Britain.

Guedalla declared armament races don't necessarily lead to war, but might very possibly lead to peace depending on "who wins the race."

Expressing the opinion that the strongest force in politics is the "power of repulsion," the speaker predicted that Great Britain and the United States must inevitably be pushed closer together by a common hatred of dictatorships and intolerance.

In the panel questioning, Carter pointed out that maybe the English-speaking countries are being a little self-righteous about Hitler's coup and gently asked whether the violent opponents of military arrogance weren't themselves being morally arrogant, Guedalla didn't think they were.

Father Ryan observed that most civilized races were pretty much alike only "some require more temptation before they fall."

Robert Lincoln O'Brien, former chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, presided at the meeting, held at the Rialto Theater. Lothrop Stoddard, writer on international relations, was the third member of the panel.

14 WASHINGTON: MONDAY, MARCH 21, 1938 X*

This Morning

Estallela Is Mastering King's English.

By Shirley Povich.

Orlando, Fla.

I am pleased to report that Senor Roberto Estallela is winning his battle with the King's English, a struggle which appeared hopeless when he first joined the Nats three years ago. The fiery little Cuban outfielder, who was saved from starvation in American restaurants back in 1935 because he had learned to sputter "em-enex" to the waitresses, has now blossomed as a conversationalist.

POVICH.

"Bobby all right now. Bobby talk fine, no?" says Bobby. "Last year Bobby not talk so good sure. Bobby all right now, talk fast, talk good."

And Bobby is a better ball player now also, he'll have you know. "Oh, sure," says Bobby. "Bobby heet hard, heet good. Catch ball, too, sure. Catch ball good. Easy, sure. Like this," and the little Cuban went through the gestures of catching a fly ball that was the mold of good form and would evoke the envy of Tris Speaker, Sammy West, Joe DiMaggio or any other outfield artist.

"He teach me last year," said Bobby, pointing across the lobby to Clyde Milan, Nats' coach. "He teach me good, sure. Catch ball easy now. Catch ball good. Last year no good. This year, good. Sure. He teach me good and Bobby catch ball good."

Estallela evidently learned much from Milan inasmuch as two seasons ago it was an even bet whether Bobby would catch a fly ball or suffer a scalp wound in the attempt.

"Sure, that's it. I learn. From Milan I learn much, sure. Oh, yes, I learn very much. Bobby learn good, Bobby learn—how you say—too much!"

Giants Silent Bunch.

Bill Terry, the literary gentleman, holds such absolute sway over the New York Giants that his ball players and coaches shy from a public expression. Terry has made it understood that any matters pertaining to the Giants will be announced by himself and frowns on newspapermen who attempt to pry trade secrets from his hirelings.

Thus it is that the Giants are close-mouthed in the presence of baseball correspondents, but the extent of Terry's censorship was not fully known until the other day when a traveling correspondent who had been visiting all of the training camps arrived in Orlando.

"Covering the Giants' camp is a nuisance," he said. 'Nobody over there dares to speak except Terry. Why, I was talking to Frank Snyder, the coach, and asking him about the team, but it was time wasted. 'You'll have to ask Terry,' he told me when I asked about the team's hold-outs. I figured maybe Snyder was right—that he wouldn't know about the hold-outs, and then I asked him how the pitching staff was coming along. He could surely tell me that.

"'Sorry; you'll have to ask Terry,' he told me again.

"That was getting to be a joke, but I tried one more trick. 'Nice day today, Frank,' I finally said to Snyder.

"'I wouldn't know about that,' Snyder said. 'You'll have to ask Terry.'"

Rookie $100,000 Short.

Mickey Owen, the Cardinals' young catcher who tangled with Mel Almada in a dug-out battle here the other day, has fallen exactly $100,000 short of justifying his label as a $100,000 rookie. Branch Rickey tagged him with that figure a year ago when he came to the Gas House Gang as the best-looking young catcher in the minor leagues.

A slightly cynical press-box occupant appraised Owen's talents cleverly the other day. "He's got a lot of pepper out there behind the bat. Look at him talking it up all the time. He can really move around behind the bat. He'd be a great ball player if he could only hit and field, and if he could only throw. You bet, he'd be a great ball player."

Owen hit .231 last year.

In Short—

Wes Ferrell, who has gone into some prize tantrums on the pitching mound in his time, tearing his glove to bits, stomping the ground and kicking his cap in a white flame of anger, pulled a new one today. In a billiard game with Jimmy DeShong he missed an easy shot, then broke the cue over his knee, discovering later that it was the proprietor's own stick—a fancy $19 job . . . Taft Wright, the rotund utility outfielder who is not resigned to a reserve role with the Nats, has to his credit at least one sensational feat. Playing his first game in organized baseball at Charlotte, N. C., Wright was sent in as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning and slammed a home run, with the bases full . . . Clark Griffith's quest for a catcher has begun in a new direction. He is attempting to obtain either "Spud" Davis or Gilly Campbell from the Cincinnati Reds, who, with Ernie Lombardi, have a top-heavy catching staff.

Frank Moore, Partner Win Pro-Amateur

Jimmy Thomson, Dann Are Beaten, 3-2, In Finals.

By the Associated Press.

St. Augustine, Fla., March 20.—Frank Moore, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Bobby Dunkelberger, of High Point, N. C., won a 3 and 2 victory over Jimmy Thomson, of Shawnee-On-The Delaware, Pa., and Carl Dann, jr., of Orlando, Fla., in the 36-hole amateur professional best ball golf tournament finals today.

The victors had advanced to the final round by eliminating the tourney darkhorses—Jack Toomer, of Waynesville, N. C., and Oscar Evers, of Jacksonville, Fla., 8 and 7, yesterday.

Thomson and Dann, who were three down at the halfway mark today, turned back Harry Cooper, of Chicopee, Mass., and Paul Leslie, of Baton Rouge, La., 3 and 2, yesterday to qualify for a shot at the championship.

Post a 63 Score.

Moore and Dunkelberger had a 31-32—63 card, 9 under par, for the morning round. On the outgoing afternoon nine, they shot a 31, 6 under regulation figures for the course, and took a 27 on the last seven holes.

Thomson and Dann had a best ball 66 on the first 18, took a 34 on the outgoing afternoon nine and a 23 to complete the match.

The winners, collecting 9 birdies this morning, added 7 during the afternoon.

Taking the second hole of the morning round with a 12-foot putt, Moore placed his team in the lead and went 2 up on the tenth. They dropped the eleventh with a bogie 5.

Dead to Pin.

Dunkelberger fired a great second shot dead to the pin on the twelfth for a birdie 3 and again put the combination 2 up.

Moore increased the margin on the long fifteenth with a birdie 4 as Thomson missed a short one for a 5. The last three holes of the first 18 were halved, giving Moore and his partner a three-hole advantage at the lunch recess.

Moore, his putter red hot, dropped shots ranging from 15 to 35 feet when play resumed after the rest period and collected 6 birdies on the outgoing nine. His score left Thomson and Dann trailing 6 down as the foursome turned into the home stretch.

Teeing off for the final nine, Thomson and Dann rallied to prolong the match. Starting on the eleventh, they won three straight holes.

With the lead cut to three, Thomson pushed his second shot to within 6 feet of the pin on the 553-yard fifteenth green, but lost a chance for an eagle when he missed his putt for a 4. Moore was down in 4's, halving the hole.

The teams split the next hole and the match ended.

St. John's Entrains For National Cage Event in Chicago

In pursuit of the highest basketball honors obtainable by a scholastic team, St. John's Prep leaves this morning for Chicago and the National Catholic Scholastic Tournament, which opens Wednesday at Loyola University.

The Johnny party, consisting of eight players, Joe Gallagher, Jim Mulvihill, Jim Giebel, Johnny Swagart, Francis Battiste, Herbert Munhall, Martin Hunt, Al Burch, Coach Gene Augustefer, Athletic Director Brother Eadbert and Former Coach Irving (Horse) Holbrook, entrains at 8:35 o'clock on the B. & O.

Stopping at Baltimore, the local contingent was to be increased to 25 members by the Calvert Hall team, Quaker City champion, and its rooters, who are bound for the same destination.

The two groups were to ride together, stopping overnight at Pittsburgh. While in the Smoky City the teams are planning a scrimmage in the Central Catholic High School gym before resuming the Chicago trip.

The Johnnies will meet St. Stephens Mission, of St. Stephens, Wyo., in a first-round encounter Thursday morning at 9 a. m. The second round begins the following morning at 11 a. m.

Jim Brady Makes Debut Wednesday In A. A. U. Fights

Jim Brady, free-swinging Georgetown heavyweight, will make his debut in the A. A. U. boxing tournament Wednesday night when the annual event is resumed with the semifinal round at Turner's Arena. First bout is at 8 o'clock.

Brady will tackle Andy Keady, unattached, in one of two unrestricted bouts, the other bringing together Don Adams and Les Miller, while a light-heavy fight rounds out the card.

Adams is the 212-pound Maryland University lad who was ineligible during the collegiate season. However, the big fellow has been drilling daily and is reported to be in perfect shape. He will be favored over Miller, a Fort Myer entry.

Brady, a chubby fellow who packs a lethal wallop in his right hand, will face an opponent who is also capable of dealing out sleeping potions, if he connects. Brady on past performance is expected to win.

Camilli to Talk Contract Today

By the Associated Press.

Clearwater, Fla., March 20.—Dolph Camilli, the Brooklyn Dodgers' new and expensive first baseman, reported to Manager Burleigh Grimes at the Brooklyn training camp today. Camilli, still unsigned after being purchased from the Phillies for an estimated $60,000 while he was staging a holdout campaign, is due to discuss salary terms with Executive Vice President Larry McPhail tomorrow. He is expected to sign without much trouble.

Links Play Is Featured By Eagle 2's

Diffenbaugh Scores 70; D. Burton 73; M. McCarthy 73.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Three eagle deuces featured the local links reports yesterday. George A. Tew sank his second shot on the seventh hole at Kenwood, while the Burton brothers reported two at Army and Navy, both on the 331-yard fifth hole, by Capt. A. D. Colley and Col. Field Harris.

Other features of the day's play included:

ARMY AND NAVY.

Danny Burton reported the lowest score on the service club course, a one over par 73, including a subpar back nine of 35. Alan Burton, the other half of the Army and Navy Club's professional duo, played 36 holes and totaled an even 150 strokes after a bad start. Alan had rounds of 74 and 76.

Col. Harris used a five iron to score his 2 on the par 4 fifth hole, while playing with B. Johnson T. K. Smith and W. D. Sanders, while Capt. Cooley benefitting by a longer drive, scored his coveted deuce with a seven iron.

KENWOOD.

'Buddy' Tew's two on the seventh hole at Kenwood was the second eagle within a week scored on the 359-yard number. Tew's four iron shot landed on the green and trickled into the cup while he was playing with Al Jamison, assistant professional, and Dr. Parks.

WASHINGTON.

R. T. Harrell and Dr. R. N. Sutton pulled like stunts on the ninth hole at Washington, each holing shots from off the green for birdie twos, and in each instance the hole was needed to square a match.

Harrell was playing with Ralph Fowler against Guy Harrell and Pro Dave Thomson. The Harrell-Fowler duo was one down and one to play but Rudy squared the issue by sinking a niblick shot after placing his tee shot in the trap to the left of the green.

Dr. Sutton was a partner of Dr. F. E. Duering against Dr. John Mattore and Mrs. Sutton, and the foursome was playing in back of the Harrell group. Dr. Sutton's team was one down on the ninth and it looked like the match would end that way as his tee shot was short of the green but he promptly holed the shot with his niblick to finish all-square.

Dr. Marion Falls shot the lowest round of his links career despite an eight on the fifteenth hole. Dr. Falls was out in 36 and looked like a cinch to lower his personal scoring mark by several strokes but an eight on the fifteenth raised his back nine score to 44 for an even 80.

INDIAN SPRING.

George Diffenbaugh carved out a sub-par 70 over the Four Corners layout and paired with Dr. Smathers to trounce Elliott Spicer and Arthur Urban, despite the latter's 76 and Spicer's four over par 75.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Frank Goodwin and M. Parker Nolan paired well to score a best ball of 66, from nines of 34-32, and defeat District and Middle Atlantic Champion Billy Shea and W. Wenzel by a comfortable margin.

COLUMBIA.

Martin F. McCarthy was low among the Columbia amateurs yesterday with a fine 73, while Capt. H. C. Crane with a 74 and William Wade Henshaw, a stroke higher, also scored well.

MANOR.

Max Taylor holed a 2 on the fifth hole at Manor while playing with Eddie Stevens, Ray Fleming, Billy LaBille and Dan Pratt. The fifth hole has been playing as a par 3 since the course renovations have been in progress, but the birdies are a rarity on the well-trapped number, according to Stevens.

WOODMONT.

Morris Simon and Bill Ilch were responsible for a lot of activity around the eighth green at Woodmont, Simon placing his tee shot close to the cup for what looked like a sure win, but Ilch, whose iron shot was barely on the green, rammed in a putt of some 40 feet for a halve in 2's.

Howard Nordlinger, getting in shape for his annual conquest of the club tournaments, reported a sub-80 score while playing with Milton Harris.

Jimmy Jones Held Even Choice With George Abrams Tonight

Rough Baltimore Boy Is Threat to Unbeaten Record.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

George Abrams, whose fistic ambitions lie in the direction of the world middleweight championship, risks his unsullied record against the experience and solid thumping of Jimmy Jones, of Baltimore, tonight in the eight-round feature of a fairly attractive card at Turner's Arena.

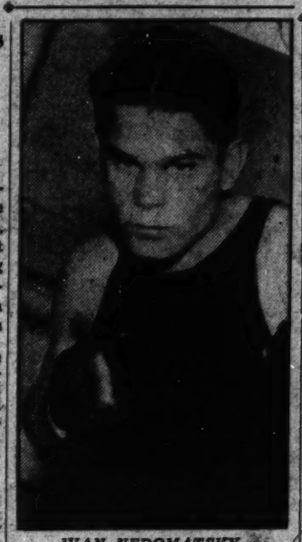
Regarded as strictly a trial horse for the District lad, Jones, nevertheless, figures to give Abrams and the fans an exciting evening, and along cauliflower row is regarded as an even money bet to win. Thus, for the first time the local boy will not enter the ring an odds-on favorite.

This should not be a disturbing influence, however, or at least not as disturbing as Jones' peculiar style of fighting which has annoyed every man he faced. The Baltimorean fights from a crouch, and centers his attack on the body—an attack Abrams found trouble defending himself against in his bout with Tony Ciaccio.

Jones Covers Well.

Jones is extremely hard to hit, covering up in clam-like fashion, and Abrams was extremely puzzled by similar tactics in his aforementioned struggle with Ciaccio. Syd Fishel, his manager, claims he picked up a bit of ring knowledge against the Italian, and whether this is true or not will be determined tonight. If Fishel is right the knowledge will be useful, and if he's wrong it looks like another uncomfortable evening for George.

Jones, moreover, holds a pair of decisions over Ciaccio, who actually whipped Abrams, but lost because of penalties for butting and hitting low. The Baltimorean's style is almost identical with Ciaccio's, so much so that Fishel appealed to boxing commission for a strict referee who will disqualify Jones for repeated fouling—if he is guilty of such tactics. From Jones' camp comes the report that he feels Abrams is a trifle shy of an honest-to-goodness rough and tumble fight, and that he intends to give the Washington youth a lesson in the finer points of the game.



IVAN NEDOMATSKY.

Rich Bouts Awaits Abrams.

If Abrams hurdles tonight's test bigger and better matches are in store for him. Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn plans to pit him against either Teddy Yarosz, of Pittsburgh, former champion, or Harry Balsamo, of New York. Advancement to bouts with opponents of that caliber would be a noteworthy achievement.

Jones' brother, Ivan Nedomatsky, and El Brookman tangle in tonight's six-round semifinal, and this bout may easily steal the show. Nedomatsky, former Southern Conference welterweight titleholder, has developed into a formidable professional fighter, while Brookman has been winning consistently since deserting the amateur ranks.

Both are strong and willing mixers, and while a knockout is not expected, there should be everything but one.

The supporting card includes another six rounder between Carroll Dell, New York welterweight, vs. Sam Bacala, of Baltimore, and two four rounders, Zuzu Pitts and Kayo Clark, local colored middleweights, and Tommy Hoover tangles with Al Jamison in another welterweight skirmish. Both are from this city.

Nedomatsky, Brookman Meet in Semifinal at Arena.

Crash Marks Boat Racing

Pilot Is Injured; Gray Goose Winner.

Miami, Fla., March 20 (AP).—Gray Goose, driven by Hugh Gingras, of Rockledge, Fla., and owned by George C. Cannon, of New Rochelle, N. Y., roared to victory in the 225 hydroplane race, feature of the twenty-fifth annual Biscayne Bay Regatta today.

A spectacular crash of two outboard runabouts thrilled thousands of spectators lining the shore for Miami's annual free show as choppy water prevented any record assaults.

Vincent A. Davis, of Tampa, was injured slightly when his boat the Baloney crashed into another racing craft and sank. The little speedsters were jockeying for position before the start of a heat. The impact hurled Davis over the other boat, the F-44 driven by Fred Rushing, of Tampa, and splintered the Baloney.

The Gray Goose made a sweep of all three 225 heats, but its best speed, 56.675 miles an hour, did not approach the record of 64.439 held by the ill-fated Tops II, owned by Jack Cooper, of Kansas City, Mo. The Tops II sank in a Palm Beach regatta several weeks ago.

Chrissie II, driven by George F. Schrafft, of Newton, Mass., finished second with Miss Behave IV, driven by C. F. Schwarm, of Cincinnati, third.

Mrs. Maude Rutherford, of Palm Beach, made a runaway of the Class E runabout race in the Baby Juno, whose best speed, 48.309 miles per hour, was more than 3 miles an hour short of the record. The Nittany Lion II, driven by Frank Muzzey, jr., of Philadelphia, was second.

2 D. C. Boys Enter Handball Event

Memphis, Tenn., March 20 (AP).—Thirty-nine of the Nation's best handball players prepared tonight to take their turns in the pits tomorrow, in quest of the National A. A. U. title.

All but one appeared in fine fettle in last-minute workouts. Joe Powers of Los Angeles sported a "mouse" that practically covered the left side of his face. He was hit by one of the little black balls in a practice tilt late yesterday.

Jack Schwartz and Paul Perlman, of Washington, are entered in the event.

Schwartz will compete in the singles in the lower bracket and then team with Perlman in the lower bracket doubles.

Myron Is Winner.

Auteuil, France, March 20 (AP).—M. St. Genez's Myron won the 15,000 francs ($3,500) Prix Speranza today by half a length over Simon Guthmann's Outremer, with L. Dumont's Kefalino II third.

Leg Injury Halts Lewis; Rest Ordered

Third-Sacker Is Hardly Able to Get About; Misses Game.

BUDDY LEWIS.

Orlando, Fla., March 20.—The Washington baseball bosses were registering more than mild alarm tonight at the failure of third baseman Buddy Lewis' leg injury to respond to treatment.

Lewis, who pulled a muscle in his right leg above the knee during an intrasquad game last week, was limping painfully about the Nats' headquarters today.

He played four innings yesterday against the Kansas City Club and apparently was well on his way to recovery, but begged off from the trip to Lakeland today when he was hardly able to get about.

Manager Bucky Harris has ordered a complete rest for Lewis and is shuddering at the possibility that the young third baseman may not be ready for the opening game.

Echevarria Bows To Kid Chocolate

Havanna, March 20 (U.P.).—Kid Chocolate, former featherweight champion of the world, won a close decision tonight over the Spaniard, Fillo Echevarria. It was a hard-fought 10-round battle with Chocolate outweighing his opponent 3¾ pounds. The "Bon-Bon" Kid scaled 128; Echevarria, 124¼.

Navy's Nine Opens Card

Gymnasts Face Army in League Meet.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, March 20.—Sports of winter and spring will overlap at the Naval Academy this week, the finals of the Intercollegiate Gymnastic League and the opening baseball game, with the University of Vermont, both being set for Saturday.

In connection with the individual championships of the gymnastic league, Army and Navy will meet in a duel match which will be the final act in the contest for the team championship. The Army is the only team in the league which has won all of its matches so far, and is a prime favorite to dethrone Temple, the defending champions, which it has already defeated decisively in a dual match.

The Navy has lost to Temple, and though it showed greatly improved form in its match with Princeton Saturday, does not appear able to stop the clever Army performers. Cadet Sears, a brilliant performer on the horizontal and parallel bars, leads the Army team. Lou Decamp, who has just lowered the rope-climb figure to 4 seconds, is captain of the Navy team.

Meeting Vermont Saturday, the Navy will make a start of one of the most ambitious schedules a Navy nine has ever had. Max Bishop, former Athletic second baseman, assumed charge of Navy baseball when Marty Karow resigned several weeks ago and has been working hard with the candidates.

Reggie McNamara Receives Visitors

Chicago, March 20 (AP).—Reggie McNamara, former six-day bike star who entered St. Luke's Hospital last Thursday for treatment of a stomach disorder, received visitors today for the first time since entering the institution.

"I'm still far from well," the former "iron man" of the saucer boards said with a smile, "but I feel better today than I have for a week."

Attending physicians said McNamara would remain in the hospital at least two weeks. Until his retirement two years ago he starred as a bike rider for a quarter of a century and at the time he became ill was serving as assistant referee in the six-day race which ended at the stadium last night and was won by the team of Alfred Letourner and Omer Debruycker.

Golden Glovers Meet in New York

New York, March 20 (AP).—The Golden Gloves boxing champions of New York and Chicago, actually representing the East and Mid-west with a handful of southern scrappers thrown in, meet at Madison Square Garden Monday night in their annual inter-city set-to.

LaSalle Five Beats Cumberland's Caseys

Cumberland, Md., March 20.—LaSalle Institute's basketball combination cleared the decks for action at the National Catholic tournament this week by plastering a 39-31 defeat on the Cumberland Caseys.

Meeting the Caseys for the second straight year, LaSalle gained revenge for a 32-27 setback the 1937 Blue and Gold city scholastic champions suffered at the hands of what was Cumberland's outstanding independent quint during the late 20's and early 30's.

Ted Rowan, with 10 points for the winners and Johnny Long with 12 for the aseys, were the leading scorers.

Eistenstat, Kennedy and Auker Take Turns in Taming Locals.

A Staff Correspondent.

Lakeland, Fla., March 20.—The three young men who are supposed to represent the improvement in the Washington pitching staff shutout the Detroit Tigers today—in the fourth and seventh innings.

In every other inning, the Tigers forced 'em to duck for their lives and slapped a 13-to-0 defeat on the Washington Club before 2,500 of the local citizenry.

The losing pitcher was—take your choice—Kendall Chase, Joe Krakauskas, or Emil Leonard. The trio divided the Washington pitching and shared about equally in the disgrace.

If you want to draw a fine line, you might say that Leonard was the best of three, meaning that he was not quite as futile as Chase and Krakauskas. The left-handed Chase was ineffective and wild in addition. He gave up six runs and five hits in the three innings he worked. Krakauskas surrendered five hits and three runs and Leonard, in the two innings he pitched, managed to serve up four hits and three runs to the Tigers.

But that isn't all of the dismal picture. The Nats were able to make only four hits. They were a sorry lot against Harry Eisenstat, Vernon Kennedy and Elden Auker, and succeeded in getting only one runner as far as third base.

The lone balm for the Nats was the two hits that young George Washington Case rapped out in two appearances at the plate. His pair of singles, together with Stone's single to right in the fifth and Almada's double to right in the ninth were all that the Nats were able to accomplish at bat.

Greenberg, York Homer.

The Tigers home run twins—Hank Greenberg and Rudy York—swung into action this afternoon. York rapped a four-masted clout over the fence in the third inning against Chase, and Greenberg treated Krakauskas in the same manner in the sixth with a gentleman on base.

Chase had a harrowing time of it from the start. But he extricated himself from that first inning with only one run scored against him. He didn't have any such luck in the second inning, though. The Tigers lost their patience with Chase and started swinging.

Young Mark Christman, the lad who will be the Tigers third baseman this season, started the second inning assault with a two-base hit to left field and four runs eventually clattered across the plate. In the third inning, Rough Rudy York took a parting shot at Chase—a home run over the little green fence in left field. That made it 6-0 in favor of the Tigers.

Chase Also Departs.

Chase departed the scene after the third inning and Krakauskas took over the pitching. He did well—for one inning. Then he pitched singles to Greenberg, Christman and Kennedy and the Tigers with the help of Travis' miserable muff scored two runs. Krakauskas was at least consistent. He gave up two runs in the sixth inning also. They came about when Hank Greenberg pumped a homer over the cute little fence in left with a man on base.

That made the score 10-to-0, and the Tigers let it rest at round figures during the seventh inning. But in the eighth they began to get obstreperous against Dutch Leonard. The knuckle-ball artist was rapped for three singles by various Tigers who profited also from Travis' second muff of the day and gathered three more runs. The Nats weren't having much fun.

To make it a completely miserable afternoon for the Nats, Ossie Bluege succeeded in getting himself spiked on the ankle in the eighth inning. Catcher George Tebbetts did the carving on a slide into third base. Bluege was forced out of the game.

Clark Griffith attempted without success to talk Mickey Cochrane into selling him Ray Mayworth or George Tebbetts, Detroit reserve catchers. Cochrane, however, recommended Linton, Toledo back stop, to the Washington management.

'Gee' Walker, Out of Doghouse, Promises Misery for Tigers

Chicago, March 20 (AP).—Viewing the set-up from a strictly financial angle, it appears that Gerald (Gee) Walker is going to do all right by his new team, the Chicago White Sox, and those he left behind, Detroit's Tigers.

The colorful outfielder, whose acquisition from Detroit last December almost had Tiger fans up in arms, is shaping up as one of the biggest individual baseball drawing cards this city has seen in many seasons.

With the opening American League game here a month distant, Comiskey Park is being bombarded with ticket applications. The opener, incidentally, pits the Sox against the Tigers, and if interest in Walker is any criterion, the former Detroit slugger is going to have the turnstiles clicking merrily in every Detroit-White Sox series this season.

"Gee" came to Chicago from Detroit along with Third Baseman Marvin Owen and Mike Tresh, a young catcher. Detroit received Pitcher Vernon Kennedy, Outfielder Fred (Dixie) Walker and Infielder Tony Piet. The deal, transacted at the minor league meeting at Milwaukee, has been looked on by many Chicago fans as a neat victory for Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Sox over his ex-teammate, Manager Mickey Cochrane of Detroit.

Walker, whose base-running antics once gave Cochrane many a headache, has said just enough at spring training camp to let White Sox fans know he can hardly wait to get at his former mates.

"I am out of the doghouse for the first time in six years," was how he greeted newsmen at the Sox camp, "and while I hope to be hot against all teams in the American League I know I'm going to be sizzling against Mickey Cochrane's crew. I understand that Cochrane, who let Owen go in the same deal that gave me a break, is going to start the season without a third baseman. And boy, if there's anything I love to do it's to put down bunts where there's nobody to pick them up."

If "Gee" performs up to anything like his brilliant showing last season, White Sox fans are certain to take him to heart. Anywhere the game is being discussed—and its getting to be a constant subject on Chicago's South Side these days—the conversation ultimately swings to the Sox and Mr. Walker.

"Maybe he'll run kinda wild on the sacks," worried one Sox fan to another recently, to which came this quick reply:

"Maybe he will, mister, but so far as I know there ain't no law yet that keeps wild men from scoring runs and this Walker's gonna score a lotta them."

It looks like a boom year for these eight scheduled Sox-Tiger series.

Seven Games Promise Action in Post-A. A. U. Cage Event Tonight

D. & H. Team Makes Debut In Tourney

Meets Latterday Saints in Roosevelt Gym; 6 Other Games.

By Jack Munhall.

The debut of Delaware & Hudson, formidable unlimited title contender, tonight features the program for The Post-A. A. U. basketball championships, which are resumed in the heavier divisions after a two-day respite.

Sharing interest on the third-day program of the eleventh annual event are the initial appearances of another trio of challengers for the hotly contested 145-pound championship. The newcomers are Salvation Army, Columbia Beverage and W. W. Chambers, the latter in its first year of organization.

Delaware & Hudson, seeded along with Regal, F. B. I., the defending champions, and Senate Beer, has drawn Latter Day Saints, an apparently innocuous victim for its opening test. But cognizant of the evils that an off-night plus a "hot" foe can wrought, the Coalmen are taking no chances in preparation for the contest.

Games at Roosevelt.

Of special note to all 145-pound and unlimited fives is the shifting of the scene of action tonight from Tech to Roosevelt Gym. Remember there are no games scheduled at Tech.

In the inaugural game at Roosevelt, Chambers, featuring Andy Farrell, former Tech star and Johnny Williamson, an all-around athlete who learned his 3 R's at the same institution, tackles Police Boys Club No. 4, at 7 o'clock.

Following this game, Columbia Beverage receives its baptism under fire from Eckington A. C., and still another hour later, Salvation Army swings into action against Georgetown Boys Club.

In the lighter classes several old-standing boys club rivalries will flare up again as three Boys Club of Washington outfits tangle with representatives of Police Boys Club, No. 4, Y. M. C. A. and Merrick Boys Club.

There is one game each in the 100, 115 and 130 pound classes. Opening the card at Merrick, Boys Club of Washington (central branch) clashes with Police No. 4, in a 100-pound affair at 6:15 while an hour later at the same gym, Boys Club of Washington (central branch) is slated to play Y. M. C. A. in a 130-pound game.

In the only game scheduled for the Boys Club of Washington, the 115-pound lads from Merrick Boys Club and, Boys Club of Washington (Georgetown branch) oppose at 7:15 p. m.

Returning to the outstanding attraction—the Delaware & Hudson-Latter Day Saints game—the debut of the Coalmen will be viewed with unrestrained curiosity by other contenders. The reason for all the interest is the remarkable improvement Delaware & Hudson has shown of late.

Defeated Beermen.

In a recent start it swamped Senate Beer, one of its chief rivals, 42-28, and looked like a real comer. Small wonder, however, when its roster is examined, for some of the cleverest performers in the city are found therein.

The keyman and star floor player is Milt Genderson, a veteran Jewish Community Center player, who also served with the Georgetown Frosh several years ago. Genderson, small, fast and a deadly shooter, if need be, is an exceptionally gifted passer and team player.

His helpmates are Donald Fones, an All-High choice at Central in 1935-36; Milt Goss, a 6-foot 3-inch center; Knocky Thomas, the former Maryland University star and Burdette Cogar, long a well-known sandlot player.

This team, if clicking, seems to have at least an even chance against F. B. I., Regal or Senate as its convincing rout of the latter bears concrete proof.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE.

At Roosevelt Gym.
Unlimited Class.

10 p. m.—Delaware & Hudson vs. Latter Day Saints.

145-Pound Class.

7 p. m.—W. W. Chambers vs. Police No. 4; 8 p. m.—Columbia Beverage vs. Eckington A. C.; 9 p. m.—Salvation Army vs. Georgetown B. C.

At Merrick Boys' Club.
130-Pound Class.

7:15 p. m.—Boys' Club of Washington (Central branch) vs. Y. M. C. A.

At Boys' Club of Washington.
115-Pound Class.

7:15 p. m.—Merrick Boys' Club vs. Boys' Club of Washington (Georgetown branch).

At Merrick Boys' Club.
100-Pound Class.

6:15 p. m.—Boys' Club of Washington (Central branch) vs. Police Boys' Club No. 4.

Red Wings Defeat New York Rangers

Detroit, March 20 (U.P.).—Detroit's Red Wings closed the National League hockey season tonight with a 4 to 3 victory over the New York Rangers.

By agreement of the team managers and officials the game was played with the off-side rule eliminated. Under the new ruling the game became so fast that the 5,000 fans were in an uproar from the start. The game was the last for Larry Aurie, Detroit forward for 11 years, who has announced his retirement.

Ralph Flanagan Breaks 3 Records

Coral Gables, Fla., March 20 (AP).—Ralph Flanagan, captain of the all-American swimming team, bettered three free-style records over a 20-yard course during one swim today at the Miami Biltmore pool.

A. A. U. timers clocked him at 4 minutes, 11.1 seconds at 400 yards; 4 minutes, 37 seconds at 440 yards and 4:37 (correct) for 400 meters.

The records bested were held by Jack Medica, whose time was 4:19 for 400 yards and 4:38.8 for 440 yards, and John Mascionis, whose 400 meter time was 4:47. Medica's records were established in Seattle and Mascionis' at New Haven.

Feared in Post-A. A. U. 145-Pound Class

John Revolta Leading Pro Money List

Grensboro, N. C., March 20 (AP).—Johnny Revolta, of Evanston, Ill., winner of the Sacramento and St. Petersburg golf opens, is the leading money winner in professional golf at the end of 11 tournaments to date this year, Fred J. Cocoran, of Boston, Tournament Bureau manager of the P. G. A., announced here tonight.

The 16 leading money winners follow:

Tom Farr to Wed Beauty 'Within Next Few Months'

By the United Press.

Chicago, March 20.—Tommy Farr, British heavyweight prize fighter, and Eileen Wenzel, former showgirl, tonight announced plans to be married "within the next few months."

The announcement was made as the couple changed airplanes at Municipal Airport, en route from New York to Los Angeles.

Miss Wenzel said the marriage was set tentatively for November or December.

"We might make it sooner, though," she said.

Nils Granlund, brother-in-law of Miss Wenzel and master of ceremonies in a Chicago night club, said the couple met while en route to the United States on the steamship Normandie recently.

"Tommy's a wonderful fellow and Eileen's a swell girl," he said, "so what could you expect?"

The comely Miss Wenzel won a $40,774 damage suit from Louis J. Ehret, jr., brewery heir, two years ago after a four-year legal battle in which she charged her beauty was marred by an automobile accident while riding with Ehret.

Eagles Beaten.

Providence, R. I., March 20 (U.P.).—The Providence Reds defeated the New Haven Eagles, 5 to 3, in a fast, clean International American League hockey game here tonight before 4,000.

The Punch Line . . .

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Contrary to previously published predictions Henry Armstrong will never hold three world championships simultanly, and therefore never be the first man to achieve that distinction. Two seem to be Homicide Henry's limit—if he does that well.

The dusky warrior, who is preparing for a joust with Barney Ross, will never defend his featherweight crown—if you weren't already aware of that fact. Nobody in the division appears capable of giving him even a close fight for it, but Armstrong has outgrown the class and will not attempt to make 126 pounds.

His manager, Eddie Meade, admitted as much over a flowing stein of brew immediately after Henry lifted the regal chapeau from Petey Sarron's brow several months ago.

"He couldn't make it," quoting Meade, "If he cut off an arm and a leg."

Armstrong weakened himself visibly by paring off surplus poundage for the Sarron bout, so much so that Meade's expert eye promptly recognized the danger of forcing him to make a second attempt at it. Sarron in his prime would have swarmed all over Armstrong, and would have won, but it was mere shell of the old Syrian assassin that entered the ring that night.

Could Claim Crown.

The way is open for Leo Rodak, Al Reid, Young Rightmire, Jackie Wilson, Joey Archibald, Dick Corbett, Kid Chocolate, or any other top-flight featherweight to step up and put in a claim for the crown. Armstrong may threaten to go through with such a fight—which would frighten off the more faint-hearted contenders, but it would be a threat and nothing more, for Mr. Meade is of no mind to see a valuable investment rendered worthless by defeat in the featherweight division. Let any contender post a sizable guarantee to be matched by Armstrong, and the title will change hands quicker than this is written—without a fight.

There are those, moreover, who hold that Armstrong is making a serious mistake in going after Ross unless the Chicagoan has gone back more in a year than is customary. We subscribe to the theory that Ross, judging by past performances, will tie Armstrong in knots, outbox him, outgeneral him, and maybe outpunch him. Babe Arismendi proved that not everybody hit by Henry goes down in a heap, and it will take a healthy punch, timed properly and exploded on the button to put Ross down for keeps. In our book Barney isn't that kind of a fighter.

Armstrong likes them to stand up and wade into him, or let him go in after them, and Ross does just the opposite. If Henry starts after him swinging both fists blindly as he did in previous bouts, he's liable to wind up on the canvas imagining himself in the canary breeding business. Ross steps aside and hits as the enemy goes by, and he'll do the same against Armstrong. Ross is a cutie. He's fancy, and a more polished workman than his prospective opponent. If ring generalship, plus a punch, will stop the Californian, we pick Ross. But if Barney gets tagged by Armstrong's right—we're going to be wrong again.

If you've seen either of the two cards staged thus far in the District A. A. U. tournament, you've undoubtedly already seen why preliminary boys are as scarce in Washington as peace treaties in Europe. Good, clever fighters are rare. Most of the boys are right-hand crazy—trying desperately for knockouts and paying little or no attention to scientific boxing. It reflects on their poor coaching, and until it improves the boys will continue to be of the same, inferior quality. And until the quality improves few will turn professional. It isn't healthy otherwise.

RESIN DUST.

The corner canvases used in the ring in the District are nuisances and should be removed . . . supposed to keep the ring from getting wet in corners, they merely collect dust which is sprayed over the ringside customers when the canvases are flung back . . . a card from Gabe Menedez reports that Yucatan Kid ran out on Howard Scott in Miami . . . so they'll be home this week . . . Mickey Walker broke a vow never to don the gloves again to pose with George Abrams last week . . . Toots Bashara, Norfolk lightweight, is climbing the comeback trail . . . Lou Gevinson will definitely fight April 18 . . . probably against Joey Straiges . . . who whipped Ray Ingram decisively at Richmond several weeks ago . . . Andre Jesserun spent two hours cleaning the cut over his eye after his recent bout here with Saverio Turiello . . . it was filled with a solution to keep the skin closed during the bout . . . George Marsh, young and promising heavyweight, will be shown here soon . . . he scales 196 pounds and stands 6 feet 2½ inches tall . . . and has won 20 straight bouts . . . new faces is Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn's theme song . . . he's getting ready for the outdoor season . . . Tony Canzoneri will referee a main bout at the Arena in the near future . . . Sixto Escobar and Armanda Sicilia will meet here in an overweight match . . . probably outdoors . . . Al Reid and Mike Belloise will have it out for the New York State featherweight crown this week . . . Tony Ciaccio is itching for a return bout with George Abrams . . . "Battling" Burroughs also is hot on George's trail . . . Al Mancine and Tony Dupre will box here before the indoor season ends . . . although Ahearn is having difficulty obtaining opponents for them . . . Harry Raskin and Bob Tow did not leave for New York until this morning.

Win J. C. C. Title.

The Phlanx Club of the Jewish Community Center won the Center championship for the second time by defeating the Olympia Club by a 35 to 31 margin yesterday in two extra periods. Gordon and Silverman paced the winners with ten points apiece while Burka of the losers scored 13 points.

Drum of Fortune Spins Today, Scattering Wealth Over Globe

By the Associated Press.

Dublin, March 20.—The huge Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes drum tomorrow will begin spinning out fortunes for the lucky in the twenty-third draw in the famous lottery.

Approximately $8,000,000 in prizes will be scattered around the globe on the basis of counterfoils plucked from the drum then and the following day.

Half of that sum, on the basis of past draws, will return to the United States and South America—main supporters of the sweepstakes.

Three times a year approximately 2,500,000 Americans buy tickets in the hope of winning $150,000 at the most for their $2.50. Prizes range down to a minimum of $500.

The gamble is based on the outcome of the Grand National horse race March 25, at Aintree, England.

Holders of the tickets on the horses finishing first, second and third in the race will receive £30,000, £15,000 and £10,000, respectively, or approximately $150,000, $75,000 and $5,000.

Many Americans Favored.

Perhaps 2,000 Americans, including those who will get prizes for ticket salesmen, will be among the winners of sums between $150,000 and $500.

Sweepstakes officials in the last draw, which was based on last October's Cesarewitch race, awarded a total of £1,582,753 ($7,913,765) in prizes out of a total intake of £2,695,155 ($13,475,775).

Fifty per cent went to the United States.

The sweepstakes was founded for the Irish Hospitals Fund.

In seven years, the total intake has exceeded $250,000,000, of which an estimated 40 per cent remained in Ireland. The Irish Hospitals Fund was enriched by £11,812,047 ($58,060,235) and the rest went for salaries, promoter's expenses and other items.

Draw at Mansion House.

The twenty-third draw will be held in the Old Mansion House. The total intake and the sum allotted for prizes will be announced from the platform. Tickets first will be drawn against horses entered in the Grand National; residual and consolation prizes will follow.

Two Champs Head Week's Fistic Card

Armstrong and Lewis in Action in Nontitle Bouts Friday.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 20.—For the second straight week, Henry Armstrong, featherweight titleholder and John Henry Lewis, light heavyweight champion, headline this week's national boxing program.

Armstrong, whose knockout victory string was halted at 35 by Baby Arizimendi last week, meets Eddie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, in a 10-rounder at Detroit Friday night.

Lewis, anxious to defend his crown this summer against a suitable opponent, collided with Bud Mignault, of Brockton, Mass., in another 10 at St. Paul, Minn., also on Friday night. The bout was originally scheduled for last Thursday but was postponed at Lewis' request.

Both are over-the-weight affairs.

The program:

MONDAY—At Pittsburgh, Fritzie Zivas vs. Charley Burley, both Pittsburgh, welterweights, 10. At Baltimore, Baby Manuel, Tampa, Fla., vs. Sailor Born, New York, featherweights, 10. At Chicago Johnny Cabello, New York, vs. Moon Mullins, Vincennes, Ind., lightweights, 8. At Newark, N. J., Herbie Katz, New York, vs. Al Zapalla, Jersey City, middleweights, 8; Allie Stolz, Newark, vs. Joe Marcianto, Philadelphia, featherweights, 8. At Buffalo, N. Y., Charlie Eagle, New Haven, Conn., vs. Jimmy Clark, Jamestown, N. Y., light-heavyweights, 6. At New York, Maxie Farber vs. Victor Troise, both New York, lightweights, 8.

TUESDAY—At Milwaukee, Jackie Wilson, Pittsburgh, vs. Sammy Angott, Louisville, lightweights, 10; Jimmy Belmont, Pittsburgh, vs. George Black, Milwaukee, middleweights, 10. At New York, Joey Fontana, New York, vs. Armando Sicilia, Chicago, featherweights, 8. At Detroit, Junior Munsell, Ponca City, Okla., vs. George Sutka, Detroit, heavyweights, 10. At Los Angeles, Charlie (Killer) Coates, Akron, Ohio, vs. Eddie Dreher, Long Beach, Calif., light-heavyweights, 10.

Bob Fothergill, Ex-Diamond Ace, Dies at Detroit

Detroit, March 20 (AP).—Robert R. Fothergill, 39, former major league baseball player, died in St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital here today.

The former Detroit Tiger outfielder, coach of baseball at Lawrence Institute of Technology since January, was taken to the hospital Thursday night when he collapsed as the result, his physician said, of a nervous ailment.

Fothergill suffered a stroke that night and another last night.

He was with the Tigers from 1921 to 1929, and became so popular with the fans he acquired the appelation of "the people's choice." He was traded to the Chicago White Sox in 1929 and then went to the Boston Red Sox, who gave him his unconditional release in the summer of 1933.

Fothergill was a good hitter and had a lifetime average of .329. The left fielder weighed more than 200 pounds, and there were many jokes at his expense because of his size and his attempts to keep down his weight.

He was the last of a line of stellar outfielders to play with the Tigers. The others were Ty Cobb, Bobby Veach, Harry Heilmann and Heinie Manush. Fothergill and Heilmann remained fast friends.

Hershey Bears Nip N. Y. Rovers, 5-3

New York, March 20 (AP).—Scoring in every period, the League-leading Hershey Bears whipped the New York Rovers, 5-3, in the final game of the Eastern Amateur Hockey League's season in Madison Square Garden today.

A crowd of 12,000 saw the Bears, led by Sharp-shooting Harry Frost, break a 1-all deadlock in the second period to take a lead, never relinquished.

Frost, who rapped in two goals, finally passed Dutch Hiller, the former Rover, now up with the Big League New York Rangers, as the circuit's leading goal-getter with 37. Joe Catlin, A. B. Grant and Stan Kawalski counted for the other Hershey tallies, while Walter Rimstad with two goals paced the Rovers' attack.

Americans Take 2d Place in Loop

New York, March 20 (U.P.).—The New York Americans clinched second place in the international division of the National Hockey League when they defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs, 4-2, in Madison Square Garden tonight before 10,000 fans.

Gomez, Ruffing Halt Cards as Yanks Win; Giants Nose Indians

Lefty and Red Pitch Brilliant Ball, Former Allowing but One Hit and Latter Two; McCarthy's Blow Beats Tribe.

By the Associated Press.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 20.—Behind the brilliant pitching of Lefty Gomez and Charley (Red) Ruffing, the New York Yankees defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 1 to 0, before 2,000 fans today to square their exhibition series at two victories each.

The Yankee flingers allowed only three hits, one off Gomez in the five innings he worked to complete a shutout string of 11 consecutive innings. Si Johnson and Guy Bush limited the World Champions to four hits but the Yanks scored in the first inning when Tommy Henrich doubled to the left field bleachers and Lou Gehrig singled him home.

GIANTS BEAT INDIANS.

New Orleans, March 20 (AP).—A rousing single from the bat of Johnny McCarthy gave the New York Giants an 8-to-7 triumph over the Cleveland Indians before 10,000 fans, today.

McCarthy's single which scored Hank Leiber was the final touch of a strenuous game. Bob Feller, the Tribe's mound ace, hooked up in a four-inning hurling duel with Carl Hubbell in the first four innings. He came out well ahead. The score was 4 to 0 in favor of the Indians when he left the game, after allowing two hits.

Ken Keltner, the Indians' rookie third baseman, slammed a pair of homers for the Tribe, while Harry Danning collected a four-base smack with two on in the sixth to tie the score at 7-all and set the stage for Leiber's double and McCarthy's single in the seventh.

PHILS WHIP A'S.

Lake Charles, La., March 20 (AP). The Phillies handed their Philadelphia City rivals, the Athletics, an 11-to-5 defeat today to even their exhibition series at one-all.

Like yesterday's game, the contest was another slugfest, with each team getting 12 hits. The Phils hit better in the pinches, however, and were never headed after the third, when they pounded Williams' deliveries for three runs.

First Baseman Earle Browne clouted a home run and Emmett Mueller, rookie second baseman, had three hits for the Phillies. Lou Finney rapped out four hits for the Athletics.

BROWNS WIN, 9-4.

San Antonio, Tex., March 20 (AP). Timely hitting gave the St. Louis Browns a 9-to-4 victory over the Tulsa Oilers in an exhibition game here today.

Manager Gabby Street again cluttered up the box score with 16 men. It was the Browns' third straight win over the Oilers in three days.

Billy Sullivan and Beau Bell recorded doubles in the third inning to break a 1-1 tie. The remainder of St. Louis' 11 hits were singles, six of which came in the sixth frame and resulted in six runs. Tulsa garnered 10 hits off three Brownie hurlers.

Clearwater, Fla., March 20 (AP).—The Dodgers went on a batting spree today, belting out 16 hits for 26 bases, and trounced the Boston Bees, 12 to 8, in a "Grapefruit League" game.

The Dodgers hammered Jim Turner for four runs in the first two frames and did the rest of their scoring against Lefty Shoffner, Boston's 20-year-old rookie.

Homers by Tom Winsett and George Cisar helped pile up the score. Circuit swats by Max West and Tony Cuccinello started the Bees' scoring in the fifth after Forrest Pressnell had limited them to one hit in the first four frames.

REDS TRIUMPH, 2-1.

Tampa, Fla., March 20 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds ran their string of "Grapefruit League" victories to five out of six today with a 2 to 1 win over the Boston Red Sox.

Lefty Lee Grissom held the Sox to one hit in the first four innings, but Boston got over their only run in the opening frame. Bobby Doerr scored on Manager Joe Cronin's single into leftfield.

Harry Craft started the Reds' scoring in the sixth with a double, going home on Frank McCormick's single. McCormick scored the winning run on a walk and a long fly by Billy Myers.

Pie Traynor and the Pirates Top Wilson's 'I Hate' List

By George Kirksey.

United Press Sports Writer.

Biloxi, Miss., March 20.—Don't say "Pittsburgh" around Jimmy Wilson, the usually genial pilot of the Philadelphia Phillies. If you do the atmosphere is likely to cloud up and your position will be most uncomfortable. You may be even asked rather bluntly to leave.

Wilson dislikes, to put it mildly, Pittsburgh on two counts. Pie Traynor, as a representative of the Pirates, is high on Wilson's "marked lousy" list. Wilson charges, and Jimmy doesn't mince any words in saying so, that Pittsburgh and Traynor absconded with two of the Phillies' bright young pitching hopes.

One of them was Russ Bauers, a big right-hander from the Wisconsin lumberjack country, and the other was Howard Peckman, a semipro southpaw from Greenoch, Pa. Bauers is on the verge of blossoming into one of the National League's outstanding pitchers. Bill Terry, for instance, ranks him among the four or five best youngsters in the league. Peckman is a comer, not even on the Pirates' roster now, but a kid who looks like a future big leaguer every time he winds up.

The Phillies aren't going any place this season—they may even be the worst ball club in the majors—but they plan to take care of Pittsburgh. Last season the Phils played their best ball against the Pirates, breaking even in the 22 games.

"We'll make Traynor and the Pirates sorry they ever took Bauers and Peckman from us," says Wilson. "If the Pirates are entertaining any pennant hopes, they might as well forget them because that's one club we are going to murder."

The Bauers' case makes Wilson see red. By all that's holy, Wilson swears that Traynor double crossed him on Bauers. Here's Wilson's version of the case and he says Commissioner Landis has records to bear him out:

"A friend of mine in Chicago tipped me off to Bauers who was pitching for the Mills Semipros. We looked him over and liked him, but the manager of the club he played for didn't want to let him go. Bauers wanted to sign with us, but couldn't get away from the club he was with. Finally we agreed on terms and Bauers slipped away, leaving all his clothes with the manager of the team.

"We gave him $500 and bought him some new clothes. One of our scouts took him to a store and bought him everything he wanted, including a pair of gray suede shoes he had his heart set on. But we didn't file his contract properly, and Judge Landis investigated the case. I came clean and told the commissioner everything.

"I knew we were going to lose Bauers, so I told Pie Traynor about him, because he was a young manager trying to get along. I made an agreement with him that I'd help him get Bauers, providing Commissioner Landis ruled that we had no right to his services. Well, when the commissioner handed down his ruling, he gave us the right to resign him. But when we contacted Bauers he had already signed with the Pirates even before Commissioner Landis had made his decision. That's why he's with the Pirates and not the Phillies. Well, you know what I think of Traynor, and I told him so. Then along comes Peckman, and they take him right from under our noses by the same kind of tactics."

After finishing this speech, Wilson jumped up and went through a fast three rounds of shadow boxing, mumbling to himself something about, "bring on Traynor. Bring on Pittsburgh."

With red in his eye, Wilson vows that for every "below the belt punch" Traynor and Pittsburgh landed on him, he and the Phillies will give two solid but fair cracks on the jaw to the Pirates in return this season.

So when you pick up your morning paper next summer, see if the Phillies are playing the Pirates, and if they are, remember what Jimmy Wilson said back in March. It's a beautiful feud, and how Pie Traynor would like to call it off.

Record Grid Squad Due At Virginia

Over 80 Candidates Expected to Answer Call Today.

By the Associated Press.

Charlottesville, Va., March 20.—The largest varsity squad in University of Virginia football history is expected to respond to the spring practice call tomorrow.

Over 80 candidates for the 1938 Cavalier team, including 14 lettermen, are scheduled to report for a month's practice program under Coach Frank Murray and his assistants, Art Guepe, backfield coach; and Edward R. (Butch) Slaughter, line coach.

Four other lettermen, all starting regulars last fall, will cast their lots with spring sports. Jim Gillettte and Peter Nistad, backs, and Jimmy Sargeant, end, will turn to baseball, while Ted Sharretts, back, will be an all-round performer on Archie Hahn's track team.

Veteran backs ready for the football workouts, however, are Harry McClaugherty, Walter Smith, Harry Dinwiddie and Beverly Tucker. The freshman squad will furnish Jim Beveridge, Mosby Cardozo, Al Frerotte, Billy McCann, Sidney Roberts, John Waldrop and Harold Brosnan.

Leading end candidates are the George Brothers, Woody and Tabb, both lettermen, and Walter Jones. Up from the fishermen ranks are Luke Gosney and Bill Gravatt. Five 200-pound tackles are Art Bryant and Delancey Ober, lettermen, and Lee McLaughlin, Bob Aldrich and Jack Swank, freshmen.

Capt. John Acree heads the group of guards which includes Jack Henretty, Cabell Maddux, and Herbert Winokur, previous letter winners, and Phillip Rothar and Sydney Burrows, two regulars on the freshman squad.

With most of the players short on experienc, Coach Murray plans to devote much of the spring session to fundamentals. Not more than a half a dozen will be in their last year of competition next fall.

A. A. U. Head Says Olympic Change Won't Hurt U. S.

By the Associated Press.

Denver, March 20.—As Judge Samuel E. Hoyt, national president of the Amateur Athletic Union, sees it, the change in the dates for the 1940 Olympic "is unfortunate" but hardly something to worry about greatly.

"It is unfortunate the games were moved back from August to late September," he said today. "This might interfere with the participation of some college athletes. However, I believe we will have just as many college stars on the team as we have had in former years."

Asked if he thought it might not be feasible to hold the games in Tokyo because of war conditions in the Orient, Hoyt replied: "It's too early to say about that."

The big, gruff-voiced A. A. U. head said he's "never seen the Olympics" when asked if he thought the games were tending to become nationalistic, but added that "it seems safe to say they are undergoing something of a change.

"The A. A. U. really doesn't have much to say about the Olympic team," Hoyt said. "We have only 5 members on the committee of 37."

Hoyt, whose home is at New Haven, Conn., came to Denver for the thirty-first National A. A. U. Basketball Tournament, and called it "the greatest thing of its kind I've ever seen."

"I was surprised both by the size and enthusiasm of the crowds and the sportsmanship of the players," he said.

The national meet hasn't been held in the East in nearly 20 years and Hoyt said "I doubt if it would draw very well in New York."

"None of the college teams I saw play in New York this season would have a chance against the teams that reached the semifinals in this tournament," he said.

Syracuse Crews Enter Four Races

Syracuse, N. Y., March 20 (U.P.).—Syracuse University crews, under Coach Ned Teneyck, will participate in three regattas this year in addition to the annual Poughkeepsie classic.

The varsity and junior varsity will compete with Navy and Cornell at Annapolis on April 30. The varsity, junior varsity and freshman eights will participate in the Compton Cup Regatta against Princeton and Harvard, at Princeton, on May 7.

On May 14 the three Orange crews will meet Harvard, Cornell and M. I. T. on the Charles River in Boston. The season will close at Poughkeepsie on June 27.

Wonder why the Marines failed to have entries in the District A. A. U. boxing tournament? . . . Last year, after several of the Devil Dogs had hit the deck, somebody remarked, "The Marines have landed—on their backs" . . . I hope that didn't have anything to do with their absence. . . Remind me to ask General, Colonel, Captain, Sargeant, Corporal, Private Heinie Miller about that the next time I see him . . . I'm told that Sonja Henie, on her recent visit to Miami, wore slacks to Hialeah Park and officials refused to waiver the rule which bars slacks for women in the clubhouse . . . Miss Henie was photographed on a box in the grandstand section . . . I guess I was born too soon . . . On my visit to the Iceland Rink for the Baltimore Ice Carnival the other night, the boys who scraped the ice at intermission in team fashion were my pets . . . It was their fling at being big shots . . . Some wore ragged sweaters, others had rusty skates . . . but they were doing their stuff right in front of 4,000 people . . . When I was their age, wearing my "23-skiddoo" and my "Time for Taft" buttons, I too would have gloried in the task . . . Even the fact that they are called "Rink Rats" would not have scared me off . . . One of the telegraph operators who works a sports wire was dubbed "Shorty" due to his diminutive stature, of course . . . During a busy period, the telegraph company had to put on an extra man and sent him to help "Shorty" . . . The newcomer was even smaller than "Shorty," who grasped the opportunity to greet him with "Hello, Shorter-Than-I-Am" . . . and despite the fact that it is a rather cumbersome monicker, it has stuck to him.

Possibly the White Sox figured that a first baseman in hand was worth two in the holdout ranks . . . Washington certainly got the best of the deal if baseball "color" is taken into consideration . . . Along this line, it was like taking a white rag and dyeing it scarlet . . . There's no truth in the rumor that I have picked the late Calvin Coolidge's mechanical horse in the Kindergarten Stakes on opening day at Bowie . . . A Clarendon reader phoned that he would like to meet me . . . It can be arranged this way: Visit my secretary in person; if you meet with her approval, she will try to find 5 minutes that I have open late the following week; then, provided that your ancestors came over on the Mayflower and you can get letters from three Senators and Chief Chewaki, I may be able to talk to you through a wire netting if I'm in good standing with the warden . . . It is sort of unfair to write fan mail on postal cards, especially the one about "Did you have to go all the way over to the Capital to interview 'Whizzer' Haight?"

Joseph E. Widener finally got the New York Legislature to pass a pari-mutuel betting bill that will chase the bookies, he hopes . . . All needed to make it official is the Governor's signature . . . but Widener got a headache out of it in the form of legalized dog racing in four counties, tacked onto the measure . . . And New York will get a headache before it gets through with the canines . . . I'd like to own a dog track on that vacant triangle across from the Willard Hotel . . . Remind me to look into that . . . speaking of sports, there's the Easter egg-rolling coming up, but I know a lot of guys who won't compete this year . . . They are the local Zoo reporters who covered the penguin egg stories . . . I understand the hippos are "threeing" and the boss is considering me for the assignment . . . as if I wanted any traffic with those big, blubber-lipped bums . . . Wonder if it was an "I-nus" and not a sinus infection that had Dizzy Dean floored last week . . . Aint' so unfamiliar with that capital "I" key, myself, eh? . . . getting so I shadow box with it in my sleep.

Talk about March coming in like a lion and going out like a lamb . . . Consider this friend of mine who almost blew a fuse on the phone with "Hey Haight, who win the last at Bay Meadows? I've got $46 riding on a parlay" . . . I named the money horses and then came a weak voice, "Was Pompous Genie in the also rans?" . . . All I could do was say, "Yes," very softly and place the receiver gently on the hook . . . It's times like those that make me wish I had stayed a soda jerker . . . Probably would have but mixing Bromo Seltzers made by blood run, cold . . . It's a lie . . . I mean that story being circulated by some of the fellows who played ball with me on the "Little Potatoes (we're hard to peel) . . ." It's not true that I played rightfield because the position was only 10 yards away from my mother's kitchen and that I liked to stand out there and smell the cabbage cooking . . . but I did drop an easy fly ball one day because I mistook the doorbell for the dinner bell . . . Open letter to Hugh Miller, Post photographer: I am not interested in buying your bicycle. However, I'm in the market for a used tricycle with an outboard motor and a horn that goes "peep." W. H. . . . That corner paper boy slayed all within earshot by crying, "Right here, folks. You can't tell a war without a scorecard."

Detroit Prepares.

Detroit (AP).—The Detroit Tigers led all other major league baseball clubs in home attendance last season and Owner Walter Briggs is readying for even bigger crowds in 1938 by spending $700,000 enlarging the stadium. The improved stands will seat 60,000. Detroit drew 1,300,000 fans last season—an average of 17,000 a game.

Women Open Cage Tourney

National A. A. U. Lists 300 Star Players.

Wichita, Kans., March 20.—More than 300 players, the Nation's best in feminine court talent, will launch tomorrow night a week of fast-paced competition leading to the women's national A. A. U. basketball title.

Western teams drew the early assignments, which will pit the defending champion flyers of Little Rock, Ark., against the merchantettes of Mulvane, Kans., in the second game at 7 p. m. (C. S. T.).

Two ambitious bands of Texas youngsters will meet teams of seasoned players on opening night. The Miller Grove, Tex., high school drew the experienced Des Moines, Iowa, A. I. B. as 6 p. m. opponents, and the veteran Tulsa, Okla., Stenos and Allison, Tex., High School are matched in the night's last game, at 11 p. m.

The Wichita, Kans., Thurstons, 1937 semi-finalists, and the Ada, Okla., Red Pirates will meet at 8 p. m.; the Tampa, Fla., Magic Chefs, Monday night's lone non-Western contender, and the Kansas City, Mo., Flashes at 9 p. m., and the Beth-el Nurses, Colorado Springs, and the Tupelo, Miss., Draughons at 10 p. m.

Teams from both coasts arrived today, suiting up promptly to practice for the coming week's grind. Among the first were the 1937 title-holding Flyers, and the Anicos, of Galveston, Tex., whose string of 25 victories without defeat this season marks them as an outstanding contender.

Other teams on hand early were the Queen Bees, of Baltimore, Md., and the Westinghouse squad from Pittsburgh, Pa.; and teams from Tupelo, Miss.; De sMoines, Iowa; Nashville, Tenn.; Cincinnati, Ohio, and Lambuth College, Jackson, Tenn., 1937 quarter-finalists.

Time Out!

BY CHET SMITH

Looks like the bowling pin company has been using green maple, Mr. O'Leary!

There's one sure way to know where the fishing will be good this year. That's to read Bill Ackerman in The Post—every Tuesday, Friday and Sunday.

At The Post . . . .

With Bill Bennings.

Selections at Tropical Park.

Dear Al:

New York race writers have already contended that there is more money bet at the Gotham track than at either Santa Anita or Narragansett Park. If the bill ready for the Governor's signature is signed, they will have a chance to prove it. I have a hunch that despite the setting up of mutuel machines a large amount of the betting money will still flow through the bookies. The big New York bettors have been wagering through a wink or a nod too long to change their tricks. Then again they will be reluctant to put money on the machines when they know that they are cutting down their own pay-off prices.

I have heard many mutuel vs. bookie arguments. Horsemen and big bettors prefer the books because when they get on the line they know exactly what the pay-off will be. For instance, the bookies may quote 15-1 on a certain horse and those in the "know" probably will get down at that figure. However, news travels fast among the bookies and they soon cut the odds. Perhaps by post time, the average track customer will bet at 3-1 on the same horse. This accounts for a respectable showing by favorites at New York tracks. The masses of New York track goers will like the mutuels and get a better shake from them. The tracks, which have depended mostly on admissions for their revenue, should go to town with increased profits, providing too many of the race fans don't bet in town and then turn mere spectators at the track.

BILL.

First race—Spanish Dot probably is ready to take care of this field. Has an edge in my book over Dark Sweet. American Byrd has worked well and, if able to carry that speed in a race will be dangerous.

Second race—Blue Train goes for the heavy dough in this group and with the right handling I expect him to take down the major portion of the purse. Fair Time is due respect off that last effort. Bernardine W. to take care of the others.

Third race — Spindle Top has found a race that seems to suit his purposes and I'm going to string along. Blox has plenty of foot and deserves attention. Sure Cloud has a money chance and could take it all on some efforts.

Fourth race—Genevra M. and Time and Again are fairly evenly matched here. I lean toward the first-named but I might as well be tossing a coin. Didutellus should take down a piece of the pay-off.

Fifth race—Lady Higloss has too much class for James A., I believe, despite the latter's recent smashing race. Panther Creek has general good form and could surprise.

Sixth race—I don't believe Sought After is as bad as some of his showings of late. This would be the spot for a fair price and I'm going to try to be in on the kill. My Wo seems headed for favoritism and is good now. Crack All to show.

Seventh race — Stocks barely tossed off that last and appears to be pounds the best here. Chalphone and Achieve to chase the top one to the imaginary wire.

Eighth race—Brandon Prince and Starwick probably will battle it out for the main onions in this event. Bahamas has been kidding, and if you guess him the price will be there.

Best bet—Stocks.

Steel Activity Increases Pace To 32 Per Cent

Industry's Condition Is the Best So Far This Year, Survey Says.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, March 20.—The Magazine Steel today reported a continued slight improvement in buying of steel, particularly in heavier lines. "Conditions are irregular," the weekly review said. "Some sellers find sales so far in March have exceeded all February. As a whole, conditions are the best of the year to date, with many encouraging signs from business immediately pending or already booked, but not specified."

Tin plate producers were reported in relatively better position than others, with production at about 60 per cent of capacity and indications for continued activity.

It was pointed out that while steel for shipbuilding is piling up an impressive backlog, with more tonnage about to come out, delivery is spread over a considerable period and offers little immediate relief to mills.

Structural Projects.

Structural tonnage, the magazine said, gives promise of reaching a fairly heavy total when projects now pending are converted into orders.

Reflecting the increased demand, the national steelworks operating rate advanced 2 points last week to 32 per cent. Pittsburgh producers reported an increase of 4 points to 30 per cent. Cleveland stepped up 2.8 points to 30.8 per cent; Chicago, 2.5 points to 30; and Buffalo, 9.5 points to 28 per cent. Only two points showed reduced operations. Youngstown receded 2 points to 27 per cent, and Cincinnati, 7 points to 25 per cent. Operations remained unchanged at Wheeling, Eastern Pennsylvania, Birmingham, New England, St. Louis and Detroit.

Kennecott Copper Nets $49,822,393

New York, March 20 (AP).—Kennecott Copper Corporation reported today 1937 consolidated net income of $49,822,393 after all taxes and reserves and $6,473,822 for depreciation and retirements. This was equal to $4.60 a share on the capital stock outstanding. Before provision for depreciation and retirements earnings were $56,296,276, or $5.20 a share. In 1936 consolidated net income was equal to $2.82 a share before depreciation and retirements and $2.36 after such charge off.

Production of copper amounted to 316,903,179 pounds in 1937, compared with 578,943,053 in 1936. Deliveries against sales totaled 756,411,221 pounds, against 567,454,983 in the preceding year. Altogether 40,335,776 tons of ore was treated at the company's six mining properties in the United States, Alaska and Chile.

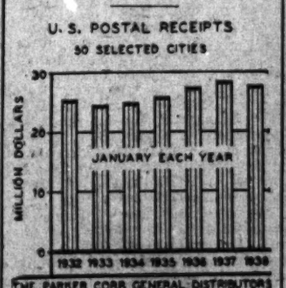
Postal Receipts Fall 2% Under Last Year



THE PARKER CORR GENERAL DISTRIBUTORS INCORPORATED INVESTORS

Boston, Mass., March 20.—January postal receipts dropped two per cent from those of a year ago, but with that exception were the largest for any January since 1931. Postal receipts are an excellent measure of general conditions.

Washington Inertia Balks Recovery, Babson Declares

While Congress Fiddles, He Says, March Registers as the Worst Business Month in Three Years.

By Roger W. Babson.

Babson Park, Fla., March 20.—Business this month is the worst in three years. Activity is now back to the level of the spring of 1935. It is 28 per cent below a year ago, although still about 33 per cent above the depression bottom of March, 1933. My New Year forecast called for a bad first quarter—at least 15 per cent below a year ago. We are having it all right. The drop is averaging even more than I predicted. It is about 23 per cent.

As 1938 opened, there were signs of a turn-up. Business did move ahead 2 or 3 per cent between mid-January and mid-February. During the last four weeks, however, things have slipped off again. Business now is 2 per cent lower than a month ago. There has been a sharp drop in retail sales of all kinds.

Official Notices

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, March 9, 1938. Notice is hereby given that under authority granted in Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, authorizing the closing of streets, roads, highways and alleys in the District of Columbia, and in accordance with the provisions of an item authorizing changes in the permanent system of highways contained in D. C. Appropriation Act for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914, (Public Act No. 435, 62nd Congress) approved March 4, 1913, as amended by an Act approved April 30, 1926 (Public Act No. 158, 69th Congress), the Commissioners of the District of Columbia will give a public hearing in the Board Room of said Commissioners in the District Building on MONDAY, MARCH 28, 1938, at 10 o'clock A. M. to interested property owners to determine as to any property rights which may be affected or as to the equity, justice or advisability of closing the streets, old road and alley area, and concerning the proposed changes in the permanent system of highways, described as follows:

1. Closing 36th Street between White-Haven Parkway and 37 Street, N.W. 2. Closing Fulton Street, N.W. between New Hampshire Avenue and Foxhall Road, closing 43rd Street, N.W., from its southern terminus south of Fulton Street to Garfield Street, and closing part of 45th Street, N. W., between Fulton and Garfield Streets; and providing also for a transfer for widening 45th Street, N.W., north of Fulton Street. 3. Closing part of Brookland Avenue, N.E., between Michigan Avenue and Bates Road, closing Bates Road, N.E., from 2d Street (proposed) to 6th Street (proposed), and closing part of an alley in Square 3821; and providing also for a dedication of land for highway purposes in this section, including the extension and widening of Taylor Street from its present western terminus to 2nd Street, N.E., and the westerly boundary of Parcel 135/4, for the extension of a proposed street northwesterly from Taylor Street, N.E., to the westerly line of 2nd Street (proposed), and for other street area to be acquired by dedication in this section. 4. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways affecting property in the Northeast section located within the territory bounded on the north by Farragut Street (proposed), on the east by 10th Street and its proposed extension, on the south by Michigan Avenue, and on the west by Harewood Road and Rock Creek Church Road, affecting the location of Brookland Avenue, 6th Street, Taylor Street, and other proposed street area, all as heretofore laid down on said plan of the permanent system of highways in the above described territory. 5. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways affecting property in the Southeast section located within the territory bounded on the northeast by Saint Elisabeths Hospital grounds, on the southeast by Nichols Avenue, on the south by Portland Street, and on the west by South Capitol Street, affecting the location of Oakwood Street, and providing for the elimination of part of 9th Street, and the relocation and elimination of other proposed street area in the above described territory. 6. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways affecting property in the Southeast section located within the territory bounded on the north by Hartford Street, on the east by 21st Street, on the south and southeast by Alabama Avenue (Hamilton Road), and on the west by Saint Elisabeths Hospital grounds and 13th Street, affecting 15th Place and Stanton Road, and providing for the elimination of other street area, and parts of 18th, 19th, 20th, Irving and Jasper Streets, and also providing new proposed street area in the above described territory. 7. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways affecting property in the Northwest section lying north of Calvert Street and immediately west of Adams Mill Road. 8. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways in the Northeast section, providing for 37th Street on said plan from Brentwood Road southerly to the northerly boundary of Parcel 142/3 (Railroad Terminal property). Maps showing the street, road and alley area proposed to be closed, and the proposed changes in the permanent system of highways, are on file in the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia. Room 405 District Building (same being known as Maps 2082, 2083, 2084, 2085, 2086, 2087, 2088 and 2094), and may be examined by interested parties during business hours prior to the hearing. Said maps will also be displayed at the hearing, and the Commissioners will consider any suggestions or protests concerning the proposed changes and the proposed street, road and alley closings, as shown on above mentioned maps. MELVIN C. HAZEN, GEORGE E. ALLEN, DAN I. SULTAN, Commissioners of the District of Columbia. mch8—dex8—14t.

Bob Burns Says—

A lot of people have asked me point-blank why I don't tell my opinion of the European situation. To tell you the truth, I haven't gone into it deep enough to talk intelligently about it.

It's kinda like the time Aunt Puney asked Uncle Slug if he had heard the scandal about the Medfett's havin' a big fight. Uncle Slug says "Nope." Aunt Puney says "Well, the whole town's talkin'—some are takin' his part and some are takin' her's."

Uncle Slug says "And I suppose there's a few eccentric people who are mindin' their own business."

The Federal Diary

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

Things that wouldn't make the headlines—but which interested us no end.

For long, now, the Bureau of Biological Survey has been riled at those restaurateurs and other mine hosts who sell game of all sorts out of season. And they note how one inn keeper in Texas has been sentenced to Leavenworth Penitentiary for the illegal sale of game. In this particular instance, mine host operated a night club near Forth Worth, and "people from all over the country ate wild duck, quail, plover, dove and other wild birds at his inn. The birds were available in season and out." The Biological Survey called him "the top man" in an agency that destroyed many waterfowl and upland game birds. "It is estimated that the normal number of legitimate hunters from several counties would take less in one whole season than this man bootlegged annually." The case required more than a year to complete—and it is probable that the convicted man, if he ever runs an inn again, will say to one and all: "You bring the duck . . ."

They are talking now in the National Park Service about the aged gentleman who recently visited the George Washington Birthplace National Monument, Wakefield, Va. His resemblance to the First President was so impressive that much comment ensued. He disclosed that he is Edward Lewis, a direct descendant of close relatives of George Washington on both sides of his family. On the paternal side he is descended from Mrs. Betty Lewis, sister of the General. On his mother's side, he is a great grandson of Lund Washington, a cousin of George Washington and manager of Mount Vernon during the Revolutionary War. Now in his ninetieth year, Lewis was able to travel from his home in St. Louis, Mo., without special assistance.

We had somehow regarded those FCA hikers as fair-weather boys and girls, thinking that they walked only under a sun. But quite recently they trudged six miles in a rain, and walked through mountain country where the wet branches swish back in one's face and where the undergrowth is soaking underfoot.

The Park Service did some excavation not long ago in Wupatki National Monument, Arizona, and unearthed many pieces of interesting pottery—but more interestingly, they came upon a few fragment of woven cotton cloth, including one with two stripes dyed dark brown. From tree ring datings, it was definitely known that the room in which the find was made was occupied in 1168 . . . U. S. rangers at Mount McKinley National Park, Alaska, take lessons from the Eskimos in the construction and repair of their dog sleds, the principal vehicles of locomotion in the long Arctic snows. Iron and wood are scarce in the far North, and the Eskimo builds his sled without the use of iron. The runners are shod with ivory. All new pieces of wood are first steamed, then placed in forms and left there to dry in the required shape. They use no nails or screws. Each joint is mortised and held in place with babiche thongs, insuring flexibility. If the sleds were rigid they would soon break.

Spoilsmen say: "To the victor belongs the spoils!

Merit-system advocates say: ? ? ? ? ? ?"

Which isn't a game we're playing. An award of $50 for the best slogan for the merit system has been offered by Charles G. Morris, of New Haven, Conn., a member of the executive committee of the National Civil Service Reform League and vice president of the Connecticut Merit System Association. There are three requirements: (1) that it be snappy; (2) that it be in positive rather than in negative terms, and (3) that it convey a complete idea.

We are not entering the contest—but will remark that if the Congress keeps shooting the merit system full of holes a logical and appropriate title will be "Gone With the Wind."

Congratulations to the Office of Education (Interior) on the lively radio program arranged for April. Looking at random, we see that on April 10 the office will introduce the Universe, in which the question will be asked: "Who can count the stars of the heavens?" with a following discussion of the marvels of astronomy . . . And on April 17, "The Inca Empire of the Sun" will be discussed. The distant empire wasn't overthrown by flood, fire, pestilence or invasion. Perhaps it was social revolution. In any event, archeologists are probing the ruins, high in the Andes, and what they have found and hope to find will be told you.

From the mail box:

Editor Federal Diary, Sir: "Even if the amendment introduced by Senator O'Mahoney providing for departmental appeal boards on efficiency ratings becomes law the amendment would make little improvement over present conditions. Under the amendment accepted by the Senate, Section 9 of the classification act of 1923, as amended, would be further amended and the employe is legislated the right to appeal, whereas now right of appeal is discretionary with the review board on efficiency ratings in each department. Nowhere in the amendment is found teeth for the commission to enforce its decisions. As long as the commission is not made final in its decisions, the department heads may or may not follow orders emanating from the commission. Already we have so many ineffective laws regarding Federal employes, but not until the Civil Service Commission is granted finality of decision legislation will this personnel agency amount to very much; and generally speaking, Federal employes, knowing this state of affairs, are greatly amused over the ineffective right of appeal on efficiency ratings introduced by Senator O'Mahoney and accepted by the Senate."

The Federal Bar Association has granted charters to two recently organized groups of Federal attorneys at Chicago and Portland, Oreg. The Portland group was formed largely through the efforts of John C. Fisher, former member of the Board of Veterans Appeals, who left Washington several months ago to accept an appointment as general counsel of the Bonneville Dam.

12,000 Ready To Parade Here On Army Day

President Proclaims Fete for April 6 in U. S. and Possessions.

President Roosevelt Saturday proclaimed April 6 Army Day and ordered military units in the United States and its possessions to assist civic organizations in observing the occasion.

More than 12,000 men in 110 units as well as scores of bands and drum corps have been listed by Military Order of the World War officials for places in the parade to be held here on Army Day.

In the reviewing stand will be President Roosevelt, members of the cabinet and other government officials. Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, local commander of the Military Order of the World War, will welcome the presidential party to the stand, and the national commanders of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled American War Veterans have been invited to be guests of Rear Admiral Reginald R. Belknap, commander-in-chief of the Military Order of the World War.

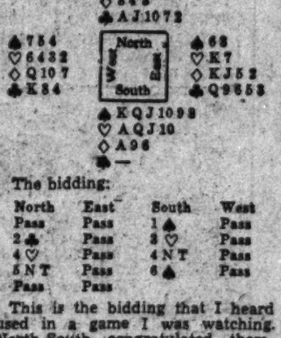
Brig. Gen. William Bryden will be grand marshal of the parade, and the assistant marshals, who will head the five main divisions, will be Col. Jonathan M. Wainwright, commander of the Third Cavalry; Col. John W. Oehmann, commander of the District of Columbia National Guard; Col. Leroy Warren, who will be in charge of the Organized Reserve units; Col. Jesse C. Drain, commander of the division of the R. O. T. C. units and the High School Cadets, and Col. George H. Ijams, past commander in chief of the Military Order of the World War.

Contract Bridge

The Simple Percentages.

Extensive mathematical knowledge is not at all necessary to a bridge player, and, indeed, some of the world's finest players confess that their training in this science never went farther than humble arithmetic. The knowledge that is vital, however, is a speaking acquaintance with the "percentages" that have a distinct bearing on the bidding and play of most hands. For instance, it is impossible to be accurate in slam bidding unless one knows at least roughly what chance he will have to capture an adversely held honor. Let us consider how this matter of percentage applies to an actual hand.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	4 N T	Pass
5 N T	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

This is the bidding that I heard used in a game I was watching. North-South congratulated themselves on having reached the slam because, as may be seen, it was easily made.

Declarer won the opening diamond lead, entered dummy with a trump, discarded a diamond on the club ace, then took the heart finesse. After drawing the adverse trumps he could not enter dummy for the second time, therefore was forced to lay down the heart ace. The king dropped and the hand was spread, one diamond being conceded.

Now, let us see what ground for self-congratulation the victors had. Analysis brings out that with only one entry in dummy through which to finesse hearts, the declarer had about one chance in ten to pick up the heart king! He could do so only if it were blank on his right, or singly guarded. (If it were blank on his left, he would not be able to guess it.) Since there are 62 ways of dividing the six hearts that East-West held and only six of these would permit the capture of the king, the conclusion is obvious that South was phenomenally lucky.

As a matter of fact, South should have foreseen during the bidding that he would require two entries to dummy for the heart finesse. North's club takeout was far from favorable, since South had no club. The four-five notrump convention, therefore, was put to very dangerous use. The worst thing that could happen was that North would be able to answer positively with five notrump, since this would locate him with two aces, but, because of his original pass, would rule out the possibility of his holding the heart king. Having jumped in hearts on the second rounds, South should have contented himself with bidding four spades over four hearts. But, of course, if players are lucky enough to bring home contracts that are ten to one against them, I suppose that they will not pay too much attention to advice.

Mrs. Lindsay Named Head of Oxford School

Mrs. Vachel Lindsay, dean of the King-Smith Studio School, has been appointed headmistress of the Oxford School, Hartford, Conn., effective at the close of the present school year. She has been dean of the school here since 1935.

Mrs. Lindsay's successor will be named soon, officials of the King-Smith school said. The new Oxford headmistress is the widow of the well-known American poet and was born in St. Louis. She took her A. B. degree at Mills College, Calif., in 1923 and her M. A. degree, majoring in Latin, at Mills in 1934.

Airport System Expansion Asked

A plea for Government participation in expansion of the airport system of the country, coupled with a warning that the United States is inadequately equipped with landing fields for national defense purposes, was made Saturday by the airport committee, appointed by Dr. Fred D. Fagg, jr., director of the Bureau of Air Commerce.

In its statement, signed by Floyd E. Evans, chairman, the committee asserted an enabling clause to permit Federal participation in airport expansion should be included in the Lea bill now pending in Congress.

Pointing out that the measure provides for the establishment of a Federal aviation commission, the committee, said "we must include an enabling clause in this basic legislation for Government participation in airport expansion if we are to meet our flying needs and keep abreast of airport construction abroad."
